VOL. LXXXII—No. 77 CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y., WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 21, 1953. PRICE FIVE CENTS

City-County CD Plan Is Approved

Common Council Votes Consolidation With Attorney Sherwood Davis as Director

Reports Adopted

$100,000 Street Fund Passes, Also $47,110 for Machinery

Common Council last night voted to consolidate city and county civil defense into a single organization, approved a request of $147,110.56 for street improvements and the purchase of Board of Public Works equipment and machinery and authorized the sale of $260,500 worth of bonds.

The civil defense organizations in the city of Kingston and Ulster county will be consolidated into a new body to be known as the Ulster-Kingston Defense Council under the direction of Attorney Sherwood Davis, present head of the municipal defense council.

Davis Commended

In its resolution the Council commended Davis, his staff "and all those who were in any way associated with this work for the efficient and successful manner in which they have handled this important phase of national security."

It was further stated that "sufficient savings could be made in the expenditure of money, time and effort if consolidation of the two councils were effected" and that the "efficiency of such an important operation would not be hampered by such consolidation."

Spending Approved

Council adopted a report by its committee on finance, ways and means, recommending the approval of $100,000 for street improvements and $47,110.56 for the purchase of BPW machinery and equipment. Council eliminated an item of $20,300 requested by the Board of Public Works for the purchase of a snow plow truck, thereby reducing the original BPW request from $167,410.56 to $147,110.56.

In recommending the elimination of this item the committee stated that, upon investigation, it believed the snow plow truck could be omitted from the request "without interference or detriment to the street program of the Board of Public Works."

Vote to Sell Bonds

Council voted to consolidate and sell $260,500 worth of bonds authorized during 1952 for sewer, street improvements and highway machinery and apparatus.

The bonds are a combined issue including $40,000 for financing the purchase of highway machinery and apparatus, $128,500 for street improvements and $92,000 for sewer improvements. Monies realized from the sale will be used to retire bond anticipation notes issued last year for the purpose of providing immediate monies for work on various projects.

The sale will be advertised and bids opened at city hall January 27.

A resolution by Alderman Hirschell Mayes for installation of a traffic light at the corner of Green and North Front streets was referred to the traffic committee.

Apple Maggot Is Called Main Enemy Of Fruit Orchards

Valley Laboratory Expert Addresses 450 Growers on Opening Day of Meetings

The apple maggot, described as the most inportant insect that fruit growers in eastern New York had to combat, was the chief concern of the estimated 450 growers attending opening sessions of the New York State Horticultural Society's eastern meeting at the state armory here today.

The growers, meeting here for three days, this morning heard Ralph Dean of the Hudson Valley Fruit Investigations Laboratory in Poughkeepsie report on research on two lines—recording fly emergence as a means of timing control operations, and field testing new insecticides.

After discussing relative merits of the various sprays, Dean warned that no insecticide can be expected to give control of the apple maggot unless it is applied so as to give thorough coverage of all trees in the orchard, as well as marginal trees and bushes on which the flies may rest.

Agents Make Report

A report on the maggot situation in the Hudson Valley counties was given by each county agent.

P. J. Chapman of Geneva, speaking on Insect Resistance to Pesticides, told the growers that the European red mite had developed a certain resistance to parathion, TEPP and Malathon. "We have proof that this is true in only one orchard in the Hudson valley," he said, pointing out, however, that "other plantings may be involved, if not for European red mite, then for the two-spotted spider mite."

He said that DDT was "probably not as yet" losing its effectiveness against the codling moth and that he doubted the worsening of the apple maggot problem could be attributed to insecticide resistance.

He said New York fruit growers generally were not confronted with any immediate difficulties and that the first trouble could be expected from species which have been a number of generations each season.

Recommends Oil Spray

He recommended the application of an oil spray to apples in the green trip or delayed dormant bud stage "to kill the overwintering eggs of the European red mite." He said it seemed unwise to use parathion, TEPP or EPN in more than two sprays a season,

Dwyer Says Every Effort Planned to Help Firms Downtown

Recent efforts of State Senate Majority Leader Arthur H. Wicks to effect a banking law change is expected to open the way for continuation of a downtown bank as a branch of the Rondout National Bank, it was learned today.

Because of recommendations by the senator, it was revealed, William A. Lyons, superintendent of the Banking Department, State of New York, will seek the required banking law amendment.

Downtown Considered

James A. Dwyer, president of the Rondout National Bank, which plans to move soon from downtown to its new building on central Broadway, said today it had always been the intention of the bank to continue serving the downtown section, but it was found that a banking law change would be necessary.

Senator Wicks, he said, was most cooperative, and through his efforts it is planned to introduce a measure in the legislature that will clear the way for establishing the branch.

Law Is Drawback

The local bank was faced with a banking law provision which says a bank cannot be given a charter for a branch, because nationally chartered institutions cannot be estabilshed in cities of less than 30,000 population.

The bank reported that it discussed this provision with Ulster county's representatives in the state legislature and they will introduce an amendment in the 1953 legislature to permit the establishment, with approval of the state superintendent of banks and the comptroller of the currency, branches of commercial banks in communities regardless of population.

To Aid Merchants

The president of the local bank said: "If and when such an amendment is enacted into law, I can assure you that this bank will make every endeavor to provide necessary commercial banking facilities for the residents of the downtown area.

It is tentatively estimated that the downtown bank will be able to move to its Broadway building in April or May.

Mysterious Lights Seen Over Japan

American Airmen Say Flying Objects Close to Russian Territory in Kurile Islands

Are Like 'Saucers'

Possibility of Reflections Discounted According to Air Force

A U. S. Air Base, Northern Japan, Jan. 21 (AP)—Mysterious flying objects—"rotating clusters of red, white and green lights"—have been sighted over northern Japan by American airmen, the air force disclosed tonight.

Intelligence reports placed the sightings close to Russian territory in the Kurile Islands and Sakhalin. They added:

"There are too many indications of the presence of something * * * to be considered an observation of nothing." And they discounted the possibility the sighted objects were mere "reflections of light."

Seen by Fighter Pilots

Col. Curtis R. Low, commander of the Northern Division of the Japan Air Defense Force, said the flying clusters were seen by fighter pilots and ground personnel and were tracked on radar. He released official intelligence reports on the sighting to The Associated Press.

The reports were similar to those describing "flying saucers" in the U. S. One said the lights appeared to hang motionless at times, and at other times disappeared with blinding speed.

Col. Donald J. M. Blakeslee, World War 2 ace and commander of an escort fighter wing, took detailed observations on one rotating cluster and tried in vain to intercept it in a jet.

Tracked on Radar

Sightings were made by many persons at many points over northern Japan Dec. 29. On Jan. 9 a rotating cluster was spotted by two fighter pilots and was tracked on radar.

The report was signed by Lt. Col. Russell Powell, intelligence officer, U. S. Air Force.

The sightings occurred over the frozen, ice-locked reaches of northern Japan, a land tense with continued air harassment by near-flying Russian fighter planes.

Russian territory in the Kurile Islands is only 4½ miles northeast of Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island.

The Russian island of Sakhalin is only 30 miles north of Hokkaido. The Reds have dozens of air bases on Sakhalin and the Kuriles.

Says She Threw Baby Out

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—"I went to the crib and took the baby and threw her out the window. I just didn't want it." Police said this is what Mrs. Marilyn Meltzer, 26, told them yesterday after she hurled her three-weeks-old baby girl, Phyllis Ann, out a third-floor window. The baby died a few hours later. The father, Marvin Meltzer, a butter and egg jobber, said his wife had been nervous and melancholy since the birth of the child, their first in the three years they have been married. Mrs. Meltzer was not booked on any charge pending psychiatric tests.

Detectives Probe Mail Box Blasts

An innovation in local mischief was under police investigation today.

Police headquarters was notified twice yesterday that shotgun shells had exploded in an outside mail box on Florence street, and today the attention of Detectives Clarence Brophy and Frank Sammons was directed to the incidents.

Louis Marz, of 106 Florence street, reported at 7:40 p. m., that youngsters had placed paper and shotgun shells inside the mail box and set it on fire causing an explosion Monday night.

Explosion Last Night

Another attempt was made yesterday afternoon, he said, and at 9:50 last night, he reported hearing another explosion.

Officers Meyer Levy and Sheldon O'Rourke were dispatched there but found no one in the area. They reported that the shells with just primers left in had exploded in the box.

Police were notified at 2:45 p. m. yesterday that children in the downtown area Monday night had removed caps from fire hydrants on Chambers, Ann, Meadow and Union streets.

January 23 Is Deadline For Police Exam Papers

The Municipal Civil Service Commission announced today that Friday, Jan. 23, is the deadline for those interested in taking the examination for local patrolmen Feb. 14, to file their applications.

The city clerk's office reported earlier this month that more than 50 application forms had been distributed, but up until Saturday, the commission reported, only 16 had been filled out and forwarded.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The position of the Treasury Jan. 16: Net budget receipts $252,943,421.21; budget expenditures $238,348,552.79; cash balance $4,870,497,520.60; customs receipts for month $27,868,038.18; budget receipts fiscal year July 1 $29,073,910,810.08; budget expenditures fiscal year $39,366,739,201.40; budget deficit $10,292,828,391.32; total debt $267,330,345,592.70; decrease under previous day $13,299,127.25; gold asests $23,087,296,155.62.

13 Red Leaders Are Found Guilty by Jury

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—A federal court and jury found all 13 Communist leaders guilty of conspiracy.

The jury of six men and six women reached a verdict after receiving the case last Thursday. The trial lasted eight and one-half months.

All of the Communist leaders were charged with conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U. S. government.

Tax Groups Against TV For Schooling

A proposed educational television network which recently drew an offer of free facilities on Overlook Mountain, Woodstock, was given further hearing at Albany today, and was opposed by a taxpayers group.

The Associated Press said a private taxpayers' group opposing the Board of Regents proposal declared that "any money spent for education should be spent in the schools."

A 15-member commission was created by the 1952 legislature and appointed by the governor to study the feasibility of the proposal for broadcasting educational, non-commercial programs across the state.

Would Donate Site

Wilbert Newgold, of Woodstock and New York, last week offered the state a tract of land including buildings on the summit of Overlook free of charge if such a network is authorized.

Garth A. Shoemaker, president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., at the Albany hearing, assailed the Regents plan at the state commission's third hearing on the controversial proposal. The commission heard witnesses in Buffalo Jan. 6, and in New York last Wednesday and Thursday. No further hearings are scheduled.

29 Companies of 64 Are in Favor, but 24 Let Voting Go by Without Committing Selves

11 Are Absent

Cost Would Be $53,500 to Install Means of Air Communication

Feeling about installation of a two-way radio fire alarm system in Ulster county appeared mixed at a meeting of approximately 300 members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night in the Council chambers at city hall.

A final vote of the 64 member companies disclosed 29 in favor of the proposed system and 24 who declined to commit their companies one way or another. Eleven companies were not represented.

Most of those who passed did so, it was explained, because they were not authorized to speak for their companies.

A motion by John Smith of High Falls that the vote be postponed until the next meeting of the Association February 17 in order that the member companies could make official decision on the issue was defeated.

Cost Is $53,500

Leading the discussion of the proposed system which could be installed at an estimated cost of $53,500 were Arthur C. Chipp, Ulster County Fire Coordinator, B. Richard Townsend, chief of the State Bureau of Fire, Division of Safety at Albany, and Timothy G. Stillman, field (fire) representative of the executive department of the Division of Saftey, Albany.

The Ulster County Board of Supervisors has been petitioned to make an appropriation of half the estimated cost, which would be matched by federal funds.

Stresses Quick Action

Townsend called attention to the necessity for prompt action by the county if it hoped to benefit by federal assistance, pointing out that of $250,000 allocated by the state for two-way radio installation $198,000 had already been earmarked for use.

"This is in no way blackmail," Townsend stated, explaining that prompt action would probably ensure Ulster county of matching funds but that in case of any considerable delay "there may or may not be funds."

Chipp Disappointed

Saying that he was highly enthusiastic about the proposed system Chipp expressed disappointment that the association did not appear to be more wholeheartedly in favor of two-way radio.

The decision lies with the Board of Supervisors, he said, urging members of the Association to contact their supervisors and let

White House Says Eisenhower Still Intends to Name Wilson

Lodge, Stassen Are Nominated

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower sent the nominations of two more high-ranking members of his administration to the Senate for confirmation today.

They are former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., as U. S. representative to the United Nations, and Harold E. Stassen as director for mutual security.

Press Secretary Hagerty Advises Reporters That Senate Won't Get Nomination Yet; Eight Others of Cabinet Ready for Action

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The White House said today that President Eisenhower still intends to name Charles E. Wilson to the post of Secretary of Defense.

But the nomination will not be submitted to the Senate today, James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press chief, told a news conference.

Beyond that, however, Hagerty sidestepped reporters' questions about Eisenhower's intentions regarding the controversial Wilson appointment.

Hagerty said he knows of no change in the President's decision to appoint the former General Motors president to the cabinet.

Wilson's prospective appointment had been challenged by some Republicans and Democrats who quoted laws saying that no federal official on a contract-making level may hold a financial interest in a company which owns defense contracts.

General Motors, from which Wilson resigned as president, is the nation's biggest defense contractor.

Insist He Give Up Stock

Some senators have said Wilson should divest himself of 2½ million dollars worth of GM stock before taking any cabinet post.

Hagerty refused to discuss Eisenhower's early-morning 7-minute conference with Herbert Brownell Jr., his attorney general-designate —though reporters assumed the talk was about Wilson.

The press chief would say only that Brownell and the new President had a "very pleasant conversation."

A reporter asked: "Does the President feel that Wilson should get rid of his stock in General Motors?"

"I have nothing to say," said Hagerty.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, which has been studying the prospective Wilson appiontment, has put off hearings on the matter until Friday. Originally it had been scheduled to take up the case again today.

Eight Ready for Confirmation

The eight other Eisenhower cabinet members, hurriedly nominated officially after his inauguration yesterday, apparently were in line for Senate confirmation today. That would let them move into their jobs.

But Chairman Saltonstall (R.-Mass.) told a reporter he was delaying until Friday an Armed Services Committee hearing for Wilson. Previously scheduled for today, the session would have given Wilson an opportunity to alter his previous testimony. There were signs he would do so.

Wilson's name was omitted when President Eisenhower sent to the Senate yesterday a list of eight cabinet and one subcabinet appointees which Republicans had hoped would get immediate approval.

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.), who blocked the confirmation move with an objection, said he was ready to vote today on the nominees. Barring unexpected lengthy talk, they might all be confirmed by nightfall. Morse was able to block action yesterday because the situation required suspension of Senate rules which say nomi-

No Radical Change Expected in Korea

Eisenhower's Aim Seen Concerned in Unity of Free Forces

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The basic principles set up by President Eisenhower to guide his administration appeared today to rule out, at least in the immediate future, any radical new strategy for United Nations forces in the Korean war.

His emphasis on the dangers to be found in discord among the allies and his repeated stress on the need for unity among the free nations seemed to offer this reassurance to uneasy allied governments.

These governments, particularly those of allied western European nations, became concerned about the policies of an Eisenhower administration last fall when Republican campaign orators made an issue of ending the Korean war. There was apprehension that the U. S. under Eisenhower might undertake moves which would lead to a broadening of the war.

Stresses Moral Pressure

Similarly there has been concern abroad about a policy of "liberation" for Russian satellite countries. Incoming Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has recently reaffirmed intention to develop such a policy, using moral and political pressures.

Eisenhower did not spell out in his inaugural address how he intends to tackle either the Korean stalemate, the liberation policy problem or any other specific issue of foreign policy. He did make clear, however, that he intends to do all in his power to preserve and develop the unity of allied nations and of the whole free world.

"The strength of all free peoples lies in unity," he declared, "their danger in discord." He said the U. S. has the responsibility of leadership to develop this unity.

General's Wife Dies

San Francisco, Jan. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Alys S. Trapnell, 46, wife of Brig. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, died today in Letterman Army Hospital, 36 hours after she was pulled from the surf at the beach. Hospital authorities notified the coroner's office of Mrs. Trapnell's death, but gave no cause. A coroner's investigation was ordered.

Kaplan New President of CofC for '53

Adrian Kaplan was elected as president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce for 1953 at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night. The three vice-presidents elected were Maynard Mizel, Lawrence Quilty and Clarence H. Buddenhagen. Elmer A. Rylance was named treasurer.

Kaplan is a principal of the Kaplan Furniture Company 66-68 North Front street. He has long been active in civic affairs and is a member of the Lions Club. He was recently elected to the Chamber board, but had previously served a full term from 1949 to 1951.

After making the committee's nominations, Joseph F. Deegan, who served as chairman of the committee, read four specific suggested changes in the procedure of electing officers to make it more effective and workable. As the changes would require amendments to the By-laws they will be studied and presented to the membership for consideration later.

New Directors Attend

The new directors attending their first meeting included J. Ellis Briggs, Albert C. Flanagan, N. Jansen Fowler, Adrian Kaplan, Victor H. Roth and Clyde E. Wonderly, Jr. Harry Rigby, Jr., who had been elected, declined the office, expressing the fact that he had served nearly two full terms in the recent past and in his opinion the reelection of directors,

Officers Meyer Levy and Sheldon O'Rourke were dispatched there but found no one in the area. They reported that the shells with just primers left in had exploded in the box.

Police were notified at 2:45 p. m. yesterday that children in the downtown area Monday night had removed caps from fire hydrants on Chambers, Ann, Meadow and Union streets.

Feeling Is Mixed About Fire 2-Way Radio System at Parley Of 300 Volunteers From County

29 Companies of 64 Are in Favor, but 24 Let Voting Go by Without Committing Selves

11 Are Absent

Cost Would Be $53,500 to Install Means of Air Communication

Feeling about installation of a two-way radio fire alarm system in Ulster county appeared mixed at a meeting of approximately 300 members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night in the Council chambers at city hall.

A final vote of the 64 member companies disclosed 29 in favor of the proposed system and 24 who declined to commit their companies one way or another. Eleven companies were not represented.

Most of those who passed did so, it was explained, because they were not authorized to speak for their companies.

A motion by John Smith of High Falls that the vote be postponed until the next meeting of the Association February 17 in order that the member companies could make official decision on the issue was defeated.

Cost Is $53,500

Leading the discussion of the proposed system which could be installed at an estimated cost of $53,500 were Arthur C. Chipp, Ulster County Fire Coordinator, B. Richard Townsend, chief of the State Bureau of Fire, Division of Safety at Albany, and Timothy G. Stillman, field (fire) representative of the executive department of the Division of Saftey, Albany.

The Ulster County Board of Supervisors has been petitioned to make an appropriation of half the estimated cost, which would be matched by federal funds.

Stresses Quick Action

Townsend called attention to the necessity for prompt action by the county if it hoped to benefit by federal assistance, pointing out that of $250,000 allocated by the state for two-way radio installation $198,000 had already been earmarked for use.

"This is in no way blackmail," Townsend stated, explaining that prompt action would probably ensure Ulster county of matching funds but that in case of any considerable delay "there may or may not be funds."

Chipp Disappointed

Saying that he was highly enthusiastic about the proposed system Chipp expressed disappointment that the association did not appear to be more wholeheartedly in favor of two-way radio.

The decision lies with the Board of Supervisors, he said, urging members of the Association to contact their supervisors and let

White House Says Eisenhower Still Intends to Name Wilson

Lodge, Stassen Are Nominated

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—President Eisenhower sent the nominations of two more high-ranking members of his administration to the Senate for confirmation today.

They are former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., as U. S. representative to the United Nations, and Harold E. Stassen as director for mutual security.

Press Secretary Hagerty Advises Reporters That Senate Won't Get Nomination Yet; Eight Others of Cabinet Ready for Action

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The White House said today that President Eisenhower still intends to name Charles E. Wilson to the post of Secretary of Defense.

But the nomination will not be submitted to the Senate today, James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press chief, told a news conference.

Beyond that, however, Hagerty sidestepped reporters' questions about Eisenhower's intentions regarding the controversial Wilson appointment.

Hagerty said he knows of no change in the President's decision to appoint the former General Motors president to the cabinet.

Wilson's prospective appointment had been challenged by some Republicans and Democrats who quoted laws saying that no federal official on a contract-making level may hold a financial interest in a company which owns defense contracts.

General Motors, from which Wilson resigned as president, is the nation's biggest defense contractor.

Insist He Give Up Stock

Some senators have said Wilson should divest himself of 2½ million dollars worth of GM stock before taking any cabinet post.

Hagerty refused to discuss Eisenhower's early-morning 7-minute conference with Herbert Brownell Jr., his attorney general-designate—though reporters assumed the talk was about Wilson.

The press chief would say only that Brownell and the new President had a "very pleasant conversation."

A reporter asked: "Does the President feel that Wilson should get rid of his stock in General Motors?"

"I have nothing to say," said Hagerty.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, which has been studying the prospective Wilson appiontment, has put off hearings on the matter until Friday. Originally it had been scheduled to take up the case again today.

Eight Ready for Confirmation

The eight other Eisenhower cabinet members, hurriedly nominated officially after his inauguration yesterday, apparently were in line for Senate confirmation today. That would let them move into their jobs.

But Chairman Saltonstall (R.-Mass.) told a reporter he was delaying until Friday an Armed Services Committee hearing for Wilson. Previously scheduled for today, the session would have given Wilson an opportunity to alter his previous testimony. There were signs he would do so.

Wilson's name was omitted when President Eisenhower sent to the Senate yesterday a list of eight cabinet and one subcabinet appointees which Republicans had hoped would get immediate approval.

Sen. Morse (Ind.-Ore.), who blocked the confirmation move with an objection, said he was ready to vote today on the nominees. Barring unexpected lengthy talk, they might all be confirmed by nightfall. Morse was able to block action yesterday because the situation required suspension of Senate rules which say nomi-

No Radical Change Expected in Korea

Eisenhower's Aim Seen Concerned in Unity of Free Forces

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The basic principles set up by President Eisenhower to guide his administration appeared today to rule out, at least in the immediate future, any radical new strategy for United Nations forces in the Korean war.

His emphasis on the dangers to be found in discord among the allies and his repeated stress on the need for unity among the free nations seemed to offer this reassurance to uneasy allied governments.

These governments, particularly those of allied western European nations, became concerned about the policies of an Eisenhower administration last fall when Republican campaign orators made an issue of ending the Korean war. There was apprehension that the U. S. under Eisenhower might undertake moves which would lead to a broadening of the war.

Stresses Moral Pressure

Similarly there has been concern abroad about a policy of "liberation" for Russian satellite countries. Incoming Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has recently reaffirmed intention to develop such a policy, using moral and political pressures.

Eisenhower did not spell out in his inaugural address how he intends to tackle either the Korean stalemate, the liberation policy problem or any other specific issue of foreign policy. He did make clear, however, that he intends to do all in his power to preserve and develop the unity of allied nations and of the whole free world.

"The strength of all free peoples lies in unity," he declared, "their danger in discord." He said the U. S. has the responsibility of leadership to develop this unity.

General's Wife Dies

San Francisco, Jan. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Alys S. Trapnell, 46, wife of Brig. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, died today in Letterman Army Hospital, 36 hours after she was pulled from the surf at the beach. Hospital authorities notified the coroner's office of Mrs. Trapnell's death, but gave no cause. A coroner's investigation was ordered.

Trumans' Farewell to Washington

Now an ex-President, Harry Truman leaves Washington for home with his wife, Bess, and daughter, Margaret. Absent is familiar presidential seal on back platform of presidential car which President Eisenhower gave his predecessor permission to use for the trip to Missouri. (AP Wirephoto)

Kaplan New President of CofC for '53

Adrian Kaplan was elected as president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce for 1953 at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday night. The three vice-presidents elected were Maynard Mizel, Lawrence Quilty and Clarence H. Buddenhagen. Elmer A. Rylance was named treasurer.

Kaplan is a principal of the Kaplan Furniture Company 66-68 North Front street. He has long been active in civic affairs and is a member of the Lions Club. He was recently elected to the Chamber board, but had previously served a full term from 1949 to 1951.

After making the committee's nominations, Joseph F. Deegan, who served as chairman of the committee, read four specific suggested changes in the procedure of electing officers to make it more effective and workable. As the changes would require amendments to the By-laws they will be studied and presented to the membership for consideration later.

New Directors Attend

The new directors attending their first meeting included J. Ellis Briggs, Albert C. Flanagan, N. Jansen Fowler, Adrian Kaplan, Victor H. Roth and Clyde E. Wonderly, Jr. Harry Rigby, Jr., who had been elected, declined the office, expressing the fact that he had served nearly two full terms in the recent past and in his opinion the reelection of directors,

Tax Groups Against TV ForSchooling

A proposed educational television network which recently drew an offer of free facilities on Overlook Mountain, Woodstock, was given further hearing at Albany today, and was opposed by a taxpayers group.

The Associated Press said a private taxpayers' group opposing the Board of Regents proposal declared that "any money spent for education should be spent in the schools."

A 15-member commission was created by the 1952 legislature and appointed by the governor to study the feasibility of the proposal for broadcasting educational, non-commercial programs across the state.

Would Donate Site

Wilbert Newgold, of Woodstock and New York, last week offered the state a tract of land including buildings on the summit of Overlook free of charge if such a network is authorized.

Garth A. Shoemaker, president of the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, Inc., at the Albany hearing, assailed the Regents plan at the state commission's third hearing on the controversial proposal. The commission heard witnesses in Buffalo Jan. 6, and in New York last Wednesday and Thursday. No further hearings are scheduled.

13 Red Leaders Are Found Guilty by Jury

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—A federal court and jury found all 13 Communist leaders guilty of conspiracy.

The jury of six men and six women reached a verdict after receiving the case last Thursday. The trial lasted eight and one-half months.

All of the Communist leaders were charged with conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the U. S. government.

Volunteers Fired

Rio de Janiero (AP)—From 3,000 applicants, Brazil's federal price and supply commission investigated and picked 400 "trustworthy" volunteers to check on merchants' prices. But it is not going to ask for more volunteers, and has already discharged the 400 it had. A goodly percentage of the 400, commission chief Benjamin Cabello said, already had made the rounds of merchants, collecting in advance for favorable reports.

Wrong 'Taxi'

Detroit (AP)—A 40-year-old car washer lurched up to a police scout car, got in and ordered, "The Clinton Hotel." Instead he got a free "taxi" ride to jail where he was charged with drunkeness. Later in court the judge gave him his choice—$10 or 10 days.

HIGHWAY LEAPFROG—Impossible though it seems, no one was seriously hurt in this deadly looking pile-up near Waco, Texas. The Mercury coupe on top of the pile collided with a truck, and leapfrogged onto what once was a Chrysler. Captain Robert S. Hammer, who was driving the Chrysler, escaped with only a broken foot. James C. Land, top man in the pile-up, was only cut and bruised.

Savings Executives To Attend Conference

E. Frank Flanagan, president of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston, will attend the 1953 management conference of the Savings Association League of New York state, to be held January 23-24 at Roosevelt Hotel in New York city.

The two-day convention will be devoted to discussion of management problems confronting savings association executives, including administration of savings funds and investments, and an analysis of income tax regulations. Notables who will address the gathering include Dr. William L. Husband, general manager, Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., Washington, D. C.; Francis E. Jasper, partner, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., New York; and W. W. Townsend, of the investment counseling firm of Townsend-Skinner Co., Inc., New York.

Mr. Flanagan will be accompanied on his trip to the conference by Mrs. Flanagan and the following members of his association: Jay W. Rifenbary, vice president; H. Van Wyck Darrow, cashier and assistant to the president; William R. Stall, assistant cashier, and mortgage loan officer; N. Jansen Fowler, attorney; Alfred D. Ronder, director.

Your Income Tax

By Francis J. Kelly
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Washington — Government experts will do the bulk of your income tax arithmetic for you if you are eligible to use Form 1040 A.

This single sheet, amber colored optional tax return form contains a list of simple questions such as your name, address, employer, number of dependents, and wages. You answer the questions and the bureau of Internal Revenue will figure out your tax, sending you a bill for any amount not covered by withholding, or a refund, as the case may be.

Strict rules govern who may use this form, however.

You may use a 1040 A if your total income was less than $5,000 and consisted entirely of wages subject to withholding, or of such wages and not more than $100 total of other wages, dividends and interest.

When to Use Long Form

But you will have to use the more complicated Form 1040 return if you had any income from other sources, such as rents, annuities, royalties or a business; or if you claim status as the head of a household.

In reckoning your tax, the revenue bureau uses a table which takes account of your exemptions ($600 each) and allows about 10 per cent of your total income as a deduction in place of charitable contributions, taxes, interest, extraordinary medical-expenses, etc. If your deductions run more than 10 per cent of your income, it will pay you to use long-form 1040 and itemize them.

If you are buying a home, and the interest payments on your mortgage run high, it may pay you to itemize them and other allowable deductions on the long-form. It is impossible to do so on form 1040 A or on 1040 when used as a short-form. The same holds good if you sustain a big loss from fire, flood, or theft, or have large medical expenses.

Choosing Your Form

There are a couple of other reasons why you may find it desirable to use form 1040 in place of 1040 A.

You may have received reimburses out-of-town travel expenses, which your employer reported as part of your income. You aren't required to pay taxes on an expense account, so you take this deduction on 1040, used either as a long-form (four pages) or short-form (single sheet).

Or, it may be that you want to know right away the amount of your refund or tax due, without waiting to figure it. In this case, short-form 1040 is your choice.

When you use short-form 1040 you find your tax from a table and write it in yourself. Long-form 1040 requires you to make your own computations. The long-form is required of all taxpayers whose income is $5,000 or more.

Who Can File Jointly

In general, married couples can save money by making joint returns. Be sure to put the name of both husband and wife at the top of the return, and both must sign it. If you make a joint return using Form 1040 A, the revenue bureau will figure your tax by both the joint and separate methods and bill your for the smaller amount.

You are entitled to make a joint return even if you didn't get married until Dec. 31, 1952, or if your spouse died anytime in 1952. But if you were divorced or legally separated on or before Dec. 31, you are considered single for the entire year.

Personal exemptions are important. Each cuts $600 off your taxable income. Each taxpayer is entitled to one for himself, his wife, and each dependent close relative. The taxpayer gets an additional exemption if he is over 65, or blind; and a total of three exemptions if he is both blind and over 65. Those same extra exemptions apply to the taxpayer's wife.

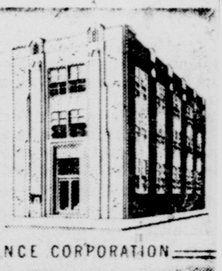

You can't claim an exemption for a dependent if his or her income for 1952 was $600 or more.

State Seeks Plan On Car Insurance

Garden City, N. Y., Jan. 21 (AP)—The State Motor Vehicle Commissioner told insurance agents today the state was looking for a "workable automobile liability insurance plan which will keep government out of the insurance business."

James R. MacDuff said Superintendent of Insurance Alfred J. Bohlinger, private insurance men and top Republican legislators were studying ways to require all motorists to carry insurance, in line with Gov. Dewey's recommendation in his annual message.

MacDuff told a regional luncheon meeting of the Mutual Insurance Agents Association in a prepared speech that the new legislation also would "keep politics out of rate-making."

"Why should a single motorist be able to escape full responsibility for his acts?" he asked. "Why should the insured motorist run the risk of financial loss at the hands of an uninsured highway user?"

Motorists over 21 now must take out $10,000-$20,000 personal liability and $5,000 property coverage—or otherwise prove financial responsibility—after their first accident resulting in death or personal injury or $50 property damage. But all minor drivers must be insured.

Many insurance companies have criticized mandatory auto insurance on the ground it would cause rates to become a political issue and possibly put the state into the insurance business.

Sutton Pal Pleads Guilty to Conspiracy

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Harvey Bistany, a former associate of bank robber Willie Sutton, has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in connection with a $31,000 Brooklyn post office robbery.

Bistany, 50, entered a guilty plea yesterday in Brooklyn Federal Court.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Charles J. Butera said Bistany will testify tomorrow at the trial of Nathan Mennen, 40, a suspended New York city detective indicted in connection with the same robbery.

Bistany, who was brought here from New Bedford, Mass., where he has been doing time for robbery, and Mennen were indicted on seven counts charging robbery of a Brooklyn postal station in April, 1951. Bistany was permitted yesterday to plead to a single conspiracy count.

Two other persons named in the indictment also have pleaded guilty.

To Start P-TA Building

Chicago, Jan. 21 (AP)—Ground will be broken today on Chicago's near north side for a $750,000 headquarters building of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Cost of the new building, which is expected to be completed by the summer of 1954, is being met with contributions from Parent-Teacher Associations and members. About $500,000 has been contributed.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—There isn't as much Dagmar as there used to be.

She just decided she was "too much of a good thing." So now she's in a new economy-size package.

And if the Republican administration is looking for advice on how to trim down figures, Dagmar stands ready to help. Deciding her own blonde abundance was outgrowing the nation's television screens, she has trimmed her weight a full 20 pounds.

The new Dagmar, a canny lass who skyrocketed her income from $25 for her first video show to $7,500 a week for personal appearance tours, is positively slinky now instead of buxom.

"Honey"—she calls everybody that—"too much weight stymies my mind," she said. "The fat was getting around my brain. Now I can think faster. But I'm lucky. When I diet the weight comes off all over me. I feel so little."

Chest Still the Same

She said, however, that whittling down her shape hadn't hurt her celebrated chest expansion—42½ inches normal, 45 expanded. Nor does she feel that her new svelte shape should stir any alarm in two potential blonde rivals—Zsa Zsa Gabor and Marilyn Monroe.

"I never did feud with anybody," she said mildly. "The country is so big there is room for all three of us—even when I breathe deeply.

"But Marilyn sure was smart to get her picture on that calendar. People have to look at a calendar to see what day it is. That way they get to see more of her."

Dagmar portrays a dumb blonde, but in real life she is about as dumb as an Albino fox. She is a big, breezy, cheerful gal—as informal as a backyard clothesline hung with laundry.

"Honey, I'll tell you anything except my age and my weight—they both fluctuate too much," she said, as we sat sipping coffee in her penthouse apartment on Central Park South with her small slender husband, Danny Dayton, the comedian.

Even He Doesn't Know

"I don't even know her weight," said Danny.

"If you ever tried to peek at those scales, I'd knock you right out of the bathroom," replied Dagmar cheerfully—and she could. "Every woman has a right to one secret from her husband. And that's mine."

Everything about Dagmar is big—"except Danny." She has a 40-by-24-foot living room. On one wall is a large oil portrait of her, painted by a fan—a barber by trade. To it Danny pinned a state fair blue ribbon that says "Champion Bull."

Dagmar doesn't believe any woman who wants to lose weight should follow her own Spartan diet.

"Honey, I just made it up myself," she said. "For a combination breakfast and lunch I have coffee and two hardboiled eggs. No salt on the eggs—I just take the shells off.

"Then late in the evening I have either steak, roast beef or liver with some stewed tomatoes and coffee. It's a stupid menu... Probably kill most girls. But I'm strong enought to take it."

Hates to be Exact

For relaxation she likes water sports "or anything where you don't have to be exact. That's why I like reading and don't like golf. It's too exact. Imagine following a little round ball all that distance just to put it in a little round hole in the ground."

Despite her profitable personal appearance tours Dagmar would like to have another television program to show off her new streamlined figure. But a good TV format—like a good man—is hard to find.

"If it's cultural, I'll go for it," she said, adding modestly:

"I have nothing but a brain really."

VFW Solves Problem Without Salary Slash

Buffalo, Jan. 21—A week ago, the board of the Town of Conklin, Broome county, voted to knock 50 cents off the annual salary of the town highway superintendent.

Town officials explained that the payroll sheet used in bookkeeping machines was too narrow to accommodate the six figures of the $4,598.50 salary previously set for highway superintendent John W. Baker.

The Buffalo Courier-Express headlined a story about the pay cut, "they could have raised it 50 cents."

Yesterday, this letter was sent from nearby Springville to the clerk of the Town of Conklin:

"Several members of Felton-Burns Post 5260, Veterans of Foreign Wars * * * are taking the following means of remedying the situation:

"Instead of seeing Mr. Baker take a 50-cent cut in his 1953 salary * * * a collection was taken up. Enclosed you will find a money order for one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50). Please add the amount to the $4,598.50 salary of Mr. Baker, making Mr. Baker's salary $4,600."

The letter was signed "yours in comradeship, Roderick Simpson, quartermaster." The Felton-Burns Post is in nearby Springville.

To Ban British Fishermen

London, Jan. 21 (AP)—Food-short Britain today faced a new threat to one of its favorite items of diet—fish. The Russians say they are going to ban British fishermen from a nine-mile belt of Soviet coastal waters in the Barents Sea area. These waters are a prime haunt of plaice and haddock, both popular fish in Britain's table. The ban was announced yesterday by a foreign office spokesman, who said the Soviets have denounced a 23-year-old fishing treaty. The Barents Sea, an arm of the Arctic Ocean, lies north of European Russia, Finland and Norway.

Killed in Car Crash

Georgetown, S. C., Jan. 21 (AP)—A woman was killed and three other persons injured yesterday in a three-car collision in dense fog four miles north of here on Highway 17. The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Harriet Mirrer Richman, 23, of (1080 Ocean View avenue), Brooklyn, N. Y. She died instantly of head injuries, Coroner J. A. Broach said. Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prince, also of Brooklyn, who were riding in the same car, and Vincent Sperance of Yonkers, N. Y., who was driving the second automobile.

13 in Bus Injured At Weehawken Slip

Weehawken, N. J., Jan. 21 (AP)—A Public Service bus, skidding on the Weehawken ferry approach, smashed through an iron fence and plunged about 20 feet into a railroad cut yesterday, injuring 13 persons.

The rear of the bus clung to the edge of the overpass. There was no panic as the passengers awaited rescue.

Fourteen persons, including the driver, were on the bus when it crashed. One passenger was hurt seriously. Four others also were hospitalized.

The bus was making a 90-degree turn when the accident happened. The downhill road leads to the ferry terminal of the West Shore Division of the New York Central Railroad.

First the bus slammed into a stone wall broadside. Then it swerved to the left side of the road, broke through the heavy iron guard rail and smashed nose first into the railroad cut near the West Shore tracks.

Accountant Speaker Sees No Depression

More than 100 members and guests attended the dinner and meeting of Mid-Hudson Chapter National Association of Cost Accountants, at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie Monday night.

The guest speaker was David B. Fluegelman, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Fluegelman, who has been associated with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company for 21 years, spoke on, The Business Outlook for 1953.

In the course of his talk, Fluegelman advised the audience that he anticipates a leveling-off of prices within the next year, with a slight recession as a result. However, Fluegelman emphasized that he sees no indications of any wide-spread depression for some time to come.

The next meeting of Mid-Hudson Chapter will be held Feb. 16 at the Nelson House, when the speaker will be William H. Franklin, vice-president of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill.

Motorists over 21 now must take out $10,000-$20,000 personal liability and $5,000 property coverage—or otherwise prove financial responsibility—after their first accident resulting in death or personal injury or $50 property damage. But all minor drivers must be insured.

The Buffalo Courier-Express headlined a story about the pay cut, "they could have raised it 50 cents."

Yesterday, this letter was sent from nearby Springville to the clerk of the Town of Conklin:

"Several members of Felton-Burns Post 5260, Veterans of Foreign Wars * * * are taking the following means of remedying the situation:

"Instead of seeing Mr. Baker take a 50-cent cut in his 1953 salary * * * a collection was taken up. Enclosed you will find a money order for one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50). Please add the amount to the $4,598.50 salary of Mr. Baker, making Mr. Baker's salary $4,600."

The letter was signed "yours in comradeship, Roderick Simpson, quartermaster." The Felton-Burns Post is in nearby Springville.

To Ban British Fishermen

London, Jan. 21 (AP)—Food-short Britain today faced a new threat to one of its favorite items of diet—fish. The Russians say they are going to ban British fishermen from a nine-mile belt of Soviet coastal waters in the Barents Sea area. These waters are a prime haunt of plaice and haddock, both popular fish in Britain's table. The ban was announced yesterday by a foreign office spokesman, who said the Soviets have denounced a 23-year-old fishing treaty. The Barents Sea, an arm of the Arctic Ocean, lies north of European Russia, Finland and Norway.

Killed in Car Crash

Georgetown, S. C., Jan. 21 (AP)—A woman was killed and three other persons injured yesterday in a three-car collision in dense fog four miles north of here on Highway 17. The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Harriet Mirrer Richman, 23, of (1080 Ocean View avenue), Brooklyn, N. Y. She died instantly of head injuries, Coroner J. A. Broach said. Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prince, also of Brooklyn, who were riding in the same car, and Vincent Sperance of Yonkers, N. Y., who was driving the second automobile.

13 in Bus Injured At Weehawken Slip

Weehawken, N. J., Jan. 21 (AP)—A Public Service bus, skidding on the Weehawken ferry approach, smashed through an iron fence and plunged about 20 feet into a railroad cut yesterday, injuring 13 persons.

The rear of the bus clung to the edge of the overpass. There was no panic as the passengers awaited rescue.

Fourteen persons, including the driver, were on the bus when it crashed. One passenger was hurt seriously. Four others also were hospitalized.

The bus was making a 90-degree turn when the accident happened. The downhill road leads to the ferry terminal of the West Shore Division of the New York Central Railroad.

First the bus slammed into a stone wall broadside. Then it swerved to the left side of the road, broke through the heavy iron guard rail and smashed nose first into the railroad cut near the West Shore tracks.

Accountant Speaker Sees No Depression

More than 100 members and guests attended the dinner and meeting of Mid-Hudson Chapter National Association of Cost Accountants, at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie Monday night.

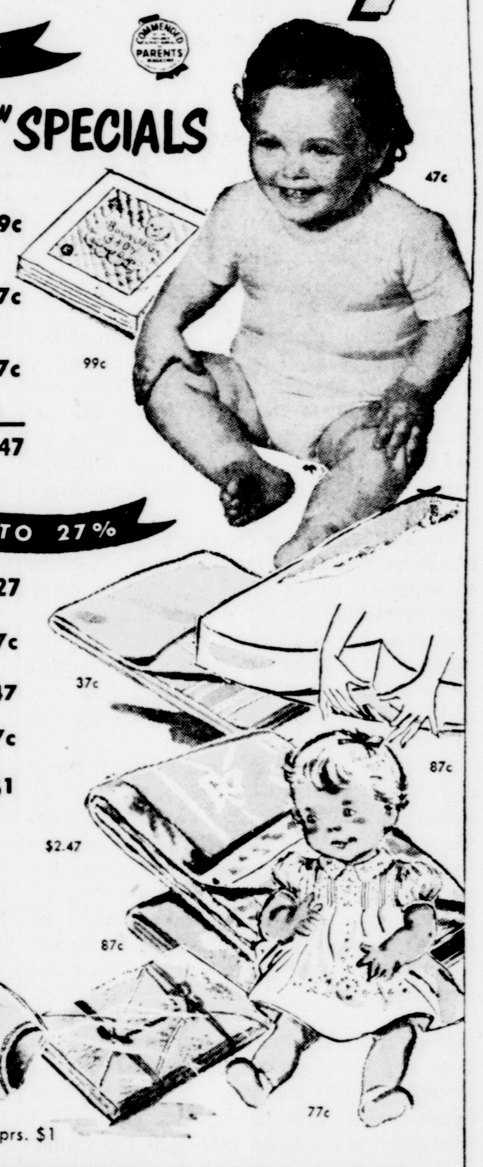

The guest speaker was David B. Fluegelman, president of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Fluegelman, who has been associated with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company for 21 years, spoke on, The Business Outlook for 1953.

In the course of his talk, Fluegelman advised the audience that he anticipates a leveling-off of prices within the next year, with a slight recession as a result. However, Fluegelman emphasized that he sees no indications of any wide-spread depression for some time to come.

The next meeting of Mid-Hudson Chapter will be held Feb. 16 at the Nelson House, when the speaker will be William H. Franklin, vice-president of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill.

EISENHOWER'S FIXED PRINCIPLES

President Eisenhower in his inaugural address named abhorring war as one of nine guiding principles and promised continued aid to all free nations willing to contribute their fair share to the common defense against Communist aggression.

But he warned that we shall never try to placate an aggressor by the false and wicked bargain of trading honor for security. For in the final choice a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains.

The President's dominant theme was foreign policy and America's world leadership. He spoke out to assure allies abroad that the United States stands with them, without imperialistic designs. He also took note of problems at home, but said the question of peace is supreme.

He based his course on the following nine rules of conduct:

To unite with other free nations for strength.

Never to placate an aggressor.

To place duty before comfort.

Intimidate no other people.

To help those who help themselves.

To encourage productivity and trade.

To strengthen regional groupings of free peoples.

To recognize the equality of all races and all peoples.

To make the United Nations work.

"By their observance," he said of these principles, "an earth of peace may become not a vision but a fact.

"This hope—this supreme aspiration—must rule the way we live."

INFORMAL ATTIRE

Winter and summer, for thirty-two of his sixty-eight years, Roy Willey of Spokane, Washington, has worn only a pair of shorts and a long beard to protect him from the elements. In all that time he maintins he has not had a single cold and his health has improved to the point where his condition belies his years.

Doctors who have examined this disciple of abbreviated attire maintain that his years of exposure to all kinds of weather have toughened his skin and developed a layer of insulating fat which helps him withstand the cold. His unconventional garb has resulted in several bouts with the police, however, and he receives countless letters asking him to "reform."

The man who must come to work every day, bundled down with suit, scarf, topcoat, overshoes and gloves may be just a bit envious of this non-conformist. But one good fresh winter breeze is enough to blow the envy away. Roy Willey may have convinced himself that living with a minimum of clothes is healthy and wise but he is not likely to win many followers. At least not until summer.

Both the television and automobile industries are shooting for production marks of six million units this year. Here is a potent figure to help explain to people tied behind Iron Curtain countries just what the United States can do.

USEFUL CHICAGO CITIZEN

Charles E. Merriam, who died recently, did more to advance good government than almost any other American. Long a professor of government at the University of Chicago, he taught his students the secrets of public administration, and showed them why cities, counties, states and the nation sometimes go wrong.

Nor was he the impractical theorist that many think all professors must be. He held his own in the rough and tumble of Chicago politics, serving several terms as alderman when an honest man could gain the post only by being as hardboiled as his corrupt opponents. In 1911 he ran for mayor as a Republican, and it took the redoubtable Carter Harrison, five times mayor and never defeated, to beat him.

Later he helped Presidents Hoover and Roosevelt in various capacities. In 1935 he was one of three authors of the plan for reorganizing the executive branch of the government. His contributions to his nation outlive him.

Checking accounts are handy things. They could be improved, of course, if the banks would show the same balance as do the check writers.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE CZAR'S WORTH

The anti-Semitism of Joe Stalin is nothing novel. He displayed it during the Hitler-Stalin alliance when he dismissed Litvinov because he was a Jew.

Why does Stalin propagandize his hatred for the Jews at the present time? There is much speculation on the subject. Some believe that it is done to please the Arabs, who are not likely to be taken in because Moslems are a religious people, are uncompromising in their love for God and the prophet, Mohammed. They will not risk association with the arch-atheist who competes with God, who has ikons of himself carried in parades, who demands adoration and worship of himself, who insists that he is omniscient and that his decisions on all questions from linguistics to philosophy, from party politics to world affairs, are perfect, beyond discussion and beyond doubt. The Arabs will not fall for that.

Some believe that Stalin is having domestic troubles and that his throne is endangered. There seems to be no evidence of that, although the Korean War has been a failure in the sense that it gets nowhere and the conquest of Asia has been arrested.

Also, the fact that he has indicated who his successor is to be must have stifled the ambitions of others. Yet, it cannot be that in the privacy of the Politburo and the intrigues of the Kremlin it has not been known for a long time that Malenkov was the favorite. He had for years been Stalin's secretary and heir-apparent and beloved even as a son. Whatever opposition to Malenkov appeared in one form or another must have been liquidated either by breaking the spirit of a man or killing him off.

It seems to me from a 36-year study of the Bolsheviks at work that what Stalin is beating up is an increased hatred against the United States. Shouting about "Wall Street" has become tiresome to those who have to listen to it. And the charge that we throw germs out of airplanes was a nine days' wonder.

And then the election went very wrong from Stalin's standpoint. No longer will the State Department blow hot and act cold and protect American Communists and spies in the United Nations or within the State Department itself. Certainly, nothing of that sort can be expected from John Foster Dulles, who started off by asking the FBI to investigate his own record as a prelude to a clean sweep of the department. And Herbert Brownell Jr., will not put blindfolds on the Department of Justice when Communist or subversive cases come before it. And it is likely that the FBI will come into its own and will be respected as to its authority. Stalin knows that when his spy, Arthur Adams, escaped from the United States, it was not because of the FBI's unawareness of the scoundrel's activities in this country.

My guess, no better or worse than anyone else's, is that Stalin is aiming at the United States, whipping up a fear that certain Soviet citizens are acting not only as American spies but as American murderers. In a word, what he asserts is that the United States has actually penetrated the Kremlin, the holy of holies of the Communist world. And that the United States has plotted with pretended Communists to murder all the leaders of the party.

What Russians? What Czechs? What Hungarians? What are their names? There Stalin is in difficulties. So he calls them, "they." And the "they" are Jews. That has been the "they" whenever a tyrant required a scapegoat or a whipping boy. He has had many examples and many predecessors in the use of this device.

By picking Jewish doctors he frightens everybody. If America has penetrated Russia via Jewish doctors, anybody who employs a Jewish doctor—and they happen to be the best in Soviet Russia—may be killed! That shows how bad the United States can be.

A great many Jews will be killed in this new campaign. Some of them are important scientists and scholars.

What now, Dr. Albert Einstein! Why not write a letter to Joe Stalin like the one you wrote to Judge Irving Kaufman about clemency for the Rosenbergs? Why not, Dr. Einstein and Abba Hillel Silver! Why not write Stalin pleading for mercy for innocent people!

That Body of Yours

MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SLUGGISHNESS

Most of us are familiar with the symptoms caused by overactivity of the thyroid gland in front part of the neck. This overactivity means that too much thyroid juice is being manufactured and poured into the blood. Too much thyroid extract causes all the body processes to work too rapidly, resulting in rapid heart beat, bulging of the eyes, trembling of the hands and loss of weight (goiter.) The condition is called hyperthyroidism.

The opposite condition of hyperthyroidism is hypothyroidism where the thyroid gland is underactive, does not manufacture enough thyroid extract, and the individual is slow in thought and movements of the body and is likely to become overweight.

While the conditions hyperthyroidism and hypothyroidism can be recognized usually, particularly when the metabolism test is made; that shows the degree of over-activity or under-activity present. When the degree is only slightly above or below normal, it may pass unnoticed. Thus overactivity of thyroid may be so slight that the patient is thought to be just naturally quick mentally and physically or, if the underactivity of thyroid is slight, he may be considered naturaly slow mentally and physically but, as the saying goes, able to get by in a crowd.

It would appear that underactivity of the thyroid gland (hypothyroidism) is not uncommon as we grow older and our family and friends may feel that we are just "slowing up" because of our age.

In Geriatrics—treatment of the elderly—Drs. S. T. Kimble and E. J. Streglitz, whom I've mentioned before, state that hypothyroidism may be responsible for many symptoms attributed to aging in the elderly. Physical fatigue, mental apathy or lack of awareness, inability to stand the cold, and dryness of the skin and hair are common complaints associated with low basal metabolism.

Now when overactivity (hyperthyroidism) is present and too much thyroid extract is being manufactured, it is necessary to remove all or part of the thyroid gland by surgery, X-ray. However, when underactivity (hypothyroidism) is present, and not enough thyroid juice is being manufactured, all the treatment necessary is to give thyroid extract (obtained from animals) to get more activity by the body processes.

"From one grain or less per day of dried thyroid extract, dosage is increased gradually until symptoms are relieved and the basal metabolism returns to normal."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Inside fact about the confirmation fight of Charles E. Wilson is that Senator Byrd of Virginia telphoned Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, one week before the hearings, in order to warn of the law which might bar Wilson from becoming secretary of defense.

Byrd did this as a friendly gesture to Eisenhower, thinking that Eisenhower would want to thresh the matter out with Wilson in advance.

Eisenhower's headquarters was then alerted by Senator Saltonstall and Wilson was called in and advised on how to handle the Senate hearing.

However, Wilson's appearance before the committee flabbergasted not only senators, but Ike advisers who had briefed him. Particularly surprising was his statement that he had planned to handle General Motors' contracts as secretary of defense. Also surprising was his attitude toward the senators. He acted as if he were doing them a favor by appearing before them. At times he was postively rude. Particularly antagonizing were his sermons on his own integrity and the implication that he belonged to the ruling class.

Senator Saltonstall, whose family dates back to the Pilgrim fathers, is a mild-mannered, tolerant gentleman, but even he did not relish Wilson's behavior.

One of the most emphatic of the senators expressing doubts about Wilson was another Republican, Duff of Pennsylvania, former Governor of that state. Duff pointed out that the law is the law and that every county, city and state has a law similar to the federal law making it illegal for a government official to handle contracts with companies in which he has an ownership. Senator Cooper of Kentucky, another Republican, also expressed his disapproval. Cooper disagreed slightly with Duff, but only on a technicality.

Pyramiding G.M. Profits

Meanwhile, three other factors have disturbed senators about the three General Motors men in the cabinet, plus one in the "little cabinet:"

A hitherto confidential report on how General Motors pyramided defense profits. Prepared by a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, the report shows that General Motors farmed out contracts to one subsidiary which would add a profit, then to another subsidiary which added a second profit, until sometimes three profits were added into one contract, all at the expense of the taxpayer.

General Motors has been among the leaders of defense suppliers who want a 12 per cent profit on all government contracts, instead of the present 6 per cent.

A General Motors man, H. R. Boyer, was responsible for a $68,000,000 order on vertical turret lathes for the air force going to General Motors, when another smaller company, the Bullard Company of Bridgeport, Conn., bid one-third of this price. The latter scandal was the object of an investigation by the House committee probing military waste after this column revealed the facts in February, 1952. At that time Republican congressmen were extremely critical of the manner in which General Motors wasted several million dollars.

The facts then developed, which are now being reviewed by senators, showed that Boyer, chairman of the government's Aircraft Production Board and a General Motors official, had urged military procurement officials to approve a contract with the Fisher Body Division of General Motors for 757 vertical turret lathes, despite the fact that Fisher Bodies had no experience in this field. The price to be paid was $90,600 per lathe, although the Bullard Company, an experienced concern, charged the government only $38,000 for the same lathe.

In addition, defense officials working in cooperation with Boyer agreed to "rent" General Motors all but 80 out of some 570 units of tooling machinery needed to fulfill the contract. Later it turned out that the units were not actually rented, but a free gift to the company.

Under cross-examination by Congressman Paul Cunningham of Iowa, a Republican, Assistant Air Secretary R. L. Gilpatric admitted that General Motors official Boyer "personally recommended to me that the best way to get on with this job from a time standpoint" was to give it to Fisher Bodies.

One machine-tool "expert," Swan E. Bergstrom, replying to questions by Congressman Hebert of Louisiana, as to why General Motors was to be paid $90,600 each for the same turret lathe which other companies were selling for $38,000, said it was perfectly normal for Fisher to charge the government 2½ times as much, because Fisher was "inexperienced" in making machine tools.

"Does that answer your question?" asked the witness.

"It's as clear as mud," replied Congressman Hebert, who indicated later that he still can't understand why General Motors' inexperience should cost twice as much as experience.

While the Senate balked over confirming General Motors' Charlie Wilson as secretary of defense, another General Motors man passed his Senate inspection in a breeze. He is the new postmaster general, Arthur Summerfield.

The public and press were barred from the hearing, and the official minutes were marked "confidential." However, this column can report what happened.

Summerfield frankly admitted that he still held an interest in three General Motor agencies—the Summerville Chevrolet Company at Flint, Friendly Chevrolet Company at Grand Rapids, and Davison Chevrolet Company of Clio, Michigan.

"I retain my holdings in each of these companies because they are closed corporations, but I have removed myself from the payrolls of two of them. I never did take a salary from the smaller one," Summerfield explained. "These are closed corporations, my son and I owning one of them, my son-in-law and myself owning another and one of my oldest employees is now my partner in the third one.

"I have resigned from two additional companies," he added, "these being the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company and the American Motorists Insurance Company . . . I have a few real estate holdings, a few investments and the automobile business."

The new post office boss modestly claimed that he believed himself "qualified to do an acceptable job as your postmaster general," though he acknowledged: "I know little about the department other than what knowledge I have acquired over the last two weeks."

Summerfield was escorted into the committee room by Michigan's flowing white-haired Sen. Homer Ferguson, who declared ringingly: "I can vouch for his (Summerfield's) loyalty, honesty and good reputation."

However, Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina was more interested in how Summerfield got started in the automobile business. Now reportedly the biggest Chevrolet dealer in the world, Summerfield explained he got his start after the crash of 1929.

"I had spoken to the assistant sales manager of Chevrolet one evening at a dinner party and said that some day when there was a Chevrolet Agency available in that area I would like to be considered," he recalled. "Then one day he told me, 'I understand you are interested in an agency.' I said yes. He said, 'come on down to Chevrolet and bring your pen.' I went down . . . and they gave it to me."

Thus Summerfield was confirmed to the cabinet about as easily as he got started selling Chevrolets.

The Truce Stone

A menhir (tall stone) near Drache, Touraine, France, that has a hole in the center was formerly used as an Armistice Stone. No truce was valid until the opposing tribal chiefs sealed it by shaking hands through the opening in the menhir troue. At the present time, young couples who have quarreled celebrate their reconciliation by tossing a rose at each other through the opening in the stone.

Inaugural Speech Has Peace Theme but Lets World Know U. S. Ready to Oppose Tyrants

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 20—An unforgettable inaugural . . . the transfer of authority solemnly and yet with a spontaneous cheer . . . echoes of a triumphant election conducted by the people freely . . . few places on earth where such freedom prevails.

The outgoing President participating and showing loyalty to free institutions ... the new President taking the oath ... "to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution" . . . a kiss first for the First Lady and then a prayer of dedication.

Now the inaugural address . . . the people packed in the streets before him . . . the sun casting its warm glow . . . the words coming clear over the great esplanade on the east front of the Capitol . . . heard also around the world through radio . . . the ceremony itself seen by millions through television . . . in the presence of the Senate, the House, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps.

A message of hope, of high purpose and of resolution. One excerpt tells it all—the way to inevitable peace:

"To produce this unity, to meet the challenge of our time, destiny has laid upon our country the responsibility of the free world's leadership. So it is proper that we assure our friends once again that, in the discharge of this responsibility, we Americans know and observe the difference between world leadership and imperialism; between firmness and truculence; between a thoughfully calculated goal and spasmodic reaction to the stimulus of emergencies.

"We wish our friends the world over to know this above all: we face the threat—not with dread and confusion—but with confidence and conviction.

The applause rings out.... for those few words proclaim the new policy—"a thoughfully calculated goal" and not the opportunism of "spasmodic reaction" to recurrent crises reminding us of our lack of firmness to meet the first crisis. Never, he adds, must we be "proven guilty of the one capital offense against freedom, a lack of staunch faith."

The phrases are pregnant with meaning . . . implicit rather than explicit but penetrating thoughts just the same . . . especially significant sentences: "We must be ready to dare all for our country . . . We must be willing, individually and as a nation, to accept whatever sacrifices are required of us. . . . We must acquire proficiency in defense and display stamina of purpose."

Firmness, strength, steadfastness, courage, bravery . . . a readiness to face the bluff of the Russian tyrant with the moral force of our united peoples . . . the goal is clearly pointed out—the "winning of the peace."

Memories of other inaugurations. . . . Jan. 20, 1949, when Truman stood there humbly and without rancor . . . Jan. 20, 1945, when Franklin Roosevelt wasn't able to go to the Capitol but stood on the White House balcony . . . his face haggard and pale . . . his cheeks sunken as his son James lifted him to the pedestal to speak the inaugural message . . . less than ninety days later the President was dead.

Back to March 4, 1933, when the same man in vibrant phrases, with strength of voice and body, said "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Back to March 4, 1913, when Woodrow Wilson, with the finest phrases of them all—not a word written for him—spoke his message of inspiration as the Democrats took over for the first time since 1893....a span of twenty years, too.

Then, on March 4, 1921, when a Republican took over again.... Woodrow Wilson, victorious leader in World War 1 but not enfeebled ....unable to walk to the front of the Capitol....bidding his successor, Warren Harding, good luck in the Vice-President's room where the outgoing President had come to sign last-minute bills ....Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, the elder—arch foe of the League of Nations and of Wilson—standing near by....the cold look that Wilson gave him ...the polite, deferential Harding helping the broken Wilson to his feet.... Harding taking the oath a few minutes later alone on the east front, happy, hopeful, solemn.

Memories, too, of William Howard Taft as he said farewell at Union Station on March 4, 1913 . . . a reporter asking him what he would miss most. . . . "Ah," he said, "the power, the power of the Presidency."

Thoughts of Truman . . . the power he had . . . the power we bestow on all our Presidents . . . they little realize sometimes that it is temporary and transient . . . the true power is with the people to repudiate them or enshrine them . . . wondering if we will be patient, unpartisan, tolerant till we see.

Maybe we can be.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Jan. 20 — As the scramble for social position takes place again among a new swarm of vain, frivolous people, I recall Connie Wilson's grand indifference to protocol, publicity and rank.

She once bounded out of a reception exclaiming that she had a dipsomanic humming-bird at home and had to hurry back to give him his toddy. For a fact, she did. This humming bird had had a cold and Connie had nursed him well with a drop or two of bourbon in his nectar glass. But this set up an addiction and Connie kept him gently pickled for a long time. She always insisted that one day he got plastered, missed a pass at his perch, fell to the floor and busted his neck.

Connie was the wife of Lyle Wilson, the manager of the Washington Bureau of the United Press. I think she was loved more by more people than any other person I have ever known. She died last fall.

Back around the start of the New Deal, Connie glimpsed a big car pulling up at the curb before their little house, with a driver and flunkey in front and a grand dame, alone, in the back. The flunkey got out and started up the walk so Connie ran out waving and yelling "Hi!" She had a dust rag on her head and a broom in her hands. The footman handed her a card and got back in the car.

"Hi!" Connie yelled again. "Come on in and put your feet up! I am housecleaning and I need a drink."

The car drove away. Connie had never heard of the custom of dropping cards but she never took it up.

When the Roosevelts took the town, Connie was skeptical. Nothing quite like this descent had ever happened before although history tells of a wild scuffle around the White House in the first days of the Jackson administration.

The Roosevelts immediately set about building up a press claque by inviting batches of correspondents in to tear cold chicken on Sunday nights, and other ingratiating tricks. But the man or woman never lived who could patronize Connie so she just wouldn't go. She did attend a couple of formal dinners in the early days because, in his job, Lyle was almost bound in professional duty to make an appearance. Having a wife he couldn't go without her. He couldn't say she fell off a ladder painting the shutters and broke her leg because she would be down town next day and everybody knew her. So Connie went a few times and Missie Le Hand connived with her to slip them out a back way so they wouldn't have to sit two or three hours on hard, narrow undertakers' chairs listening to a mess of La Boca's new-found friends from some reform school singing mournful lore to the music of a jug band. They tried this too often, though. More and more fugitives would keep an eye on Connie after the finger-bowls and mint wafers and Connie found that she was leading an exodus. This could not go on so Connie quit going. Lyle didn't really have to.

Connie was a tall, leggedy girl with a laughing heart who had had the darnedest experiences, including a hitch as secretary to Barney Gallant, an interesting character who had dabbled in one of the Mexican revolutions around 1913 and was running a speakeasy restaurant and wild dance-parties at Webster Hall in New York. She was the daughter of a tough

President Eisenhower in his inaugural address named abhorring war as one of nine guiding principles and promised continued aid to all free nations willing to contribute their fair share to the common defense against Communist aggression.

But he warned that we shall never try to placate an aggressor by the false and wicked bargain of trading honor for security. For in the final choice a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains.

The President's dominant theme was foreign policy and America's world leadership. He spoke out to assure allies abroad that the United States stands with them, without imperialistic designs. He also took note of problems at home, but said the question of peace is supreme.

He based his course on the following nine rules of conduct:

To unite with other free nations for strength.

Never to placate an aggressor.

To place duty before comfort.

Intimidate no other people.

To help those who help themselves.

To encourage productivity and trade.

To strengthen regional groupings of free peoples.

To recognize the equality of all races and all peoples.

To make the United Nations work.

"By their observance," he said of these principles, "an earth of peace may become not a vision but a fact.

"This hope—this supreme aspiration—must rule the way we live."

INFORMAL ATTIRE

Winter and summer, for thirty-two of his sixty-eight years, Roy Willey of Spokane, Washington, has worn only a pair of shorts and a long beard to protect him from the elements. In all that time he maintins he has not had a single cold and his health has improved to the point where his condition belies his years.

Doctors who have examined this disciple of abbreviated attire maintain that his years of exposure to all kinds of weather have toughened his skin and developed a layer of insulating fat which helps him withstand the cold. His unconventional garb has resulted in several bouts with the police, however, and he receives countless letters asking him to "reform."

The man who must come to work every day, bundled down with suit, scarf, topcoat, overshoes and gloves may be just a bit envious of this non-conformist. But one good fresh winter breeze is enough to blow the envy away. Roy Willey may have convinced himself that living with a minimum of clothes is healthy and wise but he is not likely to win many followers. At least not until summer.

Both the television and automobile industries are shooting for production marks of six million units this year. Here is a potent figure to help explain to people tied behind Iron Curtain countries just what the United States can do.

USEFUL CHICAGO CITIZEN

Charles E. Merriam, who died recently, did more to advance good government than almost any other American. Long a professor of government at the University of Chicago, he taught his students the secrets of public administration, and showed them why cities, counties, states and the nation sometimes go wrong.

Nor was he the impractical theorist that many think all professors must be. He held his own in the rough and tumble of Chicago politics, serving several terms as alderman when an honest man could gain the post only by being as hardboiled as his corrupt opponents. In 1911 he ran for mayor as a Republican, and it took the redoubtable Carter Harrison, five times mayor and never defeated, to beat him.

Later he helped Presidents Hoover and Roosevelt in various capacities. In 1935 he was one of three authors of the plan for reorganizing the executive branch of the government. His contributions to his nation outlive him.

Checking accounts are handy things. They could be improved, of course, if the banks would show the same balance as do the check writers.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE CZAR'S WORTH

The anti-Semitism of Joe Stalin is nothing novel. He displayed it during the Hitler-Stalin alliance when he dismissed Litvinov because he was a Jew.

Why does Stalin propagandize his hatred for the Jews at the present time? There is much speculation on the subject. Some believe that it is done to please the Arabs, who are not likely to be taken in because Moslems are a religious people, are uncompromising in their love for God and the prophet, Mohammed. They will not risk association with the arch-atheist who competes with God, who has ikons of himself carried in parades, who demands adoration and worship of himself, who insists that he is omniscient and that his decisions on all questions from linguistics to philosophy, from party politics to world affairs, are perfect, beyond discussion and beyond doubt. The Arabs will not fall for that.

Some believe that Stalin is having domestic troubles and that his throne is endangered. There seems to be no evidence of that, although the Korean War has been a failure in the sense that it gets nowhere and the conquest of Asia has been arrested.

Also, the fact that he has indicated who his successor is to be must have stifled the ambitions of others. Yet, it cannot be that in the privacy of the Politburo and the intrigues of the Kremlin it has not been known for a long time that Malenkov was the favorite. He had for years been Stalin's secretary and heir-apparent and beloved even as a son. Whatever opposition to Malenkov appeared in one form or another must have been liquidated either by breaking the spirit of a man or killing him off.

It seems to me from a 36-year study of the Bolsheviks at work that what Stalin is beating up is an increased hatred against the United States. Shouting about "Wall Street" has become tiresome to those who have to listen to it. And the charge that we throw germs out of airplanes was a nine days' wonder.

And then the election went very wrong from Stalin's standpoint. No longer will the State Department blow hot and act cold and protect American Communists and spies in the United Nations or within the State Department itself. Certainly, nothing of that sort can be expected from John Foster Dulles, who started off by asking the FBI to investigate his own record as a prelude to a clean sweep of the department. And Herbert Brownell Jr., will not put blindfolds on the Department of Justice when Communist or subversive cases come before it. And it is likely that the FBI will come into its own and will be respected as to its authority. Stalin knows that when his spy, Arthur Adams, escaped from the United States, it was not because of the FBI's unawareness of the scoundrel's activities in this country.

My guess, no better or worse than anyone else's, is that Stalin is aiming at the United States, whipping up a fear that certain Soviet citizens are acting not only as American spies but as American murderers. In a word, what he asserts is that the United States has actually penetrated the Kremlin, the holy of holies of the Communist world. And that the United States has plotted with pretended Communists to murder all the leaders of the party.

What Russians? What Czechs? What Hungarians? What are their names? There Stalin is in difficulties. So he calls them, "they." And the "they" are Jews. That has been the "they" whenever a tyrant required a scapegoat or a whipping boy. He has had many examples and many predecessors in the use of this device.

By picking Jewish doctors he frightens everybody. If America has penetrated Russia via Jewish doctors, anybody who employs a Jewish doctor—and they happen to be the best in Soviet Russia—may be killed! That shows how bad the United States can be.

A great many Jews will be killed in this new campaign. Some of them are important scientists and scholars.

What now, Dr. Albert Einstein! Why not write a letter to Joe Stalin like the one you wrote to Judge Irving Kaufman about clemency for the Rosenbergs? Why not, Dr. Einstein and Abba Hillel Silver! Why not write Stalin pleading for mercy for innocent people!

That Body of Yours

MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SLUGGISHNESS

Most of us are familiar with the symptoms caused by overactivity of the thyroid gland in front part of the neck. This overactivity means that too much thyroid juice is being manufactured and poured into the blood. Too much thyroid extract causes all the body processes to work too rapidly, resulting in rapid heart beat, bulging of the eyes, trembling of the hands and loss of weight (goiter.) The condition is called hyperthyroidism.

The opposite condition of hyperthyroidism is hypothyroidism where the thyroid gland is underactive, does not manufacture enough thyroid extract, and the individual is slow in thought and movements of the body and is likely to become overweight.

While the conditions hyperthyroidism and hypothyroidism can be recognized usually, particularly when the metabolism test is made; that shows the degree of over-activity or under-activity present. When the degree is only slightly above or below normal, it may pass unnoticed. Thus overactivity of thyroid may be so slight that the patient is thought to be just naturally quick mentally and physically or, if the underactivity of thyroid is slight, he may be considered naturaly slow mentally and physically but, as the saying goes, able to get by in a crowd.

It would appear that underactivity of the thyroid gland (hypothyroidism) is not uncommon as we grow older and our family and friends may feel that we are just "slowing up" because of our age.

In Geriatrics—treatment of the elderly—Drs. S. T. Kimble and E. J. Streglitz, whom I've mentioned before, state that hypothyroidism may be responsible for many symptoms attributed to aging in the elderly. Physical fatigue, mental apathy or lack of awareness, inability to stand the cold, and dryness of the skin and hair are common complaints associated with low basal metabolism.

Now when overactivity (hyperthyroidism) is present and too much thyroid extract is being manufactured, it is necessary to remove all or part of the thyroid gland by surgery, X-ray. However, when underactivity (hypothyroidism) is present, and not enough thyroid juice is being manufactured, all the treatment necessary is to give thyroid extract (obtained from animals) to get more activity by the body processes.

"From one grain or less per day of dried thyroid extract, dosage is increased gradually until symptoms are relieved and the basal metabolism returns to normal."

Circumstances Alter Cases

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Inside fact about the confirmation fight of Charles E. Wilson is that Senator Byrd of Virginia telphoned Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, one week before the hearings, in order to warn of the law which might bar Wilson from becoming secretary of defense.

Byrd did this as a friendly gesture to Eisenhower, thinking that Eisenhower would want to thresh the matter out with Wilson in advance.

Eisenhower's headquarters was then alerted by Senator Saltonstall and Wilson was called in and advised on how to handle the Senate hearing.

However, Wilson's appearance before the committee flabbergasted not only senators, but Ike advisers who had briefed him. Particularly surprising was his statement that he had planned to handle General Motors' contracts as secretary of defense. Also surprising was his attitude toward the senators. He acted as if he were doing them a favor by appearing before them. At times he was postively rude. Particularly antagonizing were his sermons on his own integrity and the implication that he belonged to the ruling class.

Senator Saltonstall, whose family dates back to the Pilgrim fathers, is a mild-mannered, tolerant gentleman, but even he did not relish Wilson's behavior.

One of the most emphatic of the senators expressing doubts about Wilson was another Republican, Duff of Pennsylvania, former Governor of that state. Duff pointed out that the law is the law and that every county, city and state has a law similar to the federal law making it illegal for a government official to handle contracts with companies in which he has an ownership. Senator Cooper of Kentucky, another Republican, also expressed his disapproval. Cooper disagreed slightly with Duff, but only on a technicality.

Pyramiding G.M. Profits

Meanwhile, three other factors have disturbed senators about the three General Motors men in the cabinet, plus one in the "little cabinet:"

A hitherto confidential report on how General Motors pyramided defense profits. Prepared by a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, the report shows that General Motors farmed out contracts to one subsidiary which would add a profit, then to another subsidiary which added a second profit, until sometimes three profits were added into one contract, all at the expense of the taxpayer.

General Motors has been among the leaders of defense suppliers who want a 12 per cent profit on all government contracts, instead of the present 6 per cent.

A General Motors man, H. R. Boyer, was responsible for a $68,000,000 order on vertical turret lathes for the air force going to General Motors, when another smaller company, the Bullard Company of Bridgeport, Conn., bid one-third of this price. The latter scandal was the object of an investigation by the House committee probing military waste after this column revealed the facts in February, 1952. At that time Republican congressmen were extremely critical of the manner in which General Motors wasted several million dollars.

The facts then developed, which are now being reviewed by senators, showed that Boyer, chairman of the government's Aircraft Production Board and a General Motors official, had urged military procurement officials to approve a contract with the Fisher Body Division of General Motors for 757 vertical turret lathes, despite the fact that Fisher Bodies had no experience in this field. The price to be paid was $90,600 per lathe, although the Bullard Company, an experienced concern, charged the government only $38,000 for the same lathe.

In addition, defense officials working in cooperation with Boyer agreed to "rent" General Motors all but 80 out of some 570 units of tooling machinery needed to fulfill the contract. Later it turned out that the units were not actually rented, but a free gift to the company.

Under cross-examination by Congressman Paul Cunningham of Iowa, a Republican, Assistant Air Secretary R. L. Gilpatric admitted that General Motors official Boyer "personally recommended to me that the best way to get on with this job from a time standpoint" was to give it to Fisher Bodies.

One machine-tool "expert," Swan E. Bergstrom, replying to questions by Congressman Hebert of Louisiana, as to why General Motors was to be paid $90,600 each for the same turret lathe which other companies were selling for $38,000, said it was perfecly normal for Fisher to charge the government 2½ times as much, because Fisher was "inexperienced" in making machine tools.

"Does that answer your question?" asked the witness.

"It's as clear as mud," replied Congressman Hebert, who indicated later that he still can't understand why General Motors' inexperience should cost twice as much as experience.

While the Senate balked over confirming General Motors' Charlie Wilson as secretary of defense, another General Motors man passed his Senate inspection in a breeze. He is the new postmaster general, Arthur Summerfield.

The public and press were barred from the hearing, and the official minutes were marked "confidential." However, this column can report what happened.

Summerfield frankly admitted that he still held an interest in three General Motor agencies—the Summerville Chevrolet Company at Flint, Friendly Chevrolet Company at Grand Rapids, and Davison Chevrolet Company of Clio, Michigan.

"I retain my holdings in each of these companies because they are closed corporations, but I have removed myself from the payrolls of two of them. I never did take a salary from the smaller one," Summerfield explained. "These are closed corporations, my son and I owning one of them, my son-in-law and myself owning another and one of my oldest employees is now my partner in the third one.

"I have resigned from two additional companies," he added, "these being the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company and the American Motorists Insurance Company . . . I have a few real estate holdings, a few investments and the automobile business."

The new post office boss modestly claimed that he believed himself "qualified to do an acceptable job as your postmaster general," though he acknowledged: "I know little about the department other than what knowledge I have acquired over the last two weeks."

Summerfield was escorted into the committee room by Michigan's flowing white-haired Sen. Homer Ferguson, who declared ringingly: "I can vouch for his (Summerfield's) loyalty, honesty and good reputation."

However, Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina was more interested in how Summerfield got started in the automobile business. Now reportedly the biggest Chevrolet dealer in the world, Summerfield explained he got his start after the crash of 1929.

"I had spoken to the assistant sales manager of Chevrolet one evening at a dinner party and said that some day when there was a Chevrolet Agency available in that area I would like to be considered," he recalled. "Then one day he told me, 'I understand you are interested in an agency.' I said yes. He said, 'come on down to Chevrolet and bring your pen.' I went down . . . and they gave it to me."

Thus Summerfield was confirmed to the cabinet about as easily as he got started selling Chevrolets.

The Truce Stone

A menhir (tall stone) near Drache, Touraine, France, that has a hole in the center was formerly used as an Armistice Stone. No truce was valid until the opposing tribal chiefs sealed it by shaking hands through the opening in the menhir troue. At the present time, young couples who have quarreled celebrate their reconciliation by tossing a rose at each other through the opening in the stone.

Inaugural Speech Has Peace Theme but Lets World Know U. S. Ready to Oppose Tyrants

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 20—An unforgettable inaugural . . . the transfer of authority solemnly and yet with a spontaneous cheer . . . echoes of a triumphant election conducted by the people freely . . . few places on earth where such freedom prevails.

The outgoing President participating and showing loyalty to free institutions . . . the new President taking the oath . . . "to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution" . . . a kiss first for the First Lady and then a prayer of dedication.

Now the inaugural address . . . the people packed in the streets before him . . . the sun casting its warm glow . . . the words coming clear over the great esplanade on the east front of the Capitol . . . heard also around the world through radio . . . the ceremony itself seen by millions through television . . . in the presence of the Senate, the House, the Supreme Court, the diplomatic corps.

A message of hope, of high purpose and of resolution. One excerpt tells it all—the way to inevitable peace:

"To produce this unity, to meet the challenge of our time, destiny has laid upon our country the responsibility of the free world's leadership. So it is proper that we assure our friends once again that, in the discharge of this responsibility, we Americans know and observe the difference between world leadership and imperialism; between firmness and truculence; between a thoughfully calculated goal and spasmodic reaction to the stimulus of emergencies.

"We wish our friends the world over to know this above all: we face the threat—not with dread and confusion—but with confidence and conviction.

The applause rings out.... for those few words proclaim the new policy—"a thoughfully calculated goal" and not the opportunism of "spasmodic reaction" to recurrent crises reminding us of our lack of firmness to meet the first crisis. Never, he adds, must we be "proven guilty of the one capital offense against freedom, a lack of staunch faith."

The phrases are pregnant with meaning . . . implicit rather than explicit but penetrating thoughts just the same . . . especially significant sentences: "We must be ready to dare all for our country . . . We must be willing, individually and as a nation, to accept whatever sacrifices are required of us. . . . We must acquire proficiency in defense and display stamina of purpose."

Firmness, strength, steadfastness, courage, bravery . . . a readiness to face the bluff of the Russian tyrant with the moral force of our united peoples . . . the goal is clearly pointed out—the "winning of the peace."

Memories of other inaugurations. . . . Jan. 20, 1949, when Truman stood there humbly and without rancor . . . Jan. 20, 1945, when Franklin Roosevelt wasn't able to go to the Capitol but stood on the White House balcony . . . his face haggard and pale . . . his cheeks sunken as his son James lifted him to the pedestal to speak the inaugural message . . . less than ninety days later the President was dead.

Back to March 4, 1933, when the same man in vibrant phrases, with strength of voice and body, said "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Back to March 4, 1913, when Woodrow Wilson, with the finest phrases of them all—not a word written for him—spoke his message of inspiration as the Democrats took over for the first time since 1893....a span of twenty years, too.

Then, on March 4, 1921, when a Republican took over again.... Woodrow Wilson, victorious leader in World War I but not enfeebled ....unable to walk to the front of the Capitol....bidding his successor, Warren Harding, good luck in the Vice-President's room where the outgoing President had come to sign last-minute bills ....Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, the elder—arch foe of the League of Nations and of Wilson—standing near by....the cold look that Wilson gave him ...the polite, deferential Harding helping the broken Wilson to his feet.... Harding taking the oath a few minutes later alone on the east front, happy, hopeful, solemn.

Memories, too, of William Howard Taft as he said farewell at Union Station on March 4, 1913 . . . a reporter asking him what he would miss most. . . . "Ah," he said, "the power, the power of the Presidency."

Thoughts of Truman . . . the power he had . . . the power we bestow on all our Presidents . . . they little realize sometimes that it is temporary and transient . . . the true power is with the people to repudiate them or enshrine them . . . wondering if we will be patient, unpartisan, tolerant till we see.

Maybe we can be.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, Jan. 20 — As the scramble for social position takes place again among a new swarm of vain, frivolous people, I recall Connie Wilson's grand indifference to protocol, publicity and rank.

She once bounded out of a reception exclaiming that she had a dipsomanic humming-bird at home and had to hurry back to give him his toddy. For a fact, she did. This humming bird had had a cold and Connie had nursed him well with a drop or two of bourbon in his nectar glass. But this set up an addiction and Connie kept him gently pickled for a long time. She always insisted that one day he got plastered, missed a pass at his perch, fell to the floor and busted his neck.

Connie was the wife of Lyle Wilson, the manager of the Washington Bureau of the United Press. I think she was loved more by more people than any other person I have ever known. She died last fall.

Back around the start of the New Deal, Connie glimpsed a big car pulling up at the curb before their little house, with a driver and flunkey in front and a grand dame, alone, in the back. The flunkey got out and started up the walk so Connie ran out waving and yelling "Hi!" She had a dust rag on her head and a broom in her hands. The footman handed her a card and got back in the car.

"Hi!" Connie yelled again. "Come on in and put your feet up! I am housecleaning and I need a drink."

The car drove away. Connie had never heard of the custom of dropping cards but she never took it up.

When the Roosevelts took the town, Connie was skeptical. Nothing quite like this descent had ever happened before although history tells of a wild scuffle around the White House in the first days of the Jackson administration.

The Roosevelts immediately set about building up a press claque by inviting batches of correspondents in to tear cold chicken on Sunday nights, and other ingratiating tricks. But the man or woman never lived who could patronize Connie so she just wouldn't go. She did attend a couple of formal dinners in the early days because, in his job, Lyle was almost bound in professional duty to make an appearance. Having a wife he couldn't go without her. He couldn't say she fell off a ladder painting the shutters and broke her leg because she would be down town next day and everybody knew her. So Connie went a few times and Missie Le Hand connived with her to slip them out a back way so they wouldn't have to sit two or three hours on hard, narrow undertakers' chairs listening to a mess of La Boca's new-found friends from some reform school singing mournful lore to the music of a jug band. They tried this too often, though. More and more fugitives would keep an eye on Connie after the finger-bowls and mint wafers and Connie found that she was leading an exodus. This could not go on so Connie quit going. Lyle didn't really have to.

Connie was a tall, leggedy girl with a laughing heart who had had the darnedest experiences, including a hitch as secretary to Barney Gallant, an interesting character who had dabbled in one of the Mexican revolutions around 1913 and was running a speakeasy restaurant and wild dance-parties at Webster Hall in New York. She was the daughter of a tough

As Pegler Sees It

Minnesota farmer who was one of the ruggedest individualists in the country. She went to the University of Missouri and was working for Barney in New York when she married Lyle.

When La Boca was setting up her cult, she hit upon the idea of running a party in the White House for the wives of members of the Gridiron Club on gridiron nights. Roosevelt, of course, was the guest of honor at the gridiron dinners and the old girl figured that, in the lower orders, the wives of members of the club must be congenial one and all. Anyway the gridiron wives, or "widows," as she put it, were invited to come and get bored by the inexpressible banality of a lot of by no means ornamental women doing charades in costume including male attire. There is something repulsive about women in men's suits just per se but when they put on whiskers from the masquerade store and start calling one another "Mr. Chief Justice Hughes" they get loathsome. There was great pressure on the wives of gridiron men to wangle invitations for out-of-town babes but Connie said no. She never went to a gridiron "widows'" dinner and, by most accounts, she spared herself several times a fate that was worse than death.

Connie and Lyle gave enormous parties starting around midnight on gridiron nights. There would be 200 or more guests and most Washington women who go in for "entertaining" would have revelled in publicity because Connie had ambassadors, senators, cabinet people, bankers, authors—all the sorts of livestock who are regarded as celebrities. But the girls who wrote "society," who came as friends, always understood that they must not write anything about it. One day, after one of Connie's big pours, a lady who is a typical climber heard that Winthrop Aldrich had been there.

"He was?" she exclaimed. "I didn't know that. Which one was Aldrich?"

"The one who sat on the stairs with that pretty blonde."

"Was that Aldrich? I thought he was a congressman!"

The appetite for sheer publicity for its own sake, as though publicity and distinction were synonymous, is pathetic. Wives of important men or obscure men striving for renown join all kinds of committees and fronts to get their names in print and meet "celebrities." They just can't understand that publicity is nothing but ink smeared on paper. Even wives of newspaper and magazine magnates devour it.

As Pegler Sees It

Minnesota farmer who was one of the ruggedest individualists in the country. She went to the University of Missouri and was working for Barney in New York when she married Lyle.

When La Boca was setting up her cult, she hit upon the idea of running a party in the White House for the wives of members of the Gridiron Club on gridiron nights. Roosevelt, of course, was the guest of honor at the gridiron dinners and the old girl figured that, in the lower orders, the wives of members of the club must be congenial one and all. Anyway the gridiron wives, or "widows," as she put it, were invited to come and get bored by the inexpressible banality of a lot of by no means ornamental women doing charades in costume including male attire. There is something repulsive about women in men's suits just per se but when they put on whiskers from the masquerade store and start calling one another "Mr. Chief Justice Hughes" they get loathsome. There was great pressure on the wives of gridiron men to wangle invitations for out-of-town babes but Connie said no. She never went to a gridiron "widows'" dinner and, by most accounts, she spared herself several times a fate that was worse than death.

Connie and Lyle gave enormous parties starting around midnight on gridiron nights. There would be 200 or more guests and most Washington women who go in for "entertaining" would have revelled in publicity because Connie had ambassadors, senators, cabinet people, bankers, authors—all the sorts of livestock who are regarded as celebrities. But the girls who wrote "society," who came as friends, always understood that they must not write anything about it. One day, after one of Connie's big pours, a lady who is a typical climber heard that Winthrop Aldrich had been there.

"He was?" she exclaimed. "I didn't know that. Which one was Aldrich?"

"The one who sat on the stairs with that pretty blonde."

"Was that Aldrich? I thought he was a congressman!"

The appetite for sheer publicity for its own sake, as though publicity and distinction were synonymous, is pathetic. Wives of important men or obscure men striving for renown join all kinds of committees and fronts to get their names in print and meet "celebrities." They just can't understand that publicity is nothing but ink smeared on paper. Even wives of newspaper and magazine magnates devour it.

Knows About Hitler

Berchtesgaden, Germany, Jan. 21 (AP)—Bavaria's Justice Ministry disclosed today that at least one German claims to know "the present whereabouts of Adolf Hitler and can disclose it at any time after proclamation of a general amnesty for his followers." The ministry said it had a letter claiming just that. The writer, however, did not give his name. Justice officials here said that numerous former Nazi party members also had written the Berchtesgaden District Court—and signed their letters—protesting against a possible ruling that Hitler, "our highly honored feuhrer," is legally dead.

Lamp Blast Kills Three

Frederick, Okla., Jan. 21 (AP)—A mother and her three children perished last night in flames which swept their 2-room frame dwelling after a kerosene lamp exploded. Victims were Erma Jean Thompson, 22, and her children Alfred, 4; Gary, 2; and Delle 10 months. A fourth child escaped unhurt. The father, 27-year-old Alfred Thompson, was hospitalized with severe burns. Police reported the explosion occurred when Thompson poured kerosene from a 5-gallon can into a lamp, which apparently was overheated.

Priests Go on Trial

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 21 (AP)—Five Roman Catholic priests went on trial today before Krakow's Communist Military Court, charged with spying for an American Intelligence Service. The priests, said to have held responsible posts in the Krakow Archbishopric, are accused jointly with other Poles of economic, political and military spying. Those on trial are Fathers Josef Lelito, Franciszek Szymonek, Jan Pochopien, Wit Brzycki and Michal Kowalik. Edward Chancliga and Stefania Rospond are the others accused in the indictment.

325 Prisoners Refuse To Release Six Guards

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 21 (AP)—Shouting defiance, some 325 rebellious convicts again spurned surrender ultimatums today in their barricaded cellblock at the Rockview State Penitentiary and refused to release six guards held as hostages until their "gripes" are honored.

It was the third day of their surprise insurrection. Last night 400 of Rockview's prisoners capitulated to a demand by Gov. John S. Fine who warned that additional jail sentences would be given to every man who continues to defy authority.

The newest rejection of the state's efforts to bring peace to the prison came in a yelling exchange between Deputy Attorney General Edward Friedman, standing on the ground outside cellblock "A" and the convict leader who peered out barred windows 30 feet above.

Truman Says He'd Like to Live to 100

En route to Independence Mo., with Truman, Jan. 21—Harry S. Truman, ex-President of the United States, took a long trip home today.

After nearly eight years the head of a great government with influence felt around the globe, he headed for Missouri in the role of "Mr. Truman, private citizen."

And alone with Mrs. Truman in the splendor of the private railroad car in which he had stormed the country in many a fiery campaign trip, he had opportunity to reflect again over an eventful career and take thought of the future.

For Harry Truman, despite his 68 years, has made clear that he will be a man to reckon with in the years ahead.

His emotions were stirred, as they have seldom been stirred before, by the sendoff he got at Washington last night at the end of a trying day in which he surrendered the presidency to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

An obvious lump in his throat, the gray-haired Truman, his wife and daughter by his side, responded that "in all my career, and it has been a long one, I've never had an experience like this."

"This is the first time I've had the experience of being sent home in a blaze of glory," he went on.

"I'll never forget this if I live to be a hundred—and that's what I expect to do."

200 Are Arrested In Smoker Raid

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Queens county jails bulged today with more than 200 men arrested when police raided a lodge smoker which allegedly included an indecent girlie show.

Twenty-five police, led by Assistant Chief Inspector John Ferretti, raided the smoker which they said was held last night by Middle Village Lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

Officers said members of the fraternal order hired the entertainment unit for the smoker in a hall in Queens.

Four women and two men were arrested in connection with the show.

Police seized 240 male spectators and charged them with disorderly conduct. A few of the men were released in bail, but the demand on cells was so great that some of the prisoners were shunted to jails in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Four patrol wagons were used to transport the prisoners from the hall to a police station for booking.

Police said a few of the raiding party drifted into the smoker crowd to gather evidence, all exits were sealed off and then a raid was announced.

Those in Cast Held

Michael Shaw, 39, of Manhattan, listed by police as manager of the hired show, was charged with managing an indecent performance.

Freddie Walker, 53, of Long Island City, Queens, listed as the master-of-ceremonies, was charged with aiding and abetting Shaw.

The four women prisoners, charged with giving an indecent performance, were listed as: Mrs. Ellen Barajas, 29, of Manhattan; Madeline Miller, 31, of Brooklyn; Constance Sampson, 36, of Queens, and Mrs. Ramona Durand, 25, of Carmel.

Mass arraignment was set for today in Long Island City Magistrates Court.

Gets Summons

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Columnist Westbrook Pegler responded cheerfully yesterday when a man greeted him as he sat in the press section at the presidential inaugural ceremonies. Then his greeter, special process server Hugh Duffy, handed the newspaperman a two-year-old summons and a copy of a complaint in a $5,100,000 assault-libel-conspiracy suit. The suit was filed by columnist Drew Pearson against Pegler, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), the Washington Times-Herald, radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr., and others, alleging that they tried to drive him out of business.

No Escort for John

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Maj. John Eisenhower who came home on leave for the inauguration of his father, will return to Korea without a secret service escort, which the law provides for members of the President's family. As one administration aide put it, young Eisenhower, as an army officer, needs no such protection. Maj. Eisenhower's 15-day leave is up next Sunday.

Touch System

The touch system of typewriting was little used before 1890, but since 1900, instruction in typewriting has almost universally used the touch system.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—The stock market drifted lower today in a reaction from the rise that accompanied the Republican return to power yesterday.

Losses were not severe, usually in the small fractions. At the most they extended to between 1 and 2 points. Gains were small.

The pace of trading was at a rate quite a bit less than yesterday's moderate 1,490,000 shares.

All major divisions of the market were mixed to lower in a quiet sort of way. At the same time there were a few features.

Polio Show Set For February 28

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Further plans for a variety show for the benefit of the March of Dimes drive for funds were discussed at a meeting of the entertainment committee Tuesday night at the home of William Hand, chairman. The show will be held Saturday, Feb. 28, at 8:30 p. m., in the auditorium of the Woodstock Elementary School. The show is scheduled to run for an hour and 45 minutes, with a 15 minute intermission. Each act will be about 10 to 15 minutes in length.

Among those who will appear on the show are Allen Gilbert, who was featured in the Broadway production of South Pacific; Gladys Tandler, soprano; John Pike and Dave Huffine, Ed Bauman and George Berk, Melvin Leshen's band, Erwin Ruff. The names of other performers will be announced.

The show will be entitled Woodstock's Folly of 1953, or the March of Dames.

Village Promotion Project Reviewed

Woodstock, Jan. 21—The Woodstock Business Association held its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church. A donation was voted to the March of Dimes fund in this village.

A review was made of the promotion project to turn Woodstock into an all-year-round community. Inquiries concerning the village have been received from South Carolina, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Newark and other points in New Jersey, Westchester county and from a few points upstate. The brochure on Woodstock was automatically sent to all who made inquiries, and specific questions were answered by letter. If prospective visitors mentioned specific dates, their names were sent immediately to those in the village who have rooms to rent.

A number of inquiries, it was reported, have been received from painters, in which case the names of art teachers in the village were recommended who indicated a willingness to give instruction under these circumstances.

The Business Association will hold a ladies night at the White Horse Inn Feb. 14, for members and their ladies, and possibly a few guests.

Several former members of the Association have renewed their membership and the general outlook is encouraging, it was said at the meeting.

A fair and hobby show is being planned to be held in the late spring, with the committee under the chairmanship of William Hand.

Riders to Meet

Woodstock, Jan. 21—The Woodstock Riding Club will meet Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Dutch Reformed Church hall in Woodstock. All members are urged to be present.

Heermann Completes Portrait of Costain

THOMAS COSTAIN

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Norbert Heermann, noted portrait painter, has returned from New York where he completed a portrait of Thomas B. Costain, whose Silver Chalice has been on the nation's best seller list for some time.

It was while Costain was assistant editor to Mr. Lorrimer at the Saturday Evening Post many years ago that Elizabeth Alexander (Mrs. Norbert Heermann) sent in her first short story, Fifty-two Weeks for Florette. Costain accepted it at once and ordered a novel. The story was included in the O'Henry Prize Short Stories volume of the year and was translated into four languages, sold to the movies and appeared on the radio last year over the National Broadcasting Company network.

Heermann's portrait of Vera Van Rijn is included in the present Woodstock artists show in the Kingston Theatre. He also will be represented in the New York National Academy's Audubon Society with a portrait of the Poacher, which large exhibition opens this Thursday.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Mrs. Norman Elwyn entertained at a luncheon in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Fannie Elwyn Tuesday. Those present were Mrs. David Myer, Miss Florence Peper, Mrs. Clayton Harder, Robert Elwyn and Norman Elwyn.

Arthur Peper celebrated his birthday Sunday, Jan. 18.

Mrs. Lottie Dock returned to her home Tuesday night from Kingston Hospital.

Mrs. Alexandra Padwa was admitted to Kingston Hospital Jan. 19.

Seven MIGs Shot Down in Battles

Seoul, Jan. 21 (AP)—Allied Sabre jet pilots shot down seven Communist MIG jet fighters and damaged three others in battles high over northwest Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force said.

Two U. S. jet aces, Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney, Tex., and Maj. Robinson Risner, Oklahoma City, each was credited with his eighth MIG destroyed.

U. S. losses, if any, will be announced in a weekend summary.

Today's bag was one of the biggest in several months. U. S. pilots destroyed eight MIGs last Wednesday—the most in one day since September.

On the ground allied troops hurled back sharp Communist attacks on the frozen eastern front while the Peiping radio boasted of an iunconquerable defense line of tunnels across the Korean peninsula.

The broadcast asserted thousands of Red soldiers, working underground by lamplight day and night, carved out the tunnel network which "already proved itself an impregnable defense line never before seen in the history of war."

Says Runaway Train Had Brake Trouble

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—A Pennsylvania Railroad official testified at a Senate inquiry today that the runaway train that hurtled into Union Station here last Thursday had developed trouble with its brakes en route at Kingston, R. I.

Adleburt Schreoder, assistant general counsel of the railroad, said that during a stop at Kingston, the engineer got out and fixed the brake by hand.

Sen. Tobey (R.-N. H.) remarked that "someone must have tampered with the air brakes" before the train, the Federal Express, left Boston. He asked Schroeder if that were not correct.

"It seems very plausible," Schroeder replied.

Tobey is chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, which opened public hearings today in an effort to determine the cause of the accident.

H. W. Brower of Philadelphia, the engineer of the ill-fated train, was the first witness.

Apple Maggot Is

that it seemed to encourage resistance where the pesticide is used in all or nearly all treatments.

He said that in dealing with the control of insects as in considering any biological problem we must expect change. We can't expect to find a solution to any problem in this field that will stand forever."

A. A. LaPlante, extension entomologist at Cornell University, submitted the results of statewide activities and research in spray schedules for better pest control. His material was selected from data assembled by county farm agents and other officials and agencies working on fruit insect problems.

Exhibits Show Control

Educational exhibits in the hallway outside the lecture room this year were tied in with the talks on maggot control, and related subjects. The College of Agriculture, Cornell University, also had an exhibit on the use of thinning sprays on apples, and the Geneva Experiment Station had one devoted to size controlling rootstocks. A display of apples and small fruit introducing new varieties resulting from breeding work at Geneva was included, along with a display on rust control. College of Agriculture and Experiment Station publications were on display and opportunity was offered for persons to register their addresses so that desired publications could be sent to them. The display will remain on view throughout the show.

In the drill shed of the armory, the commercial exhibits were termed the "biggest and most expensive" in the history of the Society's Eastern Meeting by D. M. Dalrymple, secretary-treasurer. Commercial exhibitors from Michigan to Maine had reserved space in which to show farm machinery, spray materials, packaging equipment and other products.

Chews Brush Piles

Among the new items was a hydraulically operated "brush beater," exhibited by J. I. Case Company's Syracuse branch. The tractor-drawn implement is said to "chew up" brush piles and even standing brush and tall grass and transforming it into a mulch.

Also new is a type of apple package, marketed under the name of "Fanci-Pak" which is designed to protect the fruit from the time it is picked until it reaches the consumer's home. The carrier's protective features are said to enable packers to ship in corrugated cases without the usual partitions and separators, as each piece of fruit is nested in a separate compartment.

70 Exhibits

Dalrymple said that approximately 70 exhibits had been entered for the Eastern Meeting.

Lloyd H. Davis of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell University, was scheduled to speak at 2:15 p. m. today on How Bagged Apples Work Out in New York City. Bennett Dominick of Cornell University was to speak at 2:30 on Observations on Apple Movement and Outlook for 1953 and L. W. Marvin of the New York and New England Apple Institute and the Truman Nold National Apple Institute, was scheduled to speak at 3 p. m. on Apple Advertising Moves Fruit in New York and New England.

To Discuss Spray Machines

Tonight at the Governor Clinton Hotel Jim Brann, Art Burrell and growers will discuss the advantages and disadvantages of newer spray equipment.

Thursday morning the subject of fungicides, insecticides and insect control will be discussed. Listed among speakers are D. H. Palmiter of the Poughkeepsie Laboratory, Mike Moriello of New Paltz, Al Cole of Red Hook, Clinton Carlough of Allendale, N. J., A. B. Burrell of Cornell University, W. D. Mills of Cornell. The Hudson Valley Horticultural Research Co-op will meet at noon.

Thursday afternoon there will be the report of the president, James R. Clarke of Milton, report of the resolutions committee, report of the secretary-treasurer, and the following speakers: Charles Palm of Cornell, How to Live with the Food and Drug Administration; "Cal" Calahan, extension horticulturist of Burlington, Vt., Growing High Quality Apples in Vermont; Dr. A. J. Heinicke, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, What Varieties and Strains of Fruit Should We Plant?; Karl Brase, New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, Controlling Size of Apple and Pear Trees with Root Stocks.

The annual banquet will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday at Bethany Hall, Old Dutch Church. Harold Rogers of Southington, Conn., will act as toastmaster.

The Male Quartet of Catskill, headed by Robert Saxe of Palenville, a member of the society, will present a group of selections. Awards for the best apple, cherry and fruit pies will be made. E. Stuart Hubbard, Jr., is chairman of the banquet committee.

The meeting will continue through Friday afternoon.

Truck and Car Collide On Rt. 28 at Shandaken

A 1951 passenger car operated by Stephen Pupko, 59, of Allaben, was in collision with a 1949 pickup truck driven by Sven Ruthenbeck, 56, of Shandaken, on Route 28, in Shandaken late yesterday morning, state police at Kingston station reported today.

Troopers said the passenger car was traveling west on Route 28 and the truck, turning left, was in collision with the left front fender of the other vehicle.

Ruthenbeck was issued a summons to appear before Justice of Peace Raymond Smith of Phoenicia for operating a car without a driver's license.

Dr. Stokes Is Director

Boston, Jan. 21 (AP)—Appointment of Dr. Olivia Pearl Stokes of (1945 7th avenue), New York, as director of the Department of Religious Education of the Massachusetts Council of Churches was announced today. Dr. Stokes has been prominent as a young leader of the American Baptist Convention and the United Christian Youth Movement. Currently she is director of the Merrick Community Center of Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y. Miss Stokes will be one of the first Negro women to hold a high executive position in a council of churches program in the country. She is a native of North Carolina.

Knows About Hitler

Berchtesgaden, Germany, Jan. 21 (AP)—Bavaria's Justice Ministry disclosed today that at least one German claims to know "the present whereabouts of Adolf Hitler and can disclose it at any time after proclamation of a general amnesty for his followers." The ministry said it had a letter claiming just that. The writer, however, did not give his name. Justice officials here said that numerous former Nazi party members also had written the Berchtesgaden District Court—and signed their letters—protesting against a possible ruling that Hitler, "our highly honored feuhrer," is legally dead.

Lamp Blast Kills Three

Frederick, Okla., Jan. 21 (AP)—A mother and her three children perished last night in flames which swept their 2-room frame dwelling after a kerosene lamp exploded. Victims were Erma Jean Thompson, 22, and her children Alfred, 4; Gary, 2; and Delle 10 months. A fourth child escaped unhurt. The father, 27-year-old Alfred Thompson, was hospitalized with severe burns. Police reported the explosion occurred when Thompson poured kerosene from a 5-gallon can into a lamp, which apparently was overheated.

Priests Go on Trial

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 21 (AP)—Five Roman Catholic priests went on trial today before Krakow's Communist Military Court, charged with spying for an American Intelligence Service. The priests, said to have held responsible posts in the Krakow Archbishopric, are accused jointly with other Poles of economic, political and military spying. Those on trial are Fathers Josef Lelito, Franciszek Szymonek, Jan Pochopien, Wit Brzycki and Michal Kowalik. Edward Chancliga and Stefania Rospond are the others accused in the indictment.

325 Prisoners Refuse To Release Six Guards

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 21 (AP)—Shouting defiance, some 325 rebellious convicts again spurned surrender ultimatums today in their barricaded cellblock at the Rockview State Penitentiary and refused to release six guards held as hostages until their "gripes" are honored.

It was the third day of their surprise insurrection. Last night 400 of Rockview's prisoners capitulated to a demand by Gov. John S. Fine who warned that additional jail sentences would be given to every man who continues to defy authority.

The newest rejection of the state's efforts to bring peace to the prison came in a yelling exchange between Deputy Attorney General Edward Friedman, standing on the ground outside cellblock "A" and the convict leader who peered out barred windows 30 feet above.

Truman Says He'd Like to Live to 100

En route to Independence Mo., with Truman, Jan. 21—Harry S. Truman, ex-President of the United States, took a long trip home today.

After nearly eight years the head of a great government with influence felt around the globe, he headed for Missouri in the role of "Mr. Truman, private citizen."

And alone with Mrs. Truman in the splendor of the private railroad car in which he had stormed the country in many a fiery campaign trip, he had opportunity to reflect again over an eventful career and take thought of the future.

For Harry Truman, despite his 68 years, has made clear that he will be a man to reckon with in the years ahead.

His emotions were stirred, as they have seldom been stirred before, by the sendoff he got at Washington last night at the end of a trying day in which he surrendered the presidency to Dwight D. Eisenhower.

An obvious lump in his throat, the gray-haired Truman, his wife and daughter by his side, responded that "in all my career, and it has been a long one, I've never had an experience like this."

"This is the first time I've had the experience of being sent home in a blaze of glory," he went on.

"I'll never forget this if I live to be a hundred—and that's what I expect to do."

200 Are Arrested In Smoker Raid

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Queens county jails bulged today with more than 200 men arrested when police raided a lodge smoker which allegedly included an indecent girlie show.

Twenty-five police, led by Assistant Chief Inspector John Ferretti, raided the smoker which they said was held last night by Middle Village Lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

Officers said members of the fraternal order hired the entertainment unit for the smoker in a hall in Queens.

Four women and two men were arrested in connection with the show.

Police seized 240 male spectators and charged them with disorderly conduct. A few of the men were released in bail, but the demand on cells was so great that some of the prisoners were shunted to jails in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Four patrol wagons were used to transport the prisoners from the hall to a police station for booking.

Police said a few of the raiding party drifted into the smoker crowd to gather evidence, all exits were sealed off and then a raid was announced.

Those in Cast Held

Michael Shaw, 39, of Manhattan, listed by police as manager of the hired show, was charged with managing an indecent performance.

Freddie Walker, 53, of Long Island City, Queens, listed as the master-of-ceremonies, was charged with aiding and abetting Shaw.

The four women prisoners, charged with giving an indecent performance, were listed as: Mrs. Ellen Barajas, 29, of Manhattan; Madeline Miller, 31, of Brooklyn; Constance Sampson, 36, of Queens, and Mrs. Ramona Durand, 25, of Carmel.

Mass arraignment was set for today in Long Island City Magistrates Court.

Gets Summons

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Columnist Westbrook Pegler responded cheerfully yesterday when a man greeted him as he sat in the press section at the presidential inaugural ceremonies. Then his greeter, special process server Hugh Duffy, handed the newspaperman a two-year-old summons and a copy of a complaint in a $5,100,000 assault-libel-conspiracy suit. The suit was filed by columnist Drew Pearson against Pegler, Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), the Washington Times-Herald, radio commentator Fulton Lewis, Jr., and others, alleging that they tried to drive him out of business.

No Escort for John

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Maj. John Eisenhower who came home on leave for the inauguration of his father, will return to Korea without a secret service escort, which the law provides for members of the President's family. As one administration aide put it, young Eisenhower, as an army officer, needs no such protection. Maj. Eisenhower's 15-day leave is up next Sunday.

Touch System

The touch system of typewriting was little used before 1890, but since 1900, instruction in typewriting has almost universally used the touch system.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—The stock market drifted lower today in a reaction from the rise that accompanied the Republican return to power yesterday.

Losses were not severe, usually in the small fractions. At the most they extended to between 1 and 2 points. Gains were small.

The pace of trading was at a rate quite a bit less than yesterday's moderate 1,490,000 shares.

All major divisions of the market were mixed to lower in a quiet sort of way. At the same time there were a few features.

Railroad Must Pay

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Public Service Commission ruled today the Long Island Railroad must pay $205,340,62 to New York state as its share of costs incurred through 1949 for Hempstead and Garden City grade crossing eliminations. Total cost of the work, completed in 1943, was set at $579,825.30.

42 New Casualties

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 42 Korean war casualties. A new list (No. 732) included 10 killed, 26 wounded, one missing, one injured and four captured who were previously reported missing.

Polio Show Set For February 28

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Further plans for a variety show for the benefit of the March of Dimes drive for funds were discussed at a meeting of the entertainment committee Tuesday night at the home of William Hand, chairman. The show will be held Saturday, Feb. 28, at 8:30 p. m., in the auditorium of the Woodstock Elementary School. The show is scheduled to run for an hour and 45 minutes, with a 15 minute intermission. Each act will be about 10 to 15 minutes in length.

Among those who will appear on the show are Allen Gilbert, who was featured in the Broadway production of South Pacific; Gladys Tandler, soprano; John Pike and Dave Huffine, Ed Bauman and George Berk, Melvin Leshen's band, Erwin Ruff. The names of other performers will be announced.

The show will be entitled Woodstock's Folly of 1953, or the March of Dames.

Village Promotion Project Reviewed

Woodstock, Jan. 21—The Woodstock Business Association held its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the basement of the Dutch Reformed Church. A donation was voted to the March of Dimes fund in this village.

A review was made of the promotion project to turn Woodstock into an all-year-round community. Inquiries concerning the village have been received from South Carolina, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, Newark and other points in New Jersey, Westchester county and from a few points upstate. The brochure on Woodstock was automatically sent to all who made inquiries, and specific questions were answered by letter. If prospective visitors mentioned specific dates, their names were sent immediately to those in the village who have rooms to rent.

A number of inquiries, it was reported, have been received from painters, in which case the names of art teachers in the village were recommended who indicated a willingness to give instruction under these circumstances.

The Business Association will hold a ladies night at the White Horse Inn Feb. 14, for members and their ladies, and possibly a few guests.

Several former members of the Association have renewed their membership and the general outlook is encouraging, it was said at the meeting.

A fair and hobby show is being planned to be held in the late spring, with the committee under the chairmanship of William Hand.

Riders to Meet

Woodstock, Jan. 21—The Woodstock Riding Club will meet Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Dutch Reformed Church hall in Woodstock. All members are urged to be present.

Heermann Completes Portrait of Costain

THOMAS COSTAIN

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Norbert Heermann, noted portrait painter, has returned from New York where he completed a portrait of Thomas B. Costain, whose Silver Chalice has been on the nation's best seller list for some time.

It was while Costain was assistant editor to Mr. Lorrimer at the Saturday Evening Post many years ago that Elizabeth Alexander (Mrs. Norbert Heermann) sent in her first short story, Fifty-two Weeks for Florette. Costain accepted it at once and ordered a novel. The story was included in the O'Henry Prize Short Stories volume of the year and was translated into four languages, sold to the movies and appeared on the radio last year over the National Broadcasting Company network.

Heermann's portrait of Vera Van Rijn is included in the present Woodstock artists show in the Kingston Theatre. He also will be represented in the New York National Academy's Audubon Society with a portrait of the Poacher, which large exhibition opens this Thursday.

Village Notes

Woodstock, Jan. 21—Mrs. Norman Elwyn entertained at a luncheon in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Fannie Elwyn Tuesday. Those present were Mrs. David Myer, Miss Florence Peper, Mrs. Clayton Harder, Robert Elwyn and Norman Elwyn.

Arthur Peper celebrated his birthday Sunday, Jan. 18.

Mrs. Lottie Dock returned to her home Tuesday night from Kingston Hospital.

Mrs. Alexandra Padwa was admitted to Kingston Hospital Jan. 19.

Seven MIGs Shot Down in Battles

Seoul, Jan. 21 (AP)—Allied Sabre jet pilots shot down seven Communist MIG jet fighters and damaged three others in battles high over northwest Korea today, the U. S. Fifth Air Force said.

Two U. S. jet aces, Col. Royal N. Baker, McKinney, Tex., and Maj. Robinson Risner, Oklahoma City, each was credited with his eighth MIG destroyed.

U. S. losses, if any, will be announced in a weekend summary.

Today's bag was one of the biggest in several months. U. S. pilots destroyed eight MIGs last Wednesday—the most in one day since September.

On the ground allied troops hurled back sharp Communist attacks on the frozen eastern front while the Peiping radio boasted of an iunconquerable defense line of tunnels across the Korean peninsula.

The broadcast asserted thousands of Red soldiers, working underground by lamplight day and night, carved out the tunnel network which "already proved itself an impregnable defense line never before seen in the history of war."

Says Runaway Train Had Brake Trouble

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—A Pennsylvania Railroad official testified at a Senate inquiry today that the runaway train that hurtled into Union Station here last Thursday had developed trouble with its brakes en route at Kingston, R. I.

Adleburt Schreoder, assistant general counsel of the railroad, said that during a stop at Kingston, the engineer got out and fixed the brake by hand.

Sen. Tobey (R.-N. H.) remarked that "someone must have tampered with the air brakes" before the train, the Federal Express, left Boston. He asked Schroeder if that were not correct.

"It seems very plausible," Schroeder replied.

Tobey is chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, which opened public hearings today in an effort to determine the cause of the accident.

H. W. Brower of Philadelphia, the engineer of the ill-fated train, was the first witness.

Apple Maggot Is

that it seemed to encourage resistance where the pesticide is used in all or nearly all treatments.

He said that in dealing with the control of insects as in considering any biological problem we must expect change. We can't expect to find a solution to any problem in this field that will stand forever."

A. A. LaPlante, extension entomologist at Cornell University, submitted the results of statewide activities and research in spray schedules for better pest control. His material was selected from data assembled by county farm agents and other officials and agencies working on fruit insect problems.

Exhibits Show Control

Educational exhibits in the hallway outside the lecture room this year were tied in with the talks on maggot control, and related subjects. The College of Agriculture, Cornell University, also had an exhibit on the use of thinning sprays on apples, and the Geneva Experiment Station had one devoted to size controlling rootstocks. A display of apples and small fruit introducing new varieties resulting from breeding work at Geneva was included, along with a display on rust control. College of Agriculture and Experiment Station publications were on display and opportunity was offered for persons to register their addresses so that desired publications could be sent to them. The display will remain on view throughout the show.

In the drill shed of the armory, the commercial exhibits were termed the "biggest and most expensive" in the history of the Society's Eastern Meeting by D. M. Dalrymple, secretary-treasurer. Commercial exhibitors from Michigan to Maine had reserved space in which to show farm machinery, spray materials, packaging equipment and other products.

Chews Brush Piles

Among the new items was a hydraulically operated "brush beater," exhibited by J. I. Case Company's Syracuse branch. The tractor-drawn implement is said to "chew up" brush piles and even standing brush and tall grass and transforming it into a mulch.

Also new is a type of apple package, marketed under the name of "Fanci-Pak" which is designed to protect the fruit from the time it is picked until it reaches the consumer's home. The carrier's protective features are said to enable packers to ship in corrugated cases without the usual partitions and separators, as each piece of fruit is nested in a separate compartment.

70 Exhibits

Dalrymple said that approximately 70 exhibits had been entered for the Eastern Meeting.

Lloyd H. Davis of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell University, was scheduled to speak at 2:15 p. m. today on How Bagged Apples Work Out in New York City. Bennett Dominick of Cornell University was to speak at 2:30 on Observations on Apple Movement and Outlook for 1953 and L. W. Marvin of the New York and New England Apple Institute and the Truman Nold National Apple Institute, was scheduled to speak at 3 p. m. on Apple Advertising Moves Fruit in New York and New England.

To Discuss Spray Machines

Tonight at the Governor Clinton Hotel Jim Brann, Art Burrell and growers will discuss the advantages and disadvantages of newer spray equipment.

Thursday morning the subject of fungicides, insecticides and insect control will be discussed. Listed among speakers are D. H. Palmiter of the Poughkeepsie Laboratory, Mike Moriello of New Paltz, Al Cole of Red Hook, Clinton Carlough of Allendale, N. J., A. B. Burrell of Cornell University, W. D. Mills of Cornell. The Hudson Valley Horticultural Research Co-op will meet at noon.

Thursday afternoon there will be the report of the president, James R. Clarke of Milton, report of the resolutions committee, report of the secretary-treasurer, and the following speakers: Charles Palm of Cornell, How to Live with the Food and Drug Administration; "Cal" Calahan, extension horticulturist of Burlington, Vt., Growing High Quality Apples in Vermont; Dr. A. J. Heinicke, director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, What Varieties and Strains of Fruit Should We Plant?; Karl Brase, New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, Controlling Size of Apple and Pear Trees with Root Stocks.

The annual banquet will be held at 7 p. m. Thursday at Bethany Hall, Old Dutch Church. Harold Rogers of Southington, Conn., will act as toastmaster.

The Male Quartet of Catskill, headed by Robert Saxe of Palenville, a member of the society, will present a group of selections. Awards for the best apple, cherry and fruit pies will be made. E. Stuart Hubbard, Jr., is chairman of the banquet committee.

The meeting will continue through Friday afternoon.

Truck and Car Collide On Rt. 28 at Shandaken

A 1951 passenger car operated by Stephen Pupko, 59, of Allaben, was in collision with a 1949 pickup truck driven by Sven Ruthenbeck, 56, of Shandaken, on Route 28, in Shandaken late yesterday morning, state police at Kingston station reported today.

Troopers said the passenger car was traveling west on Route 28 and the truck, turning left, was in collision with the left front fender of the other vehicle.

Ruthenbeck was issued a summons to appear before Justice of Peace Raymond Smith of Phoenicia for operating a car without a driver's license.

Red Cross Package Soldier's Christmas

Wallkill, Jan. 20—In November the Town of Shawangunk Red Cross took up a collection for the American Red Cross project called Christmas on the High Seas. Twenty-six gift boxes were sent and were placed on ships to be given to the boys who were on the ships Christmas Day and would not be able to receive any packages from home. The following letter was received from one of the boys:

"I am one soldier of many who on Christmas Day was made cheerful by Christmas gifts from people like you in the U.S.A. Christmas Day I was on the USNS Marine Serpent, a troop ship bound for Yokohama, Japan. Your gift box made me happy and I want to thank you for the time you spent on it. Without your gift Christmas would have been just another day on ship. There were no church services or anything to make it like the Christmas I used to know.

As you can see this letter is from Korea: I just got back today and it is cold. We are living in tents and sleeping on cots.

I am in army ordnance and attached to the air force. I am now assigned to 930th Aviation Engineers. The 930th builds and repairs air field. My job is repairing all wheeled vehicles. I am supposed to fix anything with wheels.

I don't know where Wallkill is but my guess is it is near Peekskill. I live in Ridgewood, N. J. I hope to be home by next Christmas.

Thank you again for the gift, it meant a lot.

Sincerely yours,
PVT. STANLEY E. RIKER, JR."

This letter received by Mrs. James B. Crowell local Red Cross Chapter worker shows the real gratitude for a small package given to a soldier away from home. Support your local Red Cross.

Several California bridge experts are expected to appear in Dallas today for the begining of a bridge tournament. Since Dallas is my home town, I will take more than a passing interest in this tournament.

When I think of California bridge experts, I am reminded of Dr. Edward Frischauer's sparkling defense against a four-heart contract during California's "Bridge Week" tournament. Dr. Frischauer has been one of the leading players in California for some years, but before all the trouble started in Europe many years ago, he was a member of a famous Viennese team.

The sparkling defense I just mentioned came about when Dr. Frischauer held the East cards in the hand shown today. West opened a low spade, dummy discarded a club, and East's queen forced out declarer's ace of spades. Declarer immediately led his queen of clubs, and Dr. Frischauer took his ace at once.

He immediately returned a spade, forcing dummy to ruff with the five of trumps.

Declarer could see that this defense could give him trouble, so he immediately cashed dummy's king and jack of clubs in order to get rid of his own last two spades. Having done so, he led the queen of hearts from dummy.

Without a single quiver, Frischauer played the king of hearts to win the trick. He then returned his last spade, which South was able to ruff in his own hand.

Declarer led a second trump, and this time West was able to win the trick with the ace. Now West led a fourth round of spades, and East's nine of hearts could not be shut out. If dummy discarded, Dr. Frischauer could ruff with his nine of hearts immediately; and if dummy ruffed with the jack of hearts, the nine of hearts would immediately become the master trump.

MORE THAN 320,000 additional phones installed in '52 reduced the number of people waiting to the smallest total since 1942.

In 1952...

The Telephone Grew in Use, Speed and Value

Great strides made in meeting needs of defense, industry and homes—despite highest costs in history

Last year New York State was busier than ever—and the demand for telephones kept pace. A gain of almost a third of a million phones during the year reflected the State's big increase in industrial activities, preparations for defense and new peaks reached in home building.

To meet this demand for service, your telephone company made new strides in its big building program. Many new telephone buildings were put up, facilities in almost every telephone central office were enlarged, over a million miles of wire in cable were added. At the end of the year the number of people waiting for telephone service was the lowest since 1942.

But keeping up with the demand was just a part of the job. Making service faster, clearer, more dependable, and meeting the telephone's vital role in Civil Defense were other important parts.

These big jobs had to be tackled in the face of high and steadily mounting costs—materials, wages, taxes. The Telephone Company is subject to the same inflationary forces as every other business. Practically everything we bought last year—from repairmen's pliers to telephone poles—cost at least twice as much as it did in 1940.

Yet the telephone continued to take a smaller part of the family budget than it did 12 years ago. Actually, it has increased in price an average of only 15%—more in some cases, less in others, of course, depending on type of service and use made of it. Operating efficiencies and technical improvements have narrowed the gap between our revenues and our mounting costs, but they fall far short of closing it.

We expect that 1953 will offer just as much of a challenge. As things now stand, our big improvement and expansion program will go right ahead, with construction expected to total about $185,000,000—that is, barring unforeseen developments, and providing the money from investors is available.

And, as during the past, the primary aim of every employee of the company will be to bring telephone service to more people and to make that service still faster, clearer, more dependable and more useful to all.

TWENTY-TWO NEW TELEPHONE BUILDINGS were constructed and 23 new central offices were added in 1952 to meet the increased demands for telephone service. A record-breaking average of 26,000,000 calls was made every business day.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY

IMPORTANT STEPS WERE TAKEN IN 1952 to keep essential communication lines open during a war emergency. Dispersal of supply depots, generators for each building to protect against power failure, microfilming of records—all help keep telephone facilities ready.

TELEPHONE SERVICE was faster, clearer, and more dependable than ever. During the year operators dialed more than half of all long distance calls, while in large metropolitan centers customers were able to dial directly far beyond their community boundaries.

Red Cross Package Soldier's Christmas

Wallkill, Jan. 20—In November the Town of Shawangunk Red Cross took up a collection for the American Red Cross project called Christmas on the High Seas. Twenty-six gift boxes were sent and were placed on ships to be given to the boys who were on the ships Christmas Day and would not be able to receive any packages from home. The following letter was received from one of the boys:

"I am one soldier of many who on Christmas Day was made cheerful by Christmas gifts from people like you in the U.S.A. Christmas Day I was on the USNS Marine Serpent, a troop ship bound for Yokohama, Japan. Your gift box made me happy and I want to thank you for the time you spent on it. Without your gift Christmas would have been just another day on ship. There were no church services or anything to make it like the Christmas I used to know.

As you can see this letter is from Korea: I just got back today and it is cold. We are living in tents and sleeping on cots.

I am in army ordnance and attached to the air force. I am now assigned to 930th Aviation Engineers. The 930th builds and repairs air field. My job is repairing all wheeled vehicles. I am supposed to fix anything with wheels.

I don't know where Wallkill is but my guess is it is near Peekskill. I live in Ridgewood, N. J. I hope to be home by next Christmas.

Thank you again for the gift, it meant a lot.

Sincerely yours,
PVT. STANLEY E. RIKER, JR."

This letter received by Mrs. James B. Crowell local Red Cross Chapter worker shows the real gratitude for a small package given to a soldier away from home. Support your local Red Cross.

Several California bridge experts are expected to appear in Dallas today for the begining of a bridge tournament. Since Dallas is my home town, I will take more than a passing interest in this tournament.

When I think of California bridge experts, I am reminded of Dr. Edward Frischauer's sparkling defense against a four-heart contract during California's "Bridge Week" tournament. Dr. Frischauer has been one of the leading players in California for some years, but before all the trouble started in Europe many years ago, he was a member of a famous Viennese team.

The sparkling defense I just mentioned came about when Dr. Frischauer held the East cards in the hand shown today. West opened a low spade, dummy discarded a club, and East's queen forced out declarer's ace of spades. Declarer immediately led his queen of clubs, and Dr. Frischauer took his ace at once.

He immediately returned a spade, forcing dummy to ruff with the five of trumps.

Declarer could see that this defense could give him trouble, so he immediately cashed dummy's king and jack of clubs in order to get rid of his own last two spades. Having done so, he led the queen of hearts from dummy.

Without a single quiver, Frischauer played the king of hearts to win the trick. He then returned his last spade, which South was able to ruff in his own hand.

Declarer led a second trump, and this time West was able to win the trick with the ace. Now West led a fourth round of spades, and East's nine of hearts could not be shut out. If dummy discarded, Dr. Frischauer could ruff with his nine of hearts immediately; and if dummy ruffed with the jack of hearts, the nine of hearts would immediately become the master trump.

MORE THAN 320,000 additional phones installed in '52 reduced the number of people waiting to the smallest total since 1942.

In 1952...

The Telephone Grew in Use, Speed and Value

Great strides made in meeting needs of defense, industry and homes—despite highest costs in history

Last year New York State was busier than ever—and the demand for telephones kept pace. A gain of almost a third of a million phones during the year reflected the State's big increase in industrial activities, preparations for defense and new peaks reached in home building.

To meet this demand for service, your telephone company made new strides in its big building program. Many new telephone buildings were put up, facilities in almost every telephone central office were enlarged, over a million miles of wire in cable were added. At the end of the year the number of people waiting for telephone service was the lowest since 1942.

But keeping up with the demand was just a part of the job. Making service faster, clearer, more dependable, and meeting the telephone's vital role in Civil Defense were other important parts.

These big jobs had to be tackled in the face of high and steadily mounting costs—materials, wages, taxes. The Telephone Company is subject to the same inflationary forces as every other business. Practically everything we bought last year—from repairmen's pliers to telephone poles—cost at least twice as much as it did in 1940.

Yet the telephone continued to take a smaller part of the family budget than it did 12 years ago. Actually, it has increased in price an average of only 15%—more in some cases, less in others, of course, depending on type of service and use made of it. Operating efficiencies and technical improvements have narrowed the gap between our revenues and our mounting costs, but they fall far short of closing it.

We expect that 1953 will offer just as much of a challenge. As things now stand, our big improvement and expansion program will go right ahead, with construction expected to total about $185,000,000—that is, barring unforeseen developments, and providing the money from investors is available.

And, as during the past, the primary aim of every employee of the company will be to bring telephone service to more people and to make that service still faster, clearer, more dependable and more useful to all.

TWENTY-TWO NEW TELEPHONE BUILDINGS were constructed and 23 new central offices were added in 1952 to meet the increased demands for telephone service. A record-breaking average of 26,000,000 calls was made every business day.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY

IMPORTANT STEPS WERE TAKEN IN 1952 to keep essential communication lines open during a war emergency. Dispersal of supply depots, generators for each building to protect against power failure, microfilming of records—all help keep telephone facilities ready.

TELEPHONE SERVICE was faster, clearer, and more dependable than ever. During the year operators dialed more than half of all long distance calls, while in large metropolitan centers customers were able to dial directly far beyond their community boundaries.

Here in EASTERN NEW YORK

4 NEW CENTRAL OFFICES WERE PLACED IN SERVICE

30 MORE CENTRAL OFFICES GOT MAJOR ADDITIONS

4 NEW BUILDINGS WERE CONSTRUCTED

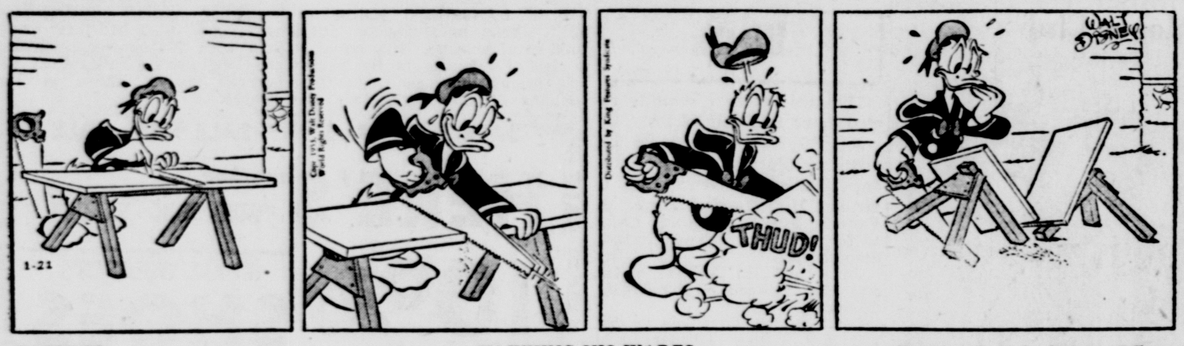

4 OTHER BUILDINGS WERE ENLARGED

MORE THAN 90,000 MILES OF WIRE IN CABLE WERE PLACED

16,000 NEW TELEPHONES WERE ADDED

OUR EXPANSION AND IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM TOTALED OVER $12,000,000.

5 County Schools Vie for Honors In Press Project

Student journalists from five county schools have submitted entries to the annual School Press Project, according to Miss Katherine M. Murphy, executive secretary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which is directing the competition in Ulster county. The participating school papers featured in their December issues news and feature stories, editorials, and cartoons on either of the following subjects: "Our County's Needs in the War on TB" and "What Does Tuberculosis Mean to Me?"

The project, sponsored jointly by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press has a two-fold purpose: to stimulate interest in what is being done and what can be done in Ulster county to fight tuberculosis; to promote good journalism by providing students with an opportunity to conduct an editorial campaign on a subject of primary importance to youth. Entries include school papers from Ellenville High School, George Washington School, Kingston; Myron J. Michael Junior High School, Kingston; New Paltz High School, Wallkill Central School.

The following judges met at the County Building, 74 John street, Tuesday to select the outstanding entry from Ulster county: Mrs. Ross K. Osterhoudt, Christmas Seals Sale Chairman in the township of Marbletown; Dr. Dudley W. Hargraves, County Commissioner of Health; Louis R. Netter, editor of The Kingston Daily Freeman.

The winning paper will be forwarded to the state association which will select nine entries to be sent to the National Tuberculosis Association for judgment by a committee of health educators and journalists. Evaluation will be based on evidence of understanding of the subject, accuracy, clearness, originality and journalistic style.

Speaks for Freedom Crusade

Polish Exile Tells Lions About Life in Red Slave Labor Camp

A vivid word-picture of life in the Soviet slave labor camps was given at the regular Tuesday noon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel by Richard Edward Mossin, political exile from Poland.

Mossin, a native of Warsaw, Poland, was a lawyer and sport journalist in that country when World War 2 broke out. In 1939, after the simultaneous invasion of Poland by Soviet Russia and Germany, he was arrested by the Russians.

Sentenced Without Trial

After one year in prison in Nikolajev on the Black Sea, Mossin was sentenced without trial to five years "correction" in forced labor camps. He worked as a manual laborer in the North Polar region on the White Sea and then in the northern part of Siberia. After Russia was attacked by Germany, he was released and joined the Polish Army, after which he went to the Middle East. Later in the war, he served as war correspondent in the Italian campaigns.

Mossin is now executive secretary of the United States division of the International Federation of Free Journalists.

Worked at 60 Below Zero

Speaking in a heavy Polish accent, Mossin nevertheless retained the undivided interest of his audience as he spoke from his own experiences, telling of working in 60 degrees below zero cold and living on a diet of "black bread and cabbage soup."

In his two years in Russia, he said, he "only came to know one foundation of its economy." That foundation, he said, was the "vast reservoir of slave labor, numbering countless millions."

It was his good fortune to survive, Mossin said, although many of his friends and companions succumbed to the rigors and privations of the camps.

He told of repeated questionings by Soviet officers who tried to get him to confess to being a spy. Stating that he was frequently beaten, he said that to this day he "cannot understand how I held out."

U. S. Only Hope

When he was finally allowed to go free, and arrived in Iran, Mossin said he experienced "an emotion I had almost forgotten—that of belonging to the human race."

The United States, he said, "with its strength and its democracy, is the only hope for the future." He urged support of the Crusade for Freedom, under whose auspices he spoke, and its program of Radio Free Europe.

On behalf of himself and other political exiles and "their brothers and sisters behind the iron curtain," he called for the continuation of the Radio Free Europe program, which, he said, keeps alive their faith in the future.

Refers to Inaugural

Mossin was introduced by F. H. Law, program chairman for the day. In closing the meeting, Lawrence M. Jensen, second vice-president, said he could not help comparing the conditions Mossin spoke of with the situation in this country, as exemplified in the inauguration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. A few minutes before the meeting, Jensen said, he had watched President Eisenhower and the now ex-President, Harry S. Truman, riding together in an automobile. "It's a great country we live in," he concluded.

New York Renews Plea To Legalize Lotteries

New York, Jan. 21—The city council has renewed its plea to the legislature and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to take action leading to legalization of lotteries and off-track betting on horse races.

Resolutions for lotteries, passed yesterday by the city's lower legislative branch, said tax revenue from that source was urgently needed by New York city.

A resolution for off-track betting said it would yield tax money to expand and improve hospital facilities throughout the state.

Democratic majority leader Joseph T. Sharkey, speaking for the off-track betting proposal, challenged Dewey to "close every track in New York" if racing and betting are wrong.

"It's about time we swept aside the hypocrisy at Albany," Sharkey declared. "Up there they are willing to take revenue from betting on horse races at tracks. If it's wrong outside a track, it's wrong inside."

Two of the resolutions called for state-wide referendums on the question of legalizing lotteries and off-track betting. A third called for a constitutional amendment to permit gambling as a revenue measure. Several councilmen sponsored the resolutions.

Similar pleas from New York city have been rejected at Albany for a number of years.

Five in Crew Unhurt

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 20 (AP)—Five crew members of a twin-engine T-7 plane from nearby Forbes Air Force Base escaped injury in a forced landing near Fredonia, Kas., yesterday. A public information office spokesman at the base said the plane was returning to Forbes from a routine training flight to Tinker Field, Oklahoma City, when the plane developed engine trouble. He said the craft made a "wheels up" landing 10 miles south and six miles west of Fredonia which is about 100 miles south of here.

Taxi Strike Ends

Albany, Jan. 21 (AP)—About 150 members of an AFL teamsters union local last night ended a strike that had idled nearly half the city's taxicab fleet for 15 hours. Approximately 50 cars were left driverless when employes of three cab companies walked out yesterday. The reason for the strike was not clear. Company officials and several drivers said they had no idea what caused the walkout, and officials of Teamsters Local 895 declined comment.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Sometimes a newspaper will go through extra trouble to get out a special copy covering an anniversary. They will unearth precious prints and reprint them, like the reprinting of the 1875 Atlas of Ulster County some time ago by The Freeman. Copies of such issues are usually saved. The New York Journal American of Monday, Jan. 12, 1953 had three full pages covering our 32 Presidents of the United States, from Washington through Truman. Although many of the portraits I have seen before, these are copyrighted by Bachrach, famous photographers of men, 54 E. 52nd street in New York, and they were published by special permission. They do not state who painted each original. I remember the framed photographs of famous men in front of the Bachrach studio, back in the late 1920's.

This copy of the NY Journal-American is worth keeping in the American historical section of the library bookshelf as Prof. Allan Nevins, noted historian, author and editor and DeWitt Clinton professor of history at Columbia University concisely covered the history of each president. At the end of each writeup he gave each United States President, a rating. Washington and Lincoln received, tops, or exceptional. Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, F. D. Roosevelt and Wilson received, excellent. Some he listed as mediocre, and some poor. In his opinion he tells why.

Just a line or two from these various descriptions. For Washington he sums up with "When Washington left office, the government was strong and respected." Adams has gone down through the ages for saying: "Millions for defense, not one cent for tribute." Then, according to Prof. Nevins, Jefferson believed the national power of the new government was "exercised too largely by the well-born, well-educated and well-heeled." He tried to bring simplicity to the official family. He even once received the British minister in carpet slippers. Nevins writes about John Q. Adams, that he was too highly educated, too austere, and too much the Yankee to suit the South and the fast-rising West. When Adams left office, he was so bruised in spirit, he refused to attend the inaugural of his successor, Andrew Jackson. About Harrison, Nevins wrote that his inaugural speech was so long, Secretary of State, Daniel Webster cut it down to the bone and still it lasted for one hour and 40 minutes. Nevins writes, it gave Harrison sufficient time to catch the chill that eventually caused pneumonia and Harrison's death one month after he was inaugurated.

Prof. Nevins also covers briefly some of the first ladies of the land by short descriptions. He considered Dolly Madison the most colorful hostess as she filled the White House with glitter and gaiety. Dolly was several inches taller than the President's 5 feet and four inches and called him "my darling little husband," as they were deeply in love. During the War of 1812 she stayed at the Mansion until a few hours before the British landed and was able to save Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Washington, and among Madisons's papers, it is said she carried to safety the original Declaration of Independence and Constitution. Some of the other descriptions of the other wives, perhaps are not so flattering, but they reveal the interesting personalities of the ladies who graced the White House as first official hostesses of the nation.

Why We Say--

. . . Honor system

When a convict is put on parole today, it is done somewhat differently than the name signifies. Originally it was "Parole d'honneur" in France or "word of honor". Before the person was released from prison, he was made to give his "word of honor" that he would not again be a law violator.

Two Actions Are Settled in Court

Settlement of two negligence actions arising out of a collision between a truck and a Kingston Water Department vehicle near Airport Inn was announced this morning in Supreme Court after a jury had been selected and the case partially tried. Henry Pahler, executor, etc., brought an action against the City of Kingston and former superintendent of the water department John Byrne for damage to the Pahler truck and George Pitcher brought an action to recover for personal injuries. Pitcher was the driver of the truck.

Previously two actions brought by John Byrne against Pahler and Pitcher and an action brought by the city to recover for damage to the city's vehicle, had been announced adjusted. The four action had originally been consolidated. Charles H. Gaffney appeared for the City of Kingston and Allan L. Gurley with John Egan appeared for Pahler in the two actions which went to trial. The jurors on the case were excused from further consideration of the matter.

Also settled were Nos. 144 and 177, two negligence actions brought by Howard M. Kelly and W. Thomas Tierney, etc., against Frank Ruiz, Jr., and Anthony J. Ruiz. Aaron E. Klein appeared for Kelly and Roy L. Featherstone for Tierney. Defendants were represented by Robert Ortale and Cook & Cook.

Dyers End Strike

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—The CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America announced yesterday settlement of a two-week strike against Kent Stores, Inc., a cleaning and dyeing chain. The union said the walkout was settled when its Local 239 was recognized as collective bargaining agent for the 350 production and maintenance employes at the firm's plants in Whitestone and Jamaica, Queens. Jack Cohen, manager of Local 239, said the strikers ratified terms of the agreement, including a 40-hour week, time and a half for overtime, paid holidays and paid vacations, social welfare insurance and free medical service under the union plan.

The first practical typewriter was placed on the market in 1874.

5 County Schools Vie for Honors In Press Project

Student journalists from five county schools have submitted entries to the annual School Press Project, according to Miss Katherine M. Murthy, executive secretary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which is directing the competition in Ulster county. The participating school papers featured in their December issues news and feature stories, editorials, and cartoons on either of the following subjects: "Our County's Needs in the War on TB" and "What Does Tuberculosis Mean to Me?"

The project, sponsored jointly by the National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press has a two-fold purpose: to stimulate interest in what is being done and what can be done in Ulster county to fight tuberculosis; to promote good journalism by providing students with an opportunity to conduct an editorial campaign on a subject of primary importance to youth. Entries include school papers from Ellenville High School, George Washington School, Kingston; Myron J. Michael Junior High School, Kingston; New Paltz High School, Wallkill Central School.

The following judges met at the County Building, 74 John street, Tuesday to select the outstanding entry from Ulster county: Mrs. Ross K. Osterhoudt, Christmas Seals Sale Chairman in the township of Marbletown; Dr. Dudley W. Hargraves, County Commissioner of Health; Louis R. Netter, editor of The Kingston Daily Freeman.

The winning paper will be forwarded to the state association which will select nine entries to be sent to the National Tuberculosis Association for judgment by a committee of health educators and journalists. Evaluation will be based on evidence of understanding of the subject, accuracy, clearness, originality and journalistic style.

Polish Exile Tells Lions About Life in Red Slave Labor Camp

A vivid word-picture of life in the Soviet slave labor camps was given at the regular Tuesday noon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel by Richard Edward Mossin, political exile from Poland.

Mossin, a native of Warsaw, Poland, was a lawyer and sport journalist in that country when World War 2 broke out. In 1939, after the simultaneous invasion of Poland by Soviet Russia and Germany, he was arrested by the Russians.

Sentenced Without Trial

After one year in prison in Nikolajev on the Black Sea, Mossin was sentenced without trial to five years "correction" in forced labor camps. He worked as a manual laborer in the North Polar region on the White Sea and then in the northern part of Siberia. After Russia was attacked by Germany, he was released and joined the Polish Army, after which he went to the Middle East. Later in the war, he served as war correspondent in the Italian campaigns.

Mossin is now executive secretary of the United States division of the International Federation of Free Journalists.

Worked at 60 Below Zero

Speaking in a heavy Polish accent, Mossin nevertheless retained the undivided interest of his audience as he spoke from his own experiences, telling of working in 60 degrees below zero cold and living on a diet of "black bread and cabbage soup."

In his two years in Russia, he said, he "only came to know one foundation of its economy." That foundation, he said, was the "vast reservoir of slave labor, numbering countless millions."

It was his good fortune to survive, Mossin said, although many of his friends and companions succumbed to the rigors and privations of the camps.

He told of repeated questionings by Soviet officers who tried to get him to confess to being a spy. Stating that he was frequently beaten, he said that to this day he "cannot understand how I held out."

U. S. Only Hope

When he was finally allowed to go free, and arrived in Iran, Mossin said he experienced "an emotion I had almost forgotten—that of belonging to the human race."

The United States, he said, "with its strength and its democracy, is the only hope for the future." He urged support of the Crusade for Freedom, under whose auspices he spoke, and its program of Radio Free Europe.

On behalf of himself and other political exiles and "their brothers and sisters behind the iron curtain," he called for the continuation of the Radio Free Europe program, which, he said, keeps alive their faith in the future.

Refers to Inaugural

Mossin was introduced by F. H. Law, program chairman for the day. In closing the meeting, Lawrence M. Jensen, second vice-president, said he could not help comparing the conditions Mossin spoke of with the situation in this country, as exemplified in the inauguration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. A few minutes before the meeting, Jensen said, he had watched President Eisenhower and the now ex-President, Harry S. Truman, riding together in an automobile. "It's a great country we live in," he concluded.

Troop Ships Are Due

San Francisco, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Transport Gen. J. C. Breckinridge arrives today from the Orient with 1,538 army men, 92 air force men, six navy personnel, and two marines. The Transport Gen. E. T. Collins is due tomorrow from the Far East with 2,091 army men. The Transport Thomas Jefferson docks Friday, carrying 38 navy and 30 army personnel from Honolulu.

New York Renews Plea To Legalize Lotteries

New York, Jan. 21—The city council has renewed its plea to the legislature and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to take action leading to legalization of lotteries and off-track betting on horse races.

Resolutions for lotteries, passed yesterday by the city's lower legislative branch, said tax revenue from that source was urgently needed by New York city.

A resolution for off-track betting said it would yield tax money to expand and improve hospital facilities throughout the state.

Democratic majority leader Joseph T. Sharkey, speaking for the off-track betting proposal, challenged Dewey to "close every track in New York" if racing and betting are wrong.

"It's about time we swept aside the hypocrisy at Albany," Sharkey declared. "Up there they are willing to take revenue from betting on horse races at tracks. If it's wrong outside a track, it's wrong inside."

Two of the resolutions called for state-wide referendums on the question of legalizing lotteries and off-track betting. A third called for a constitutional amendment to permit gambling as a revenue measure. Several councilmen sponsored the resolutions.

Similar pleas from New York city have been rejected at Albany for a number of years.

Five in Crew Unhurt

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 20 (AP)—Five crew members of a twin-engine T-7 plane from nearby Forbes Air Force Base escaped injury in a forced landing near Fredonia, Kas., yesterday. A public information office spokesman at the base said the plane was returning to Forbes from a routine training flight to Tinker Field, Oklahoma City, when the plane developed engine trouble. He said the craft made a "wheels up" landing 10 miles south and six miles west of Fredonia which is about 100 miles south of here.

Taxi Strike Ends

Albany, Jan. 21 (AP)—About 150 members of an AFL teamsters union local last night ended a strike that had idled nearly half the city's taxicab fleet for 15 hours. Approximately 50 cars were left driverless when employes of three cab companies walked out yesterday. The reason for the strike was not clear. Company officials and several drivers said they had no idea what caused the walkout, and officials of Teamsters Local 895 declined comment.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Sometimes a newspaper will go through extra trouble to get out a special copy covering an anniversary. They will unearth precious prints and reprint them, like the reprinting of the 1875 Atlas of Ulster County some time ago by The Freeman. Copies of such issues are usually saved. The New York Journal American of Monday, Jan. 12, 1953 had three full pages covering our 32 Presidents of the United States, from Washington through Truman. Although many of the portraits I have seen before, these are copyrighted by Bachrach, famous photographers of men, 54 E. 52nd street in New York, and they were published by special permission. They do not state who painted each original. I remember the framed photographs of famous men in front of the Bachrach studio, back in the late 1920's.

This copy of the NY Journal-American is worth keeping in the American historical section of the library bookshelf as Prof. Allan Nevins, noted historian, author and editor and DeWitt Clinton professor of history at Columbia University concisely covered the history of each president. At the end of each writeup he gave each United States President, a rating. Washington and Lincoln received, tops, or exceptional. Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, F. D. Roosevelt and Wilson received, excellent. Some he listed as mediocre, and some poor. In his opinion he tells why.

Just a line or two from these various descriptions. For Washington he sums up with "When Washington left office, the government was strong and respected." Adams has gone down through the ages for saying: "Millions for defense, not one cent for tribute." Then, according to Prof. Nevins, Jefferson believed the national power of the new government was "exercised too largely by the well-born, well-educated and well-heeled." He tried to bring simplicity to the official family. He even once received the British minister in carpet slippers. Nevins writes about John Q. Adams, that he was too highly educated, too austere, and too much the Yankee to suit the South and the fast-rising West. When Adams left office, he was so bruised in spirit, he refused to attend the inaugural of his successor, Andrew Jackson. About Harrison, Nevins wrote that his inaugural speech was so long, Secretary of State, Daniel Webster cut it down to the bone and still it lasted for one hour and 40 minutes. Nevins writes, it gave Harrison sufficient time to catch the chill that eventually caused pneumonia and Harrison's death one month after he was inaugurated.

Prof. Nevins also covers briefly some of the first ladies of the land by short descriptions. He considered Dolly Madison the most colorful hostess as she filled the White House with glitter and gaiety. Dolly was several inches taller than the President's 5 feet and four inches and called him "my darling little husband," as they were deeply in love. During the War of 1812 she stayed at the Mansion until a few hours before the British landed and was able to save Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Washington, and among Madisons's papers, it is said she carried to safety the original Declaration of Independence and Constitution. Some of the other descriptions of the other wives, perhaps are not so flattering, but they reveal the interesting personalities of the ladies who graced the White House as first official hostesses of the nation.

Mrs. Laidlaw Reviews Book at Sorosis Club

At a meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood, The Coming of the Scot by Dr. John Finley, was reviewed by Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw.

In the book, Dr. Finley, formerly editor of the New York Times and later commissioner of education for New York state, stresses the courage and intrepid spirit of the Scot. "This," said Mrs. Laidlaw, "gave impetus to the settlement of the middle Atlantic and Southern states, as well as the opening of the West by Scottish emigrants."

Continuing the review, Mrs. Laidlaw spoke of the persistent love of freedom and fearlessness in speaking out for it which "made Scotch descendants the logical sponsors of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution. Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, and John Rutledge, all of Scottish blood, were leaders in the fight for democracy."

The time of settlement, annexation, and expansion were described along with the Scotsmen who played prominent roles. "The author explained the establishment of many fine schools and colleges by the Scotch Presbyterians, due to their intense interest in education and religion," noted the speaker. "Princeton," she said, "was outstanding in this development, and became the springboard for some of our most noteworthy men in public life."

Mrs. Laidlaw concluded by quoting from the book, "Woodrow Wilson said that every line of strength in our history is a line colored by Scottish blood."

Sorosis will next meet with Mrs. DeWeese DeWitt, 202 Albany avenue, on Monday, Feb. 2.

Miss Audrey D. Public Expectations, Topic for Conference January 22, 23

What the Public Expects of Our Schools, will be the topic discussed in group meetings on Thursday and Friday, during the Mid-Year Teachers Conference in the George Washington School. Because of its interest of teachers, this phase of the discussion will be held on both days to accommodate more teachers who would like to attend.

The panel, composed of business men, board of education members, and teachers will specifically report on the purposes of the public school.

Outline of Panel

Outlined for the concept of education panel, are a number of questions. Among them, Is it to teach the basic subjects, more commonly known as the 3R's; to instill in pupils the principles of good citizenship, moral and spiritual values, or to train them in the field of vocational guidance; should all students be trained to meet college entrance requirements; is there some other purpose not mentioned which should be emphasized, or does each have a place in the public schools of our nation; and how could the curriculum be adapted to better meet the needs of all the children?

Dr. John Cotton from the State University Teachers College at New Paltz will act as consultant during the discussion on Thursday afternoon. The panel members will be Robert B. O'Reilly and Harold H. Darling, members of the board of education; John J. Ross, manager of W. T. Grant Co.; Edwin T. Strong, Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation; Benjamin Schecter, P-TA president school 6; Mrs. Raymond Gilkey, P-TA president school 5; Miss Mary Kelly, Kingston High School; Mrs. Janet Kernochan, school 6; and Loryne B. Connick, head of commercial department, Kingston High School, chairman.

On Friday morning, the consultants will be Dr. Paul G. Bulger, assistant provost, Teachers College, Columbia University; and Edward Sabol, coordinator, State College for Teachers, Albany. Panel members will include William Rylance, board of education; Thomas Plunket and Hugh Elwyn, members of P-TA George Washington School; Jacob Tremper, president of Myron J. Michael Educational Association; George Schneider, jeweler; Vincent R. Burns, manager of Montgomery Ward; Victor Mahoney, Kingston High School; Mrs. Margaret Branigan, director of vocal music; and Loryne Connick, chairman.

To Discuss Curriculum

Dr. Harry Spencer supervisor of junior high school education, and Dr. Elizabeth Carey, elementary supervisor both from the State Education Department at Albany, will be consultants at the workshop group reporting on Trends in Curriculum Development at the Thursday afternoon session.

Dr. Carey has been a member of the New York State Education Department staff for many years having been a supervisor in the Bureau of Curriculum Development before coming to this Bureau. She did her Ph.D. on the subject of non-public education in New York state and is recognized as an authority on that subject. In the school year 1951, she coordinated and directed the sections on the improvement of the teaching of mathematics in connection with the program for the readjustment of high school education. This was in connection with ten conference-clinics sponsored throughout the state by the New York State Education Department. Dr. Carey is the author of many professional books and publications in the field of education.

Dr. Spencer has worked extensively with the high school readjustment program and is familiar with actual curriculum practices throughout New York state. Last month he was appointed to the newly created post of junior high school supervisor.

Chairman of this panel on Curriculum Development is Miss Isabel Malone of Kingston High School. Other panel members are Richard M. Kalish, member of the Kingston board of education and Miss Alphonsine Kuhn, Miss Clara Ostrander, Miss Martha Barnett and Joseph M. Boswell, teachers.

Parade of Bands Adds Musicians On Thursday Bill

Five more musical groups for the fourth annual Parade of Bands program scheduled Thursday, Jan. 22, at the municipal auditorium, Mike Marchuk, secretary of Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, announced this morning.

The new entertainers included the following:

Roger Baer and his Hammond organ, Joe Vigna and his accordion, William Paetow and his accordion, Frank Spies and his accordion and Dorothy Norell, piano and vocals.

Thursday's big benefit Parade of Bands show at the auditorium, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., promises to be one of the best in the series of the annual programs for the March of Dimes fund in Ulster county, judging from the list of entertainers due to appear.

Fourth Annual Show

The Parade of Bands, organized four years ago by Marchuk and Dick McCarthy, sportscaster of WKNY, has gained in popularity over the years and is recognized as one of the biggest contributing factors in swelling the funds for polio in Ulster county.

"We're set to make another big night of it Thursday for the polio fund in the county," Marchuk and McCarthy agreed today. They indicated that a big battery of telephone operators will be stationed at the auditorium waiting for calls from the radio audience.

All of the musicians appearing through the courtesy of Local 215 have donated their services for the big show, a custom which the local musicians union has followed in past years in order to promote the program for the polio campaign.

Thursday's event will be followed as in former years. The radio listening audiere may request their particur musical favorite by calling the auditorium and making a pledge toward the polio drive. Persons in hand at the auditorium also may make pledges and hear thir favorite musical groups and musical numbers.

"We'll be on had from 8 o'clock until the last ledge is received, regardless of the hour," Marchuk and McCarthy commented today.

Mrs. Laidlaw Reviews Book at Sorosis Club

At a meeting of Sorosis Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood, The Coming of the Scot by Dr. John Finley, was reviewed by Mrs. Arthur J. Laidlaw.

In the book, Dr. Finley, formerly editor of the New York Times and later commissioner of education for New York state, stresses the courage and intrepid spirit of the Scot. "This," said Mrs. Laidlaw, "gave impetus to the settlement of the middle Atlantic and Southern states, as well as the opening of the West by Scottish emigrants."

Continuing the review, Mrs. Laidlaw spoke of the persistent love of freedom and fearlessness in speaking out for it which "made Scotch descendants the logical sponsors of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution. Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, and John Rutledge, all of Scottish blood, were leaders in the fight for democracy."

The time of settlement, annexation, and expansion were described along with the Scotsmen who played prominent roles. "The author explained the establishment of many fine schools and colleges by the Scotch Presbyterians, due to their intense interest in education and religion," noted the speaker. "Princeton," she said, "was outstanding in this development, and became the springboard for some of our most noteworthy men in public life."

Mrs. Laidlaw concluded by quoting from the book, "Woodrow Wilson said that every line of strength in our history is a line colored by Scottish blood."

Sorosis will next meet with Mrs. DeWeese DeWitt, 202 Albany avenue, on Monday, Feb. 2.

Public Expectations, Topic for Conference January 22, 23

What the Public Expects of Our Schools, will be the topic discussed in group meetings on Thursday and Friday, during the Mid-Year Teachers Conference in the George Washington School. Because of its interest of teachers, this phase of the discussion will be held on both days to accommodate more teachers who would like to attend.

The panel, composed of business men, board of education members, and teachers will specifically report on the purposes of the public school.

Outline of Panel

Outlined for the concept of education panel, are a number of questions. Among them, Is it to teach the basic subjects, more commonly known as the 3R's; to instill in pupils the principles of good citizenship, moral and spiritual values, or to train them in the field of vocational guidance; should all students be trained to meet college entrance requirements; is there some other purpose not mentioned which should be emphasized, or does each have a place in the public schools of our nation; and how could the curriculum be adapted to better meet the needs of all the children?

Dr. John Cotton from the State University Teachers College at New Paltz will act as consultant during the discussion on Thursday afternoon. The panel members will be Robert B. O'Reilly and Harold H. Darling, members of the board of education; John J. Ross, manager of W. T. Grant Co.; Edwin T. Strong, Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation; Benjamin Schecter, P-TA president school 6; Mrs. Raymond Gilkey, P-TA president school 5; Miss Mary Kelly, Kingston High School; Mrs. Janet Kernochan, school 6; and Loryne B. Connick, head of commercial department, Kingston High School, chairman.

On Friday morning, the consultants will be Dr. Paul G. Bulger, assistant provost, Teachers College, Columbia University; and Edward Sabol, coordinator, State College for Teachers, Albany. Panel members will include William Rylance, board of education; Thomas Plunket and Hugh Elwyn, members of P-TA George Washington School; Jacob Tremper, president of Myron J. Michael Educational Association; George Schneider, jeweler; Vincent R. Burns, manager of Montgomery Ward; Victor Mahoney, Kingston High School; Mrs. Margaret Branigan, director of vocal music; and Loryne Connick, chairman.

To Discuss Curriculum

Dr. Harry Spencer supervisor of junior high school education, and Dr. Elizabeth Carey, elementary supervisor both from the State Education Department at Albany, will be consultants at the workshop group reporting on Trends in Curriculum Development at the Thursday afternoon session.

Dr. Carey has been a member of the New York State Education Department staff for many years having been a supervisor in the Bureau of Curriculum Development before coming to this Bureau. She did her Ph.D. on the subject of non-public education in New York state and is recognized as an authority on that subject. In the school year 1951, she coordinated and directed the sections on the improvement of the teaching of mathematics in connection with the program for the readjustment of high school education. This was in connection with ten conference-clinics sponsored throughout the state by the New York State Education Department. Dr. Carey is the author of many professional books and publications in the field of education.

Dr. Spencer has worked extensively with the high school readjustment program and is familiar with actual curriculum practices throughout New York state. Last month he was appointed to the newly created post of junior high school supervisor.

Chairman of this panel on Curriculum Development is Miss Isabel Malone of Kingston High School. Other panel members are Richard M. Kalish, member of the Kingston board of education and Miss Alphonsine Kuhn, Miss Clara Ostrander, Miss Martha Barnett and Joseph M. Boswell, teachers.

IF NOT FORGIVING

The following letter describes a very difficult situation: "I have just received an invitation to a shower for my husband's niece. This shower is being given by a woman is a very close friend of my husband's family, but whom I have not spoken to for some time. I suppose my name was on the list given to her by his family. This has placed me in a very embarrassing position as I can't imagine that it would be proper to accept hospitality from someone I am no longer friendly with, and yet, I don't want to stay away from the shower and cause hurt feelings in the family. Can you help me?"

Unless you are willing to "forgive and forget," it would be impossible to go to the house of someone with whom you are on such bad terms that you are not even speaking. You can, however, certainly send a present to your niece in care of the hostess and explain to your niece, when you see her, your reason for not having gone to the party.

Reply Depends On

Dear Mrs. Post: I have an invitation to a buffet luncheon written on a visiting card which asks for a reply. Will you please tell me how this should be acknowledged? Should I telephone my acceptance, write it on a visiting card, or should I write a formal acceptance?

Answer: Correctly, you write a formal third-person acceptance. Of course, if you know the hostess very well, you can reply in any way you please from telephoning to writing "Coming with pleasure" on your visiting card.

If Church Permits

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to be married soon and I would like to know if it would be proper to have the selection "My Hero," which is a favorite of mine, sung by the soloist during the ceremony?

Answer: The answer depends upon whether secular music is permitted in your church. If it is, it would be quite all right. If not permitted in the church it could certainly be played at the reception.

Is it permissible to cut a leafy salad with a knife? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but her leaflet E-19, "Table Rules of Importance," will help you. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G. New York 19, N. Y.

Mother's Own Self-Assurance Will Help Banish Child's Fear

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Six weeks ago, Phillip's grandmother fell on an icy pavement and broke her leg.

Thirty minutes after the hospital telephoned, Philip's mother had him zipped into his snowsuit, ready to deliver to a neighbor. Pre-occupied, her mind on trains, she hugged him and the neighbor goodbye, saying, "He won't be any trouble. Mother will be home tonight, dear. Daddy and I will collect you in time to take you home for supper."

But she couldn't keep this promise. Though her husband collected their child that evening, she had to remain with her mother for five days.

"Now he won't let me out of his sight," she writes. "I can't even persuade him to go out into the yard alone. Though I've tried to explain that I had to stay with his grandmother, nothing I say has any effect. Do you advise my taking Philip to a child psychiatrist?"

No. Child psychiatrists are very busy, overworked people. If we can possibly solve our problems without taking time from other children who may need it more than ours, we should try to do so.

Philip's mother, for instance, will be able to dispose of her problem quite easily, once she stops feeling guilty for breaking her word to him. Now it's got her all confused. It's making her feel helpless and incapable of regaining his trust. It's trying to make her believe that she was a bad mother.

That's evil nonsense, of course. So let Philip's mother be done with fear that she has injured her little boy. If she wants him to believe in her again, she begins by believing in herself again.

Just as soon as her self-trust is restored, she can begin to take definite action on Philip's fear of her disappearing again.

The action should consist of constant reassuring reports to him on her whereabouts.

For example, when they go out to the yard together, let her give him his shovel and say happily to him, "Have a good time digging, darling—and when you want Mother, she'll be just inside in the kitchen. She won't leave the house."

When she tucks him in for his afternoon nap, let her say, "My, how safe and cozy you are! Nothing can hurt you. Mother is just downstairs."

Or when visitors come and Philip tries to distract her attention by clambering up on her lap, let Philip's mother deliberately interrupt her talk with her caller to cuddle her little boy and say, "Everything's fine, darling. Mother's right here in the room with you."

If she seizes every opportunity to quietly contradict Philip's fear that she may disappear again, the fear will give him up as a poor prospect for persuasion.

But we must contradict the fear consciously, not haphazardly. Only they will Philip sense the reassuring fact that his mother knows herself that she is in control of his circumstances.

Marriage Racket Bared

Manila (AP)—The National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) reports it has uncovered a new "marriage of convenience" racket to facilitate the entry of alien Chinese women into the Philippines. The NBI says its agents discovered that hired Filipino "grooms" go to Hong Kong and marry Chinese "brides" who then legally enter the Philippines. Once inside the country the Hong Kong marriage is quickly forgotton. "Actual re-marriage of the Chinese woman with her 'real' spouse here," says the NBI, "is just a matter of contacting the right parties in the Immigration Bureau who can give the woman documentation as a resident alien." A certificate issued to the woman showing her as a resident alien presumably smooths the way for a quick legal marriage to a Chinese national living in the Philippines.

Six Cities Represented at Meeting to Form Semi-Pro League

Baseball representatives from six mid-Hudson and northern New Jersey cities met last night at the Hotel Newburgh to discuss plans for the formation of a semi-pro baseball league this season.

William D. Ryan, manager of the Newburgh Jewels, who originated the idea, expressed complete satisfaction with the results of the confab and predicted organization of the league at a second meeting scheduled for Feb. 8 at Newburgh.

Cities represented last night were Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Staten Island, and Paterson and Plainfield from New Jersey.

Applications from several other franchises will be considered on Feb. 8 and two will be admitted to the league to make an eight-team circuit.

Davi, Jones Attend

The Kingston representatives were Addison Jones and Fred Davi, two veteran baseball men who have been identified with semi-pro and organized ball for a couple of decades.

Which of the two will operate the Kingston franchise is something that will be decided between now and Feb. 8.

Davi announced at the meeting that he was ready, willing and able to field a team in the proposed league. Jones, a prominent factor in organized ball, said he would need a few days to discuss the matter with baseball associates.

The meeting was attended by Sam DeGuise and Ed Kronk from Paterson, both of whom have had wide experience in the baseball field. Kronk, a New York Giant scout, played nearly 10 years of minor league ball and presently operates the Giant Rookies.

Poughkeepsie In

George Steutzle, the Pine Plains basketball-baseball promoter, is expected to head the franchise operating at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie. He did not attend last night's session but sent word that Poughkeepsie could be counted on.

Louis Shapiro and Ryan spoke for the Newburgh Jewels franchise, a going concern for the past several years. Their prospects for 1953 have been greatly enhanced by their return to Recreation Field for Sunday ball. Last year the Jewels did not get permission to use the stadium and were forced to play at Mountainville, seven miles south of Newburgh.

Communications were received from two other prominent semi-pro baseball figures, Vic Scafuro of Plainfield, N. J. and Gabe Rispoli of Staten Island. Their teams have played in this area for the past several years.

Ryan Confident

After several hours deliberation, the baseball moguls adjourned with definite plans for 1953.

"We don't have a name right now," Ryan pointed out, "but we have six teams ready to go and by Feb. 8 we should have both a name and two more franchises to complete an 8-team league."

The prominent CYO sports figure said the financial setup of the league was sound and there was little doubt in his mind that it would succeed.

"Semi-pro baseball has been in the doldrums for a few years, "Ryan admitted, "but we feel that it's due for a new cycle. The type of league we propose should be attractive to the fans in the various cities and the overhead will not be so heavy as to invite financial chaos. We think it will be a going proposition and the fans will like it.

The league schedule will be predominantly night ball, with most of the games scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The tentative schedule calls for two games a week; one at home and one away, with a double round robin for six or eight teams.

Definite action on many technical matters was postponed until the next meeting.

Boys Club Boxers Entertain American Legion

KPA's 107 Points New YMCA 'B' Record

The Kingston Patrolmen's Association basketeers combined with Newkirk Aces to set an all-time YMCA "B" League point harvest of 202, while Three Bros. Farms outclassed the eager but ineffectual Economy Construction five, 78-40, last night on the Y boards.

The KPA won the feature attraction, 107-95, in a contest featured by sensational shooting. The junior patrolmen were clocked in quarter outputs of 28-25-22-32.

Lou Schafer, Y basketball director, said the 107 points by the KPA and the combined 202 are new "B" records.

John Letus led the KPA scoring spree with 30 points. Bill Fitzgerald hit 24, Tony Altamore 13, Gordon 14 and Art Pinkham had 16 as the KPA's hit with a phenomenal percentage from the floor.

The Newkirks also showed marked familiarity with the basket as Paul Houghtaling racked up 27 points, Bill Martini 21, while Frank Tiano and Richie Gollnick poured in 16 and 13 respectively.

KPA eked out a 28-26 quarter lead and took command with a 25-14 bulge in the second period. It was touch and go after the recess.

Jack Doyle Sinks 24

Three Bros. Farms hit the Economy heavy in the first and fourth quarters with a 17-8 and 29-13 margins to easily prevail over the losers.

Big Jack Doyle bucketed 24 points from the pivot and three others were in double figures: Bill Hermance 14, Frank Fiore 10 and Jim Ferraro 12. Don Madison carved out 10 markers for Economy.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

For a man who was given up for dead by doctors when he was only 19, Harry L. "Pop" Edson, the friend of every youngster in town, is a remarkable physical specimen at the age of 80.

We were tempted to use the old cliche "ripe old age" but the venerable "Pop" nixed such thoughts on a recent visit to the editorial room. He came in search of the gloss print of the photo of his birthday party at the Kirkland last Friday.

"I want to keep it in my files to see how it looks 20 years from now," he quipped, "I may collect a few others as I go along," he added.

How can you refer to a guy like that as a "ripe old 80?"

Edson's remarkable stamina is evidenced by his almost daily visits to the editorial department. That means negotiating three flights of stairs. We'e seen men 30 to 40 years his junior huff and puff after one trip. Harry often has climbed those stairs twice in one day.

We thought there was a fine, homely philosophy in Harry's statement to his old baseball cronies. Perhaps you missed it under the picture. It's certainly worth repeating, so here goes:

"A man doesn't really learn how to live until he reaches his later years, and it's too bad that it takes all that time for him to realize what he can get out of life. I have found most pleasure in doing things for others, especially our youngsters. . . ."

When a man thinks like that, he never really grows old.

• Mayor Flings a Challenge:

Mayor Oscar Newkirk's repeated reference to a recent blast against him by Ed Gilligan, the Bearsville rod and gun expert of the Herald-Tribune, indicates Hizzoner felt that blunt, outspoken Gilligan hit below the belt in his dissertation on the recent elections of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster.

The mayor has written a rebuttal to the Trib and hopes to see it in print in a few days. It will make interesting reading but, meanwhile, at Monday's dinner at Leherbs, the mayor said he was willing to debate Gilligan on the subject in private or in public.

If the Federation wants to make a few bucks, why not hire a hall and let Newkirk and Gilligan have their say. It would be a debate unique in Izaak Walton annals.

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

As one fellow remarked: Wonder how Ray Smith of Phoenicia would react if Gilligan took him over the coals? Ouch! For the benefit of the group of young men who can't seem to agree on bets with respect to the Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles series, here is the breakdown on the four bouts between the former heavyweight champions: June 22 1949, Chicago, Charles won decision, 15 rounds, for title. March 7, 1951, Detroft, Charles won decision, 15 rounds, retained title. July 18, 1951, Pittsburgh, Walcott won by KO, 7 rounds, for title. June 5, 1952, Pittsburgh, Walcott won decision, 15, retained title.

The bone of contention generally in this argument has Walcott winning his last bout with Charles by a knockout. That's erroneous, of course, the last meeting producing Walcott's 15-round decision last June in Pittsburgh. Walcott's next fight was against Rocky Marciano on Sept. 23 when he lost on a 13th round KO.

• Of Men and Mice:

Coach Earle O. Terwilliger proposes a mid-Hudson basketball tournament for Kingston. Says this is the logical spot in the Hudson valley. The major league exhibition on July 27 at Cooperstown will be between the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati Reds. Junior Major expected to join No-Can-Do with 100 per cent entry in city bowling tournament. Belleayre Ski Club entering a team in the Junior Interscholastic meet Saturday at Big Bromley in Manchester Vt. On the team will be Carolyn Draper, Beverly and Martha Davenport and Frank Tryceinski. The KHS Ski Club is again starting weekly bus trips to Belleayre on Friday afternoons. Dot Hoyt Nebel and her staff instruct the pupils on ski fundamentals. Don't forget Mike Marchuck and Dick McCarthy's Parade of Bands.

And as "Schooch" said after that 722, "shucks, twarn't nothin' at all."

LL Association Meets Tonight

The newly-formed Little League Association will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Stuyvesant. Paul C. Gardner will preside at his first meeting as new president succeeding Robert Umpleby. Plans for the 1953 membership drive also will be announced.

Rochester Stars Off, Royals Lose

(By The Associated Press)

When Bob Davies and Bobby Wanzer, Rochester's watch charm guards, have an off night in the NBA it's a good bet the Royals will follow suit.

Davies scored only nine points and Wanzer eight as the Royals were defeated by the Indianapolis Olympians, 70-59, last night in the only one of the three scheduled league games played. The loss dropped Rochester three and a half games behind the Lakers.

At Philadelphia, the doubleheader featuring the Boston Celtics and the New York Knickerbockers and the Warriors and the Milwaukee was postponed until Thursday. The twin bill was shifted to avoid competition with last night's Gil Turner-Boby Dykes fight at the Arena.

Indianapolis, trailing 11-10 at the end of the first quarter, took a 26-24 halftime lead. They build up a 43-36 advantage at the end of three quarters and coasted in as they hit for 15 of 19 free throws in the final period.

Joe Graboski of the Olympians was the game's high scorer with 15 points.

Los Angeles—Santiago Esteban, 140, Walsenburg, Colo. outpointed Chu Chu Jiminez, 137½, Mexico City, 10.

Stall 'Stops' Bevo But Causes Near Riot Among Fans

Troy, O., Jan. 21 (AP)—Some 7,000 basketball fans created a near-riot last night in protest of stalling tactics against the nation's leading scorer, Clarence (Bevo) Francis, and his Rio Grande, O., college teammates.

A group stormed the box office demanding refunds but police broke up the disorder.

Coach Floyd Rees, Cedarville, O., college cage mentor, has ordered his boys to use "possession ball" strategy.

"Whether the fans like it or not, I'm going to do that because it is our only chance to win," he said.

The fans didn't like it and the chance didn't work as Rio Grande easily downed Cedarville, 66-29.

Bevo, held to 11 points in the first half, hit for a game total of 38 markers, below his 50 point average. He now has 1,146 points for 23 games, including the national record of 116 points scored in a single tilt.

Cedarville made action so dull that Bevo signed autographs during the game and conversed with fans.

The crowd jeered, cat-called and threw coins and papers onto the playing floor.

Sixty-three-sports writers at the game protested to officials. Even the Cedarville Athletic director, Bryan Hollinger, urged the players to go on with a regular game.

Finally, in the second half, with Cedarville trailing 21-7, the game broke open.

Big Bevo was allowed to show his stuff, though he admitted the stall "threw me off a bit and I couldn't get set for the rest of the game."

Honors for Bostwick

Boston, Jan. 21 (AP)—Dunbar W. Bostwick of Shelburne, Vt., who is unopposed, is scheduled to be re-elected today as District Director of the U. S. Trotting Association's District 10 comprising New England. The other two directors of District 10 are W. H. Dickinson of Hatfield, Mass., and William T. Maybury, Bangor, Me.

Sickler's Delivery overpowered Epstein Aces, 87-62, for its sixth straight victory without a setback in the Senior Division of the Recreation Basketball League this week.

Meanwhile, the runnerup Village Rest squad was equally impressive in blasting the KGB's, 72-41, to make their record 7 and 1.

Violets won their fifth decision, a 61-45 verdict over St. Mark's.

Sickler's sharpshooters outdistanced Epstein's, 25-14, in the first quarter, yielded a 12-21 margin in the second period and then came on with a pair of 25-point sessions after the intermission.

Ed McCluskey rimmed 21 points, Hermie Sickler bucketed 20 and Ronnie Crispino and Bob Bondar had 16 and 14 respectively for the Deliverymen. J. Medley of Epsteins was the individual leader with 22 and R. Bell posted 19. D. Slater added 14.

Van Bramer Hits 21

Vince Van Bramer's 21 points and double figure performances by four others featured Village Rest's easy victory over KGB's. Don Ferraro bucketed 17, Don Greenberg 11, F. Johnson 12 and J. Amato 10. Joe Spino's 18 led the KGBs. Village Rest stepped out in front, 16-8, at the quarter and steadily widened their lead.

T. Culjak racked up 19 points while R. Brandt and J. Woods were sharing 25 to lead the Violets' win over St. Mark's. The winners were outscored only in the fourth quarter when they were riding on a big lead.

B. Anderson hit 17 and J. Armstrong 12 for the losers.

Six Cities Represented at Meeting to Form Semi-Pro League

Baseball representatives from six mid-Hudson and northern New Jersey cities met last night at the Hotel Newburgh to discuss plans for the formation of a semi-pro baseball league this season.

William D. Ryan, manager of the Newburgh Jewels, who originated the idea, expressed complete satisfaction with the results of the confab and predicted organization of the league at a second meeting scheduled for Feb. 8 at Newburgh.

Cities represented last night were Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Staten Island, and Paterson and Plainfield from New Jersey.

Applications from several other franchises will be considered on Feb. 8 and two will be admitted to the league to make an eight-team circuit.

Davi, Jones Attend

The Kingston representatives were Addison Jones and Fred Davi, two veteran baseball men who have been identified with semi-pro and organized ball for a couple of decades.

Which of the two will operate the Kingston franchise is something that will be decided between now and Feb. 8.

Davi announced at the meeting that he was ready, willing and able to field a team in the proposed league. Jones, a prominent factor in organized ball, said he would need a few days to discuss the matter with baseball associates.

The meeting was attended by Sam DeGuise and Ed Kronk from Paterson, both of whom have had wide experience in the baseball field. Kronk, a New York Giant scout, played nearly 10 years of minor league ball and presently operates the Giant Rookies.

Poughkeepsie In

George Steutzle, the Pine Plains basketball-baseball promoter, is expected to head the franchise operating at Riverview Field in Poughkeepsie. He did not attend last night's session but sent word that Poughkeepsie could be counted on.

Louis Shapiro and Ryan spoke for the Newburgh Jewels franchise, a going concern for the past several years. Their prospects for 1953 have been greatly enhanced by their return to Recreation Field for Sunday ball. Last year the Jewels did not get permission to use the stadium and were forced to play at Mountainville, seven miles south of Newburgh.

Communications were received from two other prominent semi-pro baseball figures, Vic Scafuro of Plainfield, N. J. and Gabe Rispoli of Staten Island. Their teams have played in this area for the past several years.

Ryan Confident

After several hours deliberation, the baseball moguls adjourned with definite plans for 1953.

"We don't have a name right now," Ryan pointed out, "but we have six teams ready to go and by Feb. 8 we should have both a name and two more franchises to complete an 8-team league."

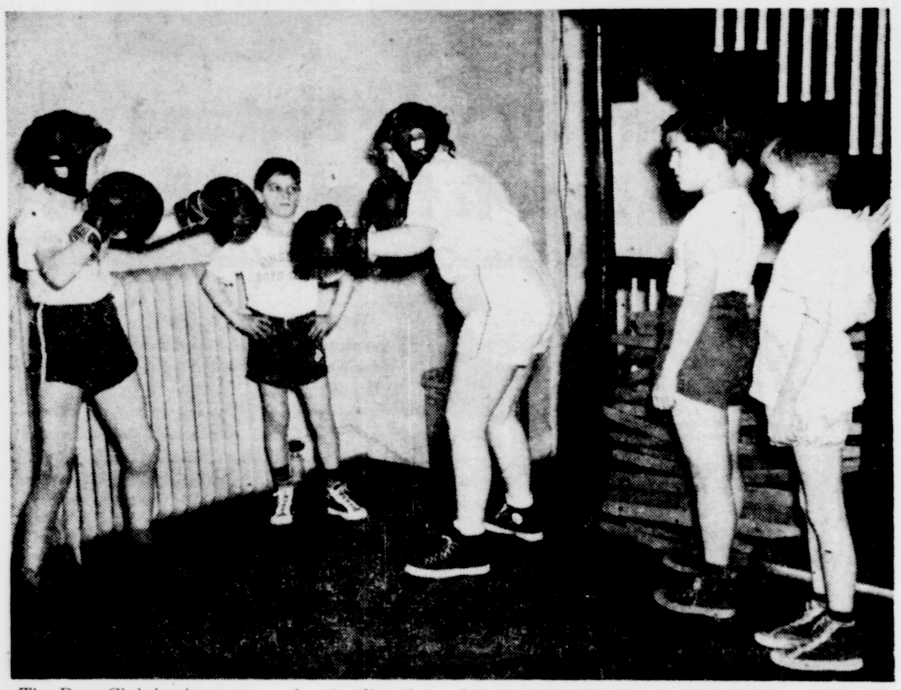

The prominent CYO sports figure said the financial setup of the league was sound and there was little doubt in his mind that it would succeed.

"Semi-pro baseball has been in the doldrums for a few years, "Ryan admitted, "but we feel that it's due for a new cycle. The type of league we propose should be attractive to the fans in the various cities and the overhead will not be so heavy as to invite financial chaos. We think it will be a going proposition and the fans will like it.

The league schedule will be predominantly night ball, with most of the games scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The tentative schedule calls for two games a week; one at home and one away, with a double round robin for six or eight teams.

Definite action on many technical matters was postponed until the next meeting.

KPA's 107 Points New YMCA 'B' Record

The Kingston Patrolmen's Association basketeers combined with Newkirk Aces to set an all-time YMCA "B" League point harvest of 202, while Three Bros. Farms outclassed the eager but ineffectual Economy Construction five, 78-40, last night on the Y boards.

The KPA won the feature attraction, 107-95, in a contest featured by sensational shooting. The junior patrolmen were clocked in quarter outputs of 28-25-22-32.

Lou Schafer, Y basketball director, said the 107 points by the KPA and the combined 202 are new "B" records.

John Letus led the KPA scoring spree with 30 points. Bill Fitzgerald hit 24, Tony Altamore 13, Gordon 14 and Art Pinkham had 16 as the KPA's hit with a phenomenal percentage from the floor.

The Newkirks also showed marked familiarity with the basket as Paul Houghtaling racked up 27 points, Bill Martini 21, while Frank Tiano and Richie Gollnick poured in 16 and 13 respectively.

KPA eked out a 28-26 quarter lead and took command with a 25-14 bulge in the second period. It was touch and go after the recess.

Jack Doyle Sinks 24

Three Bros. Farms hit the Economy heavy in the first and fourth quarters with a 17-8 and 29-13 margins to easily prevail over the losers.

Big Jack Doyle bucketed 24 points from the pivot and three others were in double figures: Bill Hermance 14, Frank Fiore 10 and Jim Ferraro 12. Don Madison carved out 10 markers for Economy.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

For a man who was given up for dead by doctors when he was only 19, Harry L. "Pop" Edson, the friend of every youngster in town, is a remarkable physical specimen at the age of 80.

We were tempted to use the old cliche "ripe old age" but the venerable "Pop" nixed such thoughts on a recent visit to the editorial room. He came in search of the gloss print of the photo of his birthday party at the Kirkland last Friday.

"I want to keep it in my files to see how it looks 20 years from now," he quipped, "I may collect a few others as I go along," he added.

How can you refer to a guy like that as a "ripe old 80?"

Edson's remarkable stamina is evidenced by his almost daily visits to the editorial department. That means negotiating three flights of stairs. We'e seen men 30 to 40 years his junior huff and puff after one trip. Harry often has climbed those stairs twice in one day.

We thought there was a fine, homely philosophy in Harry's statement to his old baseball cronies. Perhaps you missed it under the picture. It's certainly worth repeating, so here goes:

"A man doesn't really learn how to live until he reaches his later years, and it's too bad that it takes all that time for him to realize what he can get out of life. I have found most pleasure in doing things for others, especially our youngsters. . . ."

When a man thinks like that, he never really grows old.

● Mayor Flings a Challenge:

Mayor Oscar Newkirk's repeated reference to a recent blast against him by Ed Gilligan, the Bearsville rod and gun expert of the Herald-Tribune, indicates Hizzoner felt that blunt, outspoken Gilligan hit below the belt in his dissertation on the recent elections of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster.

The mayor has written a rebuttal to the Trib and hopes to see it in print in a few days. It will make interesting reading but, meanwhile, at Monday's dinner at Leherbs, the mayor said he was willing to debate Gilligan on the subject in private or in public.

If the Federation wants to make a few bucks, why not hire a hall and let Newkirk and Gilligan have their say. It would be a debate unique in Izaak Walton annals.

● Flotsam and Jetsam:

As one fellow remarked: Wonder how Ray Smith of Phoenicia would react if Gilligan took him over the coals? Ouch! For the benefit of the group of young men who can't seem to agree on bets with respect to the Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles series, here is the breakdown on the four bouts between the former heavyweight champions: June 22 1949, Chicago, Charles won decision, 15 rounds, for title. March 7, 1951, Detroit, Charles won decision, 15 rounds, retained title. July 18, 1951, Pittsburgh, Walcott won by KO, 7 rounds, for title. June 5, 1952, Pittsburgh, Walcott won decision, 15, retained title.

The bone of contention generally in this argument has Walcott winning his last bout with Charles by a knockout. That's erroneous, of course, the last meeting producing Walcott's 15-round decision last June in Pittsburgh. Walcott's next fight was against Rocky Marciano on Sept. 23 when he lost on a 13th round KO.

● Of Men and Mice:

Coach Earle O. Terwilliger proposes a mid-Hudson basketball tournament for Kingston. Says this is the logical spot in the Hudson valley. The major league exhibition on July 27 at Cooperstown will be between the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati Reds. Junior Major expected to join No-Can-Do with 100 per cent entry in city bowling tournament. Belleayre Ski Club entering a team in the Junior Interscholastic meet Saturday at Big Bromley in Manchester Vt. On the team will be Carolyn Draper, Beverly and Martha Davenport and Frank Tryceinski. The KHS Ski Club is again starting weekly bus trips to Belleayre on Friday afternoons. Dot Hoyt Nebel and her staff instruct the pupils on ski fundamentals. Don't forget Mike Marchuck and Dick McCarthy's Parade of Bands.

And as "Schooch" said after that 722, "shucks, twarn't nothin' at all."

LL Association Meets Tonight

The newly-formed Little League Association will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8 o'clock at the Hotel Stuyvesant. Paul C. Gardner will preside at his first meeting as new president succeeding Robert Umpleby. Plans for the 1953 membership drive also will be announced.

Rochester Stars Off, Royals Lose

(By The Associated Press)

When Bob Davies and Bobby Wanzer, Rochester's watch charm guards, have an off night in the NBA it's a good bet the Royals will follow suit.

Davies scored only nine points and Wanzer eight as the Royals were defeated by the Indianapolis Olympians, 70-59, last night in the only one of the three scheduled league games played. The loss dropped Rochester three and a half games behind the Lakers.

At Philadelphia, the doubleheader featuring the Boston Celtics and the New York Knickerbockers and the Warriors and the Milwaukee was postponed until Thursday. The twin bill was shifted to avoid competition with last night's Gil Turner-Boby Dykes fight at the Arena.

Indianapolis, trailing 11-10 at the end of the first quarter, took a 26-24 halftime lead. They build up a 43-36 advantage at the end of three quarters and coasted in as they hit for 15 of 19 free throws in the final period.

Joe Graboski of the Olympians was the game's high scorer with 15 points.

Stall 'Stops' Bevo But Causes Near Riot Among Fans

Troy, O., Jan. 21 (AP)—Some 7,000 basketball fans created a near-riot last night in protest of stalling tactics against the nation's leading scorer, Clarence (Bevo) Francis, and his Rio Grande, O., college teammates.

A group stormed the box office demanding refunds but police broke up the disorder.

Coach Floyd Rees, Cedarville, O., college cage mentor, has ordered his boys to use "possession ball" strategy.

"Whether the fans like it or not, I'm going to do that because it is our only chance to win," he said.

The fans didn't like it and the chance didn't work as Rio Grande easily downed Cedarville, 66-29.

Bevo, held to 11 points in the first half, hit for a game total of 38 markers, below his 50 point average. He now has 1,146 points for 23 games, including the national record of 116 points scored in a single tilt.

Cedarville made action so dull that Bevo signed autographs during the game and conversed with fans.

The crowd jeered, cat-called and threw coins and papers onto the playing floor.

Sixty-three-sports writers at the game protested to officials. Even the Cedarville Athletic director, Bryan Hollinger, urged the players to go on with a regular game.

Finally, in the second half, with Cedarville trailing 21-7, the game broke open.

Big Bevo was allowed to show his stuff, though he admitted the stall "threw me off a bit and I couldn't get set for the rest of the game."

Honors for Bostwick

Boston, Jan. 21 (AP)—Dunbar W. Bostwick of Shelburne, Vt., who is unopposed, is scheduled to be re-elected today as District Director of the U. S. Trotting Association's District 10 comprising New England. The other two directors of District 10 are W. H. Dickinson of Hatfield, Mass., and William T. Maybury, Bangor, Me.

Sickler's Delivery overpowered Epstein Aces, 87-62, for its sixth straight victory without a setback in the Senior Division of the Recreation Basketball League this week.

Meanwhile, the runnerup Village Rest squad was equally impressive in blasting the KGB's, 72-41, to make their record 7 and 1.

Violets won their fifth decision, a 61-45 verdict over St. Mark's.

Sickler's sharpshooters outdistanced Epstein's, 25-14, in the first quarter, yielded a 12-21 margin in the second period and then came on with a pair of 25-point sessions after the intermission.

Ed McCluskey rimmed 21 points. Hermie Sickler bucketed 20 and Ronnie Crispino and Bob Bondar had 16 and 14 respectively for the Deliverymen. J. Medley of Epsteins was the individual leader with 22 and R. Bell posted 19. D. Slater added 14.

Van Bramer Hits 21

Vince Van Bramer's 21 points and double figure performances by four others featured Village Rest's easy victory over KGB's. Don Ferraro bucketed 17, Don Greenberg 11, F. Johnson 12 and J. Amato 10. Joe Spino's 18 led the KGBs. Village Rest stepped out in front, 16-8, at the quarter and steadily widened their lead.

T. Culjak racked up 19 points while R. Brandt and J. Woods were sharing 25 to lead the Violets' win over St. Mark's. The winners were outscored only in the fourth quarter when they were riding on a big lead.

B. Anderson hit 17 and J. Armstrong 12 for the losers.

Rosewall Upset

Adelaide, Australia, Jan. 21 (AP)—Ken Rosewall, who only last week won the Australian National championship, was upset today by Rex Hartwig, 6-1, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, in the quarter-finals of the South Australian championships. The 18-year-old Rosewall failed to produce the tennis that brought him the Australian title except in the closing stages when it was too late.

Chichelsky's 590 Top Tenpin Series In Local Circuits

The "Old Scribe," Jake Chichelsky, was No. 1 on hit parade in last night's bowling with a 590 blast in the Good Neighbor League.

Jake toppled the timbers for solos of 211, 181 and 198 to win by himself. Ed Auchmoody of the Central Rec circuit rallied nicely from a 144 opener to toss 212 and 214 for 570.

Andy Krom paced the Booster League with a hefty 223-196-149 for 568 and R. Heins topped the International Division of the Federation with 168-157-149-474. The National leader was D. Meyers on 193-177-143 and 513.

Entry blanks for the New York state tournament are now available through the KBA secretary, Irwin J. Thomas.

This is "Sign Up Week" for Kingston Bowling Association's 16th annual tournament.

E. Rose Raps 584

Wrapping 191 and 169 around 224, E. Rose was runnerup with 584 in the Good Neighbor League. Larry Jacobs posted 210-200-578, Hy Arlensky 572, George Goldfarb 565, J. Kessler 220-545, Eff Propp 220-524, B. Kaplan 216-523, Phil Levy 512, Irv Wilpan 510.

Christenberry Statement Arouses Old Joe Walcott

Weather Big Factor In Australian's Bid For New Mile Record

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 21 (AP)—John Landy, fastest active miler in the world today, will go out Saturday in a calculated attempt to crash through the four-minute barrier.

Landy, a 22-year-old curly-haired Australian student of agriculture science, ran a mile Dec. 13 in four minutes, 2.1 seconds. Today he looks like the best prospect for a four-minute performance and, what's more, he believes it is possible for him to do it before very long.

"It will be a fast mile," Landy said just before he left Melbourne for the west. "I'll be trying hard, but it's a gamble. It will depend on the condition of the track, how I'm feeling that day, and the weather. Most people agree it is very difficult to break a record with the temperature anything over 85."

The weather may be a very important factor Saturday. Perth is noted for its heat, and Landy and his coach, Percy Cerutty, have been campaigning for a program that would allow him to make his record attempt late in the day after the temperature has begun to drop.

Turner Beats Sub-Par Dykes

Philadelphia, Jan. 21 (AP)—"Well, that's half the job done," said young Gil Turner as he sat on his dressing room table last night after whipping Bobby Dykes.

The 22-year-old Philadelphia welterweight has lost only two bouts in a 36 fight career, one to Dykes and one to welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan. The thumping he gave Dykes last night averaged one defeat, but there's still Gavilan.

Turner hasn't anything against Michigan State's Chuck Davey, but he hopes Gavilan retains the welter crown Feb. 11 in Chicago when the Cuban Hawk risks his championship against the sparkling collegian. Turner wants to win the title from Gavilan to even the score on that other defeat.

The big question after the Dykes-Turner 10 rounder before 8,160 at the Arena last night, strangely enough, didn't concern Turner. The fans who paid $45,839 to see what was expected to be a corking good fight went home wearing clothespins on their noses. To be brutally frank, the fight smelled out the joint. They were asking, "What happened to Dykes?"

Bobby, who hails from both Miami, Fla., and San Antonio, Tex.—take your choice—was a fighter without any fight. After winning the first two rounds, he might as well have gone home for the night. Turner used the would be middleweight for a punching bag. One judge and the referee gave Turner the nod 7-2-1, while the other judge marked it 6-3-1. The Associated Press saw it 8-2.

Michigan State's best record in basketball was the 16-1 mark posted in 1931 under Coach Ben VanAlstyne.

During 1952 a total of 11,927 harness horses raced for a record $16,050,566.

Ex-Champ Calls Bob 'Just a Bellhop'

Camden, N. J., Jan. 21 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, incensed at New York State Athletic Commissioner Robert Christenberry's statement that Walcott would probably never fight again, said yesterday the New York boxing head is "nothing but a bellhop."

"I would appreciate," the ex-titleholder said, "if the governors of different states would stop and consider these boxing commission jobs, and appoint someone that knows and has experience in boxing instead of playing politics."

Christenberry, a hotelman, made his statement Monday night at a Wilmington sports writers and broadcasters dinner.

"I seriously doubt that Walcott will fight again," Christenberry told the group. "Rules of the New York Commission and almost every other state say that a fighter cannot be licensed after he is 40 years of age."

"I'll be 39 January 31," Walcott stated. "It would make no difference if I was near 50. I have given my life to boxing and I have never done anything other than respect boxing and respect the public in my entire 22 years of boxing."

The Camden heavyweight, who lost his title last June to Rocky Marciano, said he has every intention of fighting the new champ again. But, he added that he would do nothing until his manager, Felix Bocchichio, is well again.

Bocchicchio was stricken with a heart attack in New York recently where he was negotiating for the return bout. He is in a New York hospital and is listed as "in serious condition."

Gavilan-Cardell Bout Set Tonight

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Kid Gavilan, the world's welterweight champion, tonight meets a rough but relatively unknown fighter, Vic Cardell of Wilson, Conn., in a 10-round non-title bout.

The fight will be televised nationally, and it takes on added interest because of this:

It's Gavilan's last showing before he meets the popular Chuck Davey in a championship bout at Chicago, Feb. 11.

Cardell is in an enviable spot. He has everything to gain, and little to lose.

If he does the unexpected and whips Gavilan, it obviously would put him in line for a crack at the title.

Joe Di Maggio Heavy Choice for Selection To Baseball Shrine

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Joe Di Maggio is expected to be voted into baseball's Hall of Fame today when the ballots are counted for the 1953 election.

Bill Terry, Dizzy Dean and Al Simmons are other stars of the past who are certain to receive strong support from the 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association, who do the voting.

Di Maggio, who retired after the 1951 World Series, is eligible for the first time after one year's inactivity. Seventy-five per cent of the votes are required for election.

There is no accurate figure on the number of votes cast but it is expected to approximate the 234 of last year. Only players now inactive but who have seen active service in the last 25 years are eligible.

Di Maggio's consecutive game hitting streak of 56, in 1941 an all-time major league record, probably will be more than enough to boost him into the elite company in the Cooperstown, N. Y., shrine. For 13 active years with the New York Yankees from 1936 through 1951, with time out for military service, Di Maggio had a lifetime batting average of .325 with 2,214 hits in 1,736 games.

Mikan Regains Scoring Magic

A couple of "old pros"—George Mikan of Minneapolis and Bobby Wanzer of Rochester—have come to life in the second half of the National Basketball Associations' current flag chase and now rate third and seventh, respectively, in the individual scoring.

Boston's brilliant Bob Cousy, a relative youth in the money game, still leads with 851 points in 40 games, closely pursued by Philadelphia's Neil Johnston with 932 in 38.

But Mikan cut loose during the past week with the season's biggest one-game blast—46— and followed with 41 against Rochester, to prove he wasn't kidding.

Mikan now is third in the scoring race, with 813 points, having fallen as low as 4th recently. In seven games during the past two weeks, however, Mikan has looked much like the "Mr. Basketball" of former years, nudging home 202 points, for a 28.9 average per game.

The first ten scorers:

	Pts.	Avg.
Cousy, Boston	851	21.3
Johnston, Phila.	832	21.9
Mikan, Minneapolis	813	20.3
Macauley, Boston	771	20.3
Sharman, Boston	649	16.2
Mikkelsen, Minn.	628	15.7
Wanzer, Rochester.	598	15.0
Schayes, Syracuse	569	15.0
Foust, Fort Wayne	565	15.3

Ulster Deer Harvest Is Record 768; State Catch 42,080 All-Time High

Ulster county hunters contributed a record-breaking total of 768 antlered deer to New York state's all-time record bag of 42,080 during the 1952 season, the annual report of the Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea revealed today.

The previous record of 37,683 was set in 1948 when deer of both sexes also were legal quarry in many counties.

The Ulster total was 14 more than the former record of 754 set in 1951. (Ulster had no doe season).

Not only was the state combination record exceeded, Commissioner Duryea pointed out, but the previous high mark for antlered bucks only—19,079—established in 1950—was topped by 4,476.

Breakdown of the 1952 harvest was 23,555 bucks with antlers longer than three inches and 18,525 antlerless deer.

As usual, Cattaraugus and Allegany in the Southern Tier were the most productive deer counties, the former leading with a total take of 2,865 to edge out Allegany with 2,743.

Delaware in the Catskills, with its first antlerless season, was third with 2,608, while Steuben, another Southern Tier county, was fourth with 2,441.

The take of antlerless deer in four Catskill region counties, opened for the first time last fall, mainly because of range overpopulation, failed to exceed the number of antlered animals taken in those same counties despite a far greater ratio of does to bucks. Delaware, Greene, Otsego and Schoharie counties reported the taking of 4,232 antlered bucks and 3,675 antlerless deer.

Delaware county led the state for the first time with a take of 1,569 bucks.

Six counties topped 1,000 antlered bucks in the compilations. After Delaware came St. Lawrence (Adirondacks) with 1,471 after leading the state with 1,406 in 1951. Sullivan in the Catskills was third with 1,330, Franklin county fourth with 1,293 and Greene county fifth with 1,178, nosing out the one-time leaders, Cattaraugus (1,086) and Hamilton (1,069).

It is interesting to note how rapidly the herd has increased in many areas, the report noted. Greene county, for example, showed a sharp upswing in the size of the herd during the last five years. The actual reported take of antlered bucks in that county by successive years beginning in 1948 was 431, 480, 554, 626 and 1,178.

Noteworthy was the enormously increased popularity of archery. In 1951, the longbow accounted for only 28 deer. Last year, however, a total of 239—eight times the former number was taken.

The comparative take in the Catskill region:

	Antlered	Not Antlered	Total

Hot Stove Sparks In Baseball

New York—Some pitchers in the American League find the going mighty rough when they face certain teams. The affected hurlers claim they are jinxed or victims of voodoo witchcraft.

Bob Hooper, formerly of Philadel and now with Cleveland, calls the Boston Red Sox his nemesis. Hooper has won only one game while losing seven to the Bostonians.

Cliff Fannin of the Brows is 3-10 against the Yankees over a period of seven years.

Syd Hudson of the Red Sox has won 12 and lost 27 against the Yankees in 10 years.

The Cleveland Indians hold the "Indian sign" over Ellis Kinder of the Red Sox. In seven years Kinder has managed to win only three games from the Tribe while dropping 11.

Chichelsky's 590 Top Tenpin Series In Local Circuits

The "Old Scribe," Jake Chichelsky, was No. 1 on hit parade in last night's bowling with a 590 blast in the Good Neighbor League.

Jake toppled the timbers for solos of 211, 181 and 198 to win by himself. Ed Auchmoody of the Central Rec circuit rallied nicely from a 144 opener to toss 212 and 214 for 570.

Andy Krom paced the Booster League with a hefty 223-196-149 for 568 and R. Heins topped the International Division of the Federation with 168-157-149-474. The National leader was D. Meyers on 193-177-143 and 513.

Entry blanks for the New York state tournament are now available through the KBA secretary, Irwin J. Thomas.

This is "Sign Up Week" for Kingston Bowling Association's 16th annual tournament.

E. Rose Raps 584

Wrapping 191 and 169 around 224, E. Rose was runnerup with 584 in the Good Neighbor League. Larry Jacobs posted 210-200-578, Hy Arlensky 572, George Goldfarb 565, J. Kessler 220-545, Eff Propp 220-524, B. Kaplan 216-523, Phil Levy 512, Irv Wilpan 510.

Team results:

IMM No. 2 (2), IMM No. 1 (1); Larry's Beachcombers 3, Rippy-Dips 0; B'nai B'rith No. 1 (2), B'nai B'rith No. 2 (1); Suntag's Pharmacy 2, Blinder's Apparel 1; Hot Shots 3; Leventhal Furs 0; French Dye Works 2, Standard Furniture 1; Men's Club 2, Guarantee Radiator 1.

Ed Thomas pounded 206-569 and Ray Houghtaling fired 214-561 for the runnerup slots behind Ed Auchmoody in the Central Rec. Frank Bruno rolled 555, Allen Hoey 216-543, Ronnie Mauro 210-543, Eddie Heins 543, Harry Hines 209-537, Bob Herzog 216-535, Len Ward 218-529, Harry Engle 522 and Floyd Crantek 513. John Greco's 234 was high single for the night.

Team results:

Hamburger Paradise 2, Kingston Heating Supply 1; Thomson's Laundry 2, Pine Tree Inn 1; Herzog's 2, Chez Emile 1.

John Wolf Hits 560

Rolling steady scores, John Wolf took second place in the Booster with 560 and Floyd Hommel rapped 210-536. John Howard hit 534, Ed Auclair 530, Don Riehl 530, Ed Sohm 522.

Team results:

Greenkill No. 2 (3), 156 FA (0); Haber's 2, McDermott's 1; Cuneo's 2, Ashdown's 1; Moose Club 1, Rifton Rest 21; Greenkill No. 1 (2), Weishaupt's 1; Amell's 2, Astor Bar 1; Sunnyside Grill 2, Morgan's 1.

John Wolven and Ed Dayton rolled 466 and 464 respectively in the Federation International. F. Mollenhauer clipped 462 and G. Howland 200-461. L. Denis came up with 510 and Ed Leudtke 501 in the National. Ferd Short shot 202-500, E. Roosa 497, W. MacElveen 495.

Christenberry Statement Arouses Old Joe Walcott

Weather Big Factor In Australian's Bid For New Mile Record

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 21 (AP)—John Landy, fastest active miler in the world today, will go out Saturday in a calculated attempt to crash through the four-minute barrier.

Landy, a 22-year-old curly-haired Australian student of agriculture science, ran a mile Dec. 13 in four minutes, 2.1 seconds. Today he looks like the best prospect for a four-minute performance and, what's more, he believes it is possible for him to do it before very long.

"It will be a fast mile," Landy said just before he left Melbourne for the west. "I'll be trying hard, but it's a gamble. It will depend on the condition of the track, how I'm feeling that day, and the weather. Most people agree it is very difficult to break a record with the temperature anything over 85."

The weather may be a very important factor Saturday. Perth is noted for its heat, and Landy and his coach, Percy Cerutty, have been campaigning for a program that would allow him to make his record attempt late in the day after the temperature has begun to drop.

Turner Beats Sub-Par Dykes

Philadelphia, Jan. 21 (AP)—"Well, that's half the job done," said young Gil Turner as he sat on his dressing room table last night after whipping Bobby Dykes.

The 22-year-old Philadelphia welterweight has lost only two bouts in a 36 fight career, one to Dykes and one to welterweight Champion Kid Gavilan. The thumping he gave Dykes last night averaged one defeat, but there's still Gavilan.

Turner hasn't anything against Michigan State's Chuck Davey, but he hopes Gavilan retains the welter crown Feb. 11 in Chicago when the Cuban Hawk risks his championship against the sparkling collegian. Turner wants to win the title from Gavilan to even the score on that other defeat.

The big question after the Dykes-Turner 10 rounder before 8,160 at the Arena last night, strangely enough, didn't concern Turner. The fans who paid $45,839 to see what was expected to be a corking good fight went home wearing clothespins on their noses. To be brutally frank, the fight smelled out the joint. They were asking, "What happened to Dykes?"

Bobby, who hails from both Miami, Fla., and San Antonio, Tex.—take your choice—was a fighter without any fight. After winning the first two rounds, he might as well have gone home for the night. Turner used the would be middleweight for a punching bag. One judge and the referee gave Turner the nod 7-2-1, while the other judge marked it 6-3-1. The Associated Press saw it 8-2.

Michigan State's best record in basketball was the 16-1 mark posted in 1931 under Coach Ben VanAlstyne.

During 1952 a total of 11,927 harness horses raced for a record $16,050,566.

Ex-Champ Calls Bob 'Just a Bellhop'

Camden, N. J., Jan. 21 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, incensed at New York State Athletic Commissioner Robert Christenberry's statement that Walcott would probably never fight again, said yesterday the New York boxing head is "nothing but a bellhop."

"I would appreciate," the ex-titleholder said, "if the governors of different states would stop and consider these boxing commission jobs, and appoint someone that knows and has experience in boxing instead of playing politics."

Christenberry, a hotelman, made his statement Monday night at a Wilmington sports writers and broadcasters dinner.

"I seriously doubt that Walcott will fight again," Christenberry told the group. "Rules of the New York Commission and almost every other state say that a fighter cannot be licensed after he is 40 years of age."

"I'll be 39 January 31," Walcott stated. "It would make no difference if I was near 50. I have given my life to boxing and I have never done anything other than respect boxing and respect the public in my entire 22 years of boxing."

The Camden heavyweight, who lost his title last June to Rocky Marciano, said he has every intention of fighting the new champ again. But, he added that he would do nothing until his manager, Felix Bocchichio, is well again.

Bocchicchio was stricken with a heart attack in New York recently where he was negotiating for the return bout. He is in a New York hospital and is listed as "in serious condition."

Gavilan-Cardell Bout Set Tonight

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—Kid Gavilan, the world's welterweight champion, tonight meets a rough but relatively unknown fighter, Vic Cardell of Wilson, Conn., in a 10-round non-title bout.

The fight will be televised nationally, and it takes on added interest because of this:

It's Gavilan's last showing before he meets the popular Chuck Davey in a championship bout at Chicago, Feb. 11.

Cardell is in an enviable spot. He has everything to gain, and little to lose.

If he does the unexpected and whips Gavilan, it obviously would put him in line for a crack at the title.

Joe Di Maggio Heavy Choice for Selection To Baseball Shrine

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Joe Di Maggio is expected to be voted into baseball's Hall of Fame today when the ballots are counted for the 1953 election.

Bill Terry, Dizzy Dean and Al Simmons are other stars of the past who are certain to receive strong support from the 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association, who do the voting.

Di Maggio, who retired after the 1951 World Series, is eligible for the first time after one year's inactivity. Seventy-five per cent of the votes are required for election.

There is no accurate figure on the number of votes cast but it is expected to approximate the 234 of last year. Only players now inactive but who have seen active service in the last 25 years are eligible.

Di Maggio's consecutive game hitting streak of 56, in 1941 an all-time major league record, probably will be more than enough to boost him into the elite company in the Cooperstown, N. Y., shrine. For 13 active years with the New York Yankees from 1936 through 1951, with time out for military service, Di Maggio had a lifetime batting average of .325 with 2,214 hits in 1,736 games.

Mikan Regains Scoring Magic

A couple of "old pros"—George Mikan of Minneapolis and Bobby Wanzer of Rochester—have come to life in the second half of the National Basketball Associations' current flag chase and now rate third and seventh, respectively, in the individual scoring.

Boston's brilliant Bob Cousy, a relative youth in the money game, still leads with 851 points in 40 games, closely pursued by Philadelphia's Neil Johnston with 932 in 38.

But Mikan cut loose during the past week with the season's biggest one-game blast—46— and followed with 41 against Rochester, to prove he wasn't kidding.

Mikan now is third in the scoring race, with 813 points, having fallen as low as 4th recently. In seven games during the past two weeks, however, Mikan has looked much like the "Mr. Basketball" of former years, nudging home 202 points, for a 28.9 average per game.

The first ten scorers:

	Pts.	Avg.
Cousy, Boston 851		21.3
Johnston, Phila. 832		21.9
Mikan, Minneapolis ..813		20.3
Macauley, Boston 771		20.3
Sharman, Boston 649		16.2
Mikkelsen, Minn.. ...628		15.7
Wanzer, Rochester. ..598		15.0
Schayes, Syracuse 569		15.0
Foust, Fort Wayne ..565		15.3

Ulster Deer Harvest Is Record 768; State Catch 42,080 All-Time High

Ulster county hunters contributed a record-breaking total of 768 antlered deer to New York state's all-time record bag of 42,080 during the 1952 season, the annual report of the Conservation Commissioner Perry B. Duryea revealed today.

The previous record of 37,683 was set in 1948 when deer of both sexes also were legal quarry in many counties.

The Ulster total was 14 more than the former record of 754 set in 1951. (Ulster had no doe season).

Not only was the state combination record exceeded, Commissioner Duryea pointed out, but the previous high mark for antlered bucks only—19,079—established in 1950—was topped by 4,476.

Breakdown of the 1952 harvest was 23,555 bucks with antlers longer than three inches and 18,525 antlerless deer.

As usual, Cattaraugus and Allegany in the Southern Tier were the most productive deer counties, the former leading with a total take of 2,865 to edge out Allegany with 2,743.

Delaware in the Catskills, with its first antlerless season, was third with 2,608, while Steuben, another Southern Tier county, was fourth with 2,441.

The take of antlerless deer in four Catskill region counties, opened for the first time last fall, mainly because of range overpopulation, failed to exceed the number of antlered animals taken in those same counties despite a far greater ratio of does to bucks. Delaware, Greene, Otsego and Schoharie counties reported the taking of 4,232 antlered bucks and 3,675 antlerless deer.

Delaware county led the state for the first time with a take of 1,569 bucks.

Six counties topped 1,000 antlered bucks in the compilations. After Delaware came St. Lawrence (Adirondacks) with 1,471 after leading the state with 1,406 in 1951. Sullivan in the Catskills was third with 1,330, Franklin county fourth with 1,293 and Greene county fifth with 1,178, nosing out the one-time leaders, Cattaraugus (1,086) and Hamilton (1,069).

It is interesting to note how rapidly the herd has increased in many areas, the report noted. Greene county, for example, showed a sharp upswing in the size of the herd during the last five years. The actual reported take of antlered bucks in that county by successive years beginning in 1948 was 431, 480, 554, 626 and 1,178.

Noteworthy was the enormously increased popularity of archery. In 1951, the longbow accounted for only 28 deer. Last year, however, a total of 239—eight times the former number was taken.

The comparative take in the Catskill region:

Hot Stove Sparks In Baseball

New York—Some pitchers in the American League find the going mighty rough when they face certain teams. The affected hurlers claim they are jinxed or victims of voodoo witchcraft.

Bob Hooper, formerly of Philadel and now with Cleveland, calls the Boston Red Sox his nemesis. Hooper has won only one game while losing seven to the Bostonians.

Harry Dorish, relief ace for the Chicago White Sox, has one victory and six losses against Philadelphia in five years.

Cliff Fannin of the Brows is 3-10 against the Yankees over a period of seven years.

Syd Hudson of the Red Sox has won 12 and lost 27 against the Yankees in 10 years.

The Cleveland Indians hold the "Indian sign" over Ellis Kinder of the Red Sox. In seven years Kinder has managed to win only three games from the Tribe while dropping 11.

CITATION

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, BY THE GRACE OF GOD FREE AND INDEPENDENT.

To MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL, Boston, Mass., GROTON SCHOOL, Groton, Mass., and ST. MARK'S SCHOOL, Southborough, Mass.,

GREETING:

YOU AND EACH OF YOU ARE HEREBY CITED to show cause at a Surrogate's Court to be held in and for the County of Ulster at the Surrogate's Office in the City of Kingston, N. Y., on the 24th day of February, 1953 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the final account of proceedings of Frances Gray as Executrix of the last Will and Testament of Elsa Mason Lord Peabody, late of the City of Kingston, County of Ulster and State of New York, deceased, should not be judicially settled and allowed and why such other or further relief should not be granted in the premises as may be just and proper, upon the petition of said Frances Gray, of the City of Kingston, N. Y.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused the seal of said Surrogate's Court to be hereunto affixed.

(Seal) WITNESS Hon. John B. Sterley, Surrogate of our said County of Ulster, at Kingston, N. Y., this 12th day of January, 1953.

H. LEROY GILL,
Clerk of the Surrogate's Court.

GEORGE F. KAUFMAN,
Attorney for Petitioner,
254 Fair Street,
Kingston, N. Y.

The City Planning Board of the City of Kingston, New York, will conduct a Public Hearing on January 27th, 1953 at 7:30 p. m. in the City Hall at the office of the City Planning Board, relative to the application for final approval of the Walter-Donnaruma Sub-division on Browning Terrace.

City Planning Board

MODENA NEWS

Modena, Jan. 21—The regular meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Modena Methodist Church was held Tuesday night at the home of Jean DuBois, near New Paltz. A brief business session was in charge of Mrs. DuBois, president, and the study on Africa was continued, under the direction of Marian Jensen, choosing for the subject, Africans on Safari. A social time was enjoyed when refreshments were served by the hostess. Others attending were Ethel Hyatt, Muriel Ward, Donna Lou Umler, Marie Winters, Celia Tice and Flo Hyatt. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 3, at the home of Elsie Coy in Modena.

The Modena-Clintondale unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau met Thursday in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, and conducted its annual election of officers as follows: Mrs. Egbert Harcourt, chairman; Mrs. Ralph Tice, vice-chairman; Mrs. Joseph Daunt, secretary; Mrs. Gershom Mount, treasurer. Sixteen members were in attendance and received a food project lesson in charge of the local leader, Mrs. Roy Jensen. An interesting demonstration on winter flower bouquets and home decorative arrangements was given by Mrs. Frank M. Coy during the afternoon session. The food project demonstrations will continue at the next meeting of the unit scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 19, at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall in charge of Mrs. Roy Jensen. The chairman, Mrs. Egbert Harcourt, will demonstrate cake decorating at the afternoon session. Plans were discussed for the annual bus trip to New York by Home Bureau members, their friends and families March 10 to attend the annual flower show at the Grand Central Palace. Mrs. Gershom Mount is in charge of bus reservations and interested persons are advised to contact her at an early date.

The Official Board of the Modena Methodist Church met Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck when plans were made for a chicken supper to be held in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall during February. Mrs. Gerald DuBois and Mrs. Ralph Tice were appointed co-chairmen of the supper. Further information will appear later.

The annual get-to-gether of the Lions Clubs of Highland, Marlborough-Milton, and Plattekill has been planned for Wednesday evening, Feb. 18, with a dinner dance at the Rhoda Arms, Newburgh. Local members are planning to attend, and tickets may be purchased from any member of the organization.

Cpl. and Mrs. Merrill E. Small Jr., have returned to Kentucky where the former is stationed following a visit to this place, to visit Cpl. Small's grandfather, Alfro Small, who was ill.

Cpl. Charles Smith will leave Jan. 28 for California after enjoying a furlough with relatives here and in Plattekill. Mrs. Smith, the former Phyllis Paltridge, plans to remain with her parents here during her husband's future assignment.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNichols were recent visitors in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pagentine and daughters, Patty and Marlene, entertained visitors from Newburgh and Marlborough at their home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and son, Billy, were visitors in Kingston Tuesday.

Mrs. Dolly McNichols left recently to spend the winter season in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A Paltridge and sons, Willy and Kenny, of Plattekill visited relatives in town last week.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mary Lou Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Bennett of Middletown, to Lester W. Cossano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hermis Cossano of Newburgh, formerly of New Paltz. Miss Bennett, a graduate of the Middletown High School, is a junior at the State Teachers College in New Paltz. She is the daughter of the former Evelyn Bernard of Modena.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald DeWitt and son Gary, are occupying an apartment at Gerow Schoonmaker's in New Hurley. They formerly resided with Mrs. DeWitt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd M. Harcourt here.

Rulieof Ward has returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Ward in this locality after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellerson and son Gregory, in Castle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Smith and son Bobby, of Kingston, visited Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Wager Sr., and family Sunday.

Tommy and Billy Maurer, newcomers to this locality, celebrated their ninth birthday Thursday of the past week. They are twin brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis of Lloyd, Mrs. George Lare and son Donald, of Gardnertown, Mrs. Ransel J. Wager, Mrs. Harold Wager and daughter Kathryn, of this place, Mrs. Bessie Gerow of New Paltz and Vernard B. Wager of Plattekill were among visitors at the home of Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., and son Bobby were visitors in New Paltz Saturday.

Mrs. Burton Ward is in charge of collecting Christmas cards for the New Hurley Reformed Church Sunday School. Anyone wishing to donate such cards are advised to bring them to the New Hurley Church or contact Mrs. Ward.

Mrs. Melissa Boyce, teacher of the junior grades in the Modena school, was installed as a trustee of the OES Walden Chapter, at ceremonies conducted at Walden Monday night. Mrs. Boyce's husband, George Boyce, is patron of the lodge.

Road crews were kept busy Saturday night following the sleet storm which made driving conditions hazardous in sanding sections of the road where travel was heaviest. The continuance of the rain hampered their efforts for safety, but no serious damage was reported from accidents.

Word has been received here that the Rev. and Mrs. Robert B. Guice of Monroe have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Janet Guice, to Kenneth Miner of Albany. Simultaneously the announcement is made of the engagement of Elizabeth Bodurtha of Rome, to Richard Robert Guice, twin brother of Ruth Guice. No dates have been set for the weddings. The Guices were residents of Modena, about 20 years ago when the twins were born when the Rev. Mr. Guice was pastor of the Modena and Clintondale Methodist Churches. At this time there are other twin occupants of the Modena Methodist parsonage, being Carol and Lee Imler, born at Poughkeepsie Hospital July 11.

Mrs. Harry Roosa visited her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Steer at Walden last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lare and son, Donald, of Gardnertown, visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bernard and family Sunday.

Nancy Denton, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Denton, has recovered from her illness.

Flu Closes Schools

Fernandina Beach, Fla., Jan. 21 (AP)—Schools here were ordered closed for a week because of the spread of an influenza-like disease. Dr. John W. McClaine, county health officer, said yesterday the outbreak has not reached epidemic proportions but that "it seems advisable to close the schools to prevent further spread." Public and parochial schools at St. Augustine closed Monday because of what officials there described as an outbreak of influenza. A respiratory disease had about 180 students at the University of Florida ill Monday. The university has 9,000 students.

Name Pros Press Tourney Leader

Palm Springs, Calif., Jan 21 (AP)—Competition swung into the final round of the $10,000 Thunderbird County Club Invitation golf tournament today with five dangerous professionals pressing just one stroke back of a little known golfer, Pete Fleming from St. Andrews, Ill.

Fleming, with rounds of 67-66—133, was in dire danger from Ben Hogan, Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demaret, Dutch Harrison and Jim Turnesa in the windup of the 54-hole special tournament.

Of the 30 invited pros, 26 were still under par 144 for the first two rounds.

And in two days, a course record was set and tied three times. Hogan did it with his first round 65, and Harrison matched it soon after. Yesterday Mangrum did it with a 32-33, and then jovial Demaret broke loose with a 34-31.

Feeling Is Mixed

them know that volunteer firemen were interested in getting two-way radio. "The board won't pass it unless they know you want it."

Mayor Asks for Facts

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk pointed out that "before we in the city of Kingston spend taxpayer's money for this project we will have to know more about the plan," suggesting that the plan should, perhaps, be placed on a map showing townships, what counties would receive mobile radio units, where the stations would be located, the cost of the project, location of the central station and cost, etc.

All of this, he said, "should be put in black and white so each knows just what his responsibilities are."

He said that he had spoken to state officials recently about funds for such a plan and had been unable to pin them down. "If there's money available they should be in a position to give us the facts."

Newkirk said that if a municipality spent $100,000, for example, for the installation of two-way radio there was no assurance that "the state would reimburse us $50,000."

Promises 10-Day Answer

In reply to the mayor, Towsend said that if specifications for two-way radio in Ulster county were drawn up "I will give you the necessary forms to complete, forward the forms to Washington and within 10 days give you an answer. Then you can decide whether you want to go ahead or not."

Chipp stated that he couldn't recall any municipality being asked for anything for fire service. "I don't think we of the Volunteer Firemen's Association are out of order asking the county to provide this program for us."

Chief Murphy Speaks

Kingston Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, in a few brief remarks, expressed strong conviction as to the value of a two-way radio system, pointing out that one of its principal attributes was the facility and effectiveness of mutual aid.

Chipp said that three plans for the installation of the system had been received, two from "radio companies" and one from the New York Telephone Company.

Under the plan a radio signal from a central station could be used to actuate the alarm system of any local fire station in the county. Fifty-one mobile units would be equipped with transmission and receiving equipment. Fire trucks so equipped could then communicate with the central station or with each other. Forty-seven local fire stations would be equipped with receivers.

Tax Groups

testify in support of the plan were Dr. Carter Davidson, president of Union College; Dr. Deane Malott, president of Cornell University; Dr. Robert McEwen, president of Hamilton College, and Dr. Finla G. Crawford, vice chancellor of Syracuse University.

Says No Public Demand

Shoemaker declared in a prepared statement that there was no public demand for educational TV, although educators, he said, had created the illusion of one.

"Freedom of speech can be assured only so long as the instruments of mass communication remain in private hands," he said.

Shoemaker criticized educators for campaigning for approval of the TV plan with funds he said had been raised by taxation. He called the action "improper and indefensible."

The 15-member commission was created by the 1952 Legislature and appointed by the governor to study the feasibility of the Regents' proposal for broadcasting educational, non-commercial programs across the state.

The proposed 10-station network would operate on channels already tentatively designated or reserved by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Regents have estimated that the chain would cost 3½ million dollars to build and 1½ million a year to operate.

Kaplan New

after having been off the board for only one year, should not become an established policy. He still pledged his full support and cooperation. The resignation was accepted with regret and Robert M. Peebles, manager of WKNY was named to fill the vacancy.

The retiring directors, most of whom attended their last meeting, included C. A. Baltz, Jr., Emil G. Boessneck, Pratt Boice, Joseph F. Deegan, Raymond W. Garraghan, Lawrence J. MacAvery, and Henry Singer. Each made brief statements welcoming the new directors and pledging their continued help and support in any way the new board cared to have them serve their community.

President Kaplan plans to call a meeting of the executive committee in the near future, consider the various suggestions and name operating committees for 1953.

WALLKILL NEWS

Wallkill, Jan. 21 — Exams are being held in the high school this week. On Friday, Jan. 23, the second semester of the school year commences with the new schedule put into practice. On Thursday evening, Jan. 22, the Sophomore Class will sponsor a ham dinner to be held in the church hall of the Wallkill Reformed Church. Servings will be at 5:30 and 7 p. m. On Friday evening, Arthur J. Scarzello, winner of the American Legion Oratorical Contest of the Rose-Sheeley Post, will compete with winners of Ulster county schools at Saugerties in the County Eliminations Contest. On Friday evening, Jan. 23, Wallkill will play the previously postponed basketball game with Marlborough Central School at Marlborough. On Friday, Jan. 30, the senior class will hold a food sale at Edsall's Drug Store.

In conjunction with the Adult Education Program of Wallkill Central School, a physical fitness class for women is being organized. Anyone interested in joining the class is asked to contact Mrs. Dorothy Mizerak or Mrs. Arthur Fox. A minimum enrollment of 12 must be obtained before the class may be started.

Mrs. Sumner E. Masten and infant son, Richard Allen, returned home from St. Luke's Hospital Monday.

Celebrating birthdays this week in Wallkill area are Jan. 19, Mrs. Charles White; Jan. 20, J. A. Crowell, Melba Keenan Wager, and Alfred Masten; Jan. 21, Mrs. Alfred Masten and Pvt. Joseph E. MODENA NEWS

Modena, Jan. 21—The regular meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild of the Modena Methodist Church was held Tuesday night at the home of Jean DuBois, near New Paltz. A brief business session was in charge of Mrs. DuBois, president, and the study on Africa was continued, under the direction of Marian Jensen, choosing for the subject, Africans on Safari. A social time was enjoyed when refreshments were served by the hostess. Others attending were Ethel Hyatt, Muriel Ward, Donna Lou Umler, Marie Winters, Celia Tice and Flo Hyatt. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 3, at the home of Elsie Coy in Modena.

The Modena-Clintondale unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau met Thursday in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, and conducted its annual election of officers as follows: Mrs. Egbert Harcourt, chairman; Mrs. Ralph Tice, vice-chairman; Mrs. Joseph Daunt, secretary; Mrs. Gershom Mount, treasurer. Sixteen members were in attendance and received a food project lesson in charge of the local leader, Mrs. Roy Jensen. An interesting demonstration on winter flower bouquets and home decorative arrangements was given by Mrs. Frank M. Coy during the afternoon session. The food project demonstrations will continue at the next meeting of the unit scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 19, at the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall in charge of Mrs. Roy Jensen. The chairman, Mrs. Egbert Harcourt, will demonstrate cake decorating at the afternoon session. Plans were discussed for the annual bus trip to New York by Home Bureau members, their friends and families March 10 to attend the annual flower show at the Grand Central Palace. Mrs. Gershom Mount is in charge of bus reservations and interested persons are advised to contact her at an early date.

The Official Board of the Modena Methodist Church met Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck when plans were made for a chicken supper to be held in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall during February. Mrs. Gerald DuBois and Mrs. Ralph Tice were appointed co-chairmen of the supper. Further information will appear later.

The annual get-to-gether of the Lions Clubs of Highland, Marlborough-Milton, and Plattekill has been planned for Wednesday evening, Feb. 18, with a dinner dance at the Rhoda Arms, Newburgh. Local members are planning to attend, and tickets may be purchased from any member of the organization.

Cpl. and Mrs. Merrill E. Small Jr., have returned to Kentucky where the former is stationed following a visit to this place, to visit Cpl. Small's grandfather, Alfro Small, who was ill.

Cpl. Charles Smith will leave Jan. 28 for California after enjoying a furlough with relatives here and in Plattekill. Mrs. Smith, the former Phyllis Paltridge, plans to remain with her parents here during her husband's future assignment.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNichols were recent visitors in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pagentine and daughters, Patty and Marlene, entertained visitors from Newburgh and Marlborough at their home recently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and son, Billy, were visitors in Kingston Tuesday.

Mrs. Dolly McNichols left recently to spend the winter season in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A Paltridge and sons, Willy and Kenny, of Plattekill visited relatives in town last week.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mary Lou Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Bennett of Middletown, to Lester W. Cossano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hermis Cossano of Newburgh, formerly of New Paltz. Miss Bennett, a graduate of the Middletown High School, is a junior at the State Teachers College in New Paltz. She is the daughter of the former Evelyn Bernard of Modena.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald DeWitt and son Gary, are occupying an apartment at Gerow Schoonmaker's in New Hurley. They formerly resided with Mrs. DeWitt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd M. Harcourt here.

Rulieof Ward has returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Ward in this locality after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ellerson and son Gregory, in Castle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Smith and son Bobby, of Kingston, visited Mr. and Mrs. Lester A. Wager Sr., and family Sunday.

Tommy and Billy Maurer, newcomers to this locality, celebrated their ninth birthday Thursday of the past week. They are twin brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis of Lloyd, Mrs. George Lare and son Donald, of Gardnertown, Mrs. Ransel J. Wager, Mrs. Harold Wager and daughter Kathryn, of this place, Mrs. Bessie Gerow of New Paltz and Vernard B. Wager of Plattekill were among visitors at the home of Mrs. A. D. Wager and daughter during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. DeWitt, Sr., and son Bobby were visitors in New Paltz Saturday.

Mrs. Burton Ward is in charge of collecting Christmas cards for the New Hurley Reformed Church Sunday School. Anyone wishing to donate such cards are advised to bring them to the New Hurley Church or contact Mrs. Ward.

Mrs. Melissa Boyce, teacher of the junior grades in the Modena school, was installed as a trustee of the OES Walden Chapter, at ceremonies conducted at Walden Monday night. Mrs. Boyce's husband, George Boyce, is patron of the lodge.

Road crews were kept busy Saturday night following the sleet storm which made driving conditions hazardous in sanding sections of the road where travel was heaviest. The continuance of the rain hampered their efforts for safety, but no serious damage was reported from accidents.

Word has been received here that the Rev. and Mrs. Robert B. Guice of Monroe have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Janet Guice, to Kenneth Miner of Albany. Simultaneously the announcement is made of the engagement of Elizabeth Bodurtha of Rome, to Richard Robert Guice, twin brother of Ruth Guice. No dates have been set for the weddings. The Guices were residents of Modena, about 20 years ago when the twins were born when the Rev. Mr. Guice was pastor of the Modena and Clintondale Methodist Churches. At this time there are other twin occupants of the Modena Methodist parsonage, being Carol and Lee Imler, born at Poughkeepsie Hospital July 11.

Mrs. Harry Roosa visited her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Steer at Walden last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lare and son, Donald, of Gardnertown, visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bernard and family Sunday.

Nancy Denton, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Denton, has recovered from her illness.

Flu Closes Schools

Fernandina Beach, Fla., Jan. 21 (AP) — Schools here were ordered closed for a week because of the spread of an influenza-like disease. Dr. John W. McClaine, county health officer, said yesterday the outbreak has not reached epidemic proportions but that "it seems advisable to close the schools to prevent further spread." Public and parochial schools at St. Augustine closed Monday because of what officials there described as an outbreak of influenza. A respiratory disease had about 180 students at the University of Florida ill Monday. The university has 9,000 students.

Name Pros Press Tourney Leader

Palm Springs, Calif., Jan 21 (AP) —Competition swung into the final round of the $10,000 Thunderbird County Club Invitation golf tournament today with five dangerous professionals pressing just one stroke back of a little known golfer, Pete Fleming from St. Andrews, Ill.

Fleming, with rounds of 67-66—133, was in dire danger from Ben Hogan, Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demaret, Dutch Harrison and Jim Turnesa in the windup of the 54-hole special tournament.

Of the 30 invited pros, 26 were still under par 144 for the first two rounds.

And in two days, a course record was set and tied three times. Hogan did it with his first round 65, and Harrison matched it soon after. Yesterday Mangrum did it with a 32-33, and then jovial Demaret broke loose with a 34-31.

Feeling Is Mixed

them know that volunteer firemen were interested in getting two-way radio. "The board won't pass it unless they know you want it."

Mayor Asks for Facts

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk pointed out that "before we in the city of Kingston spend taxpayer's money for this project we will have to know more about the plan," suggesting that the plan should, perhaps, be placed on a map showing townships, what counties would receive mobile radio units, where the stations would be located, the cost of the project, location of the central station and cost, etc.

All of this, he said, "should be put in black and white so each knows just what his responsibilities are."

He said that he had spoken to state officials recently about funds for such a plan and had been unable to pin them down. "If there's money available they should be in a position to give us the facts."

Newkirk said that if a municipality spent $100,000, for example, for the installation of two-way radio there was no assurance that "the state would reimburse us $50,000."

Promises 10-Day Answer

In reply to the mayor, Towsend said that if specifications for two-way radio in Ulster county were drawn up "I will give you the necessary forms to complete, forward the forms to Washington and within 10 days give you an answer. Then you can decide whether you want to go ahead or not."

Chipp stated that he couldn't recall any municipality being asked for anything for fire service. "I don't think we of the Volunteer Firemen's Association are out of order asking the county to provide this program for us."

Chief Murphy Speaks

Kingston Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy, in a few brief remarks, expressed strong conviction as to the value of a two-way radio system, pointing out that one of its principal attributes was the facility and effectiveness of mutual aid.

Chipp said that three plans for the installation of the system had been received, two from "radio companies" and one from the New York Telephone Company.

Under the plan a radio signal from a central station could be used to actuate the alarm system of any local fire station in the county. Fifty-one mobile units would be equipped with transmission and receiving equipment. Fire trucks so equipped could then communicate with the central station or with each other. Forty-seven local fire stations would be equipped with receivers.

Tax Groups

testify in support of the plan were Dr. Carter Davidson, president of Union College; Dr. Deane Malott, president of Cornell University; Dr. Robert McEwen, president of Hamilton College, and Dr. Finla G. Crawford, vice chancellor of Syracuse University.

Says No Public Demand

Shoemaker declared in a prepared statement that there was no public demand for educational TV, although educators, he said, had created the illusion of one.

"Freedom of speech can be assured only so long as the instruments of mass communication remain in private hands," he said.

Shoemaker criticized educators for campaigning for approval of the TV plan with funds he said had been raised by taxation. He called the action "improper and indefensible."

The 15-member commission was created by the 1952 Legislature and appointed by the governor to study the feasibility of the Regents' proposal for broadcasting educational, non-commercial programs across the state.

The proposed 10-station network would operate on channels already tentatively designated or reserved by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Regents have estimated that the chain would cost 3½ million dollars to build and 1½ million a year to operate.

Kaplan New

after having been off the board for only one year, should not become an established policy. He still pledged his full support and cooperation. The resignation was accepted with regret and Robert M. Peebles, manager of WKNY was named to fill the vacancy.

The retiring directors, most of whom attended their last meeting, included C. A. Baltz, Jr., Emil G. Boessneck, Pratt Boice, Joseph F. Deegan, Raymond W. Garraghan, Lawrence J. MacAvery, and Henry Singer. Each made brief statements welcoming the new directors and pledging their continued help and support in any way the new board cared to have them serve their community.

President Kaplan plans to call a meeting of the executive committee in the near future, consider the various suggestions and name operating committees for 1953.

WALLKILL NEWS

Wallkill, Jan. 21 — Exams are being held in the high school this week. On Friday, Jan. 23, the second semester of the school year commences with the new schedule put into practice. On Thursday evening, Jan. 22, the Sophomore Class will sponsor a ham dinner to be held in the church hall of the Wallkill Reformed Church. Servings will be at 5:30 and 7 p. m. On Friday evening, Arthur J. Scarzello, winner of the American Legion Oratorical Contest of the Rose-Sheeley Post, will compete with winners of Ulster county schools at Saugerties in the County Eliminations Contest. On Friday evening, Jan. 23, Wallkill will play the previously postponed basketball game with Marlborough Central School at Marlborough. On Friday, Jan. 30, the senior class will hold a food sale at Edsall's Drug Store.

In conjunction with the Adult Education Program of Wallkill Central School, a physical fitness class for women is being organized. Anyone interested in joining the class is asked to contact Mrs. Dorothy Mizerak or Mrs. Arthur Fox. A minimum enrollment of 12 must be obtained before the class may be started.

Mrs. Sumner E. Masten and infant son, Richard Allen, returned home from St. Luke's Hospital Monday.

Celebrating birthdays this week in Wallkill area are Jan. 19, Mrs. Charles White; Jan. 20, J. A. Crowell, Melba Keenan Wager, and Alfred Masten; Jan. 21, Mrs. Alfred Masten and Pvt. Joseph E. Davis of Camp Pickett, Va.; Jan. 22, Mrs. Betsy Quirk; Jan. 23, Mrs. Ira Cronk, Mrs. Edith Sichler and Marvin Douglas Wager; Jan. 25, Charles H. White, Chef, Walter Smith and Nancy Witherel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Witherel.

The next regular meeting of the Wallkill Home Bureau will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. in the community room of the Wallkill National Bank. The morning session will feature a Family Life Lesson. Kenneth Hasbrouck will speak on history and folklore of the community at 1 p. m. The business meeting and annual election of officers will follow. Each member is asked to bring her own lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Davis, Sr. of Wallkill announce the marriage of their daughter, Gwendolyn Kay to Richard Vandemark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Witte of Pine Bush, Jan. 1. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stanley Risch of Bloomingburg. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Berryann of Wallkill, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

A complete list of the committees for the Consistory has been made known and anyone desiring information is asked to kindly consult the proper committee chairman. These consistory committees will function as the head or advisory board in the absence of a minister. Use of church property, Robert Terwilliger; finance, Robert Terwilliger, Herman Mahlandt, George Vogel and E. Lester Mack; publicity, Macey E. Van Wagenen, George Geyer; church membership, Herbert McHugh, Clifford E. Caswell, George Geyer, Macey E. Van Wagenen; music, Macey E. Van Wagenen, E. On Thursday, Jan. 15, Mrs. Nellie Roosa celebrated her 97th birthday quietly at her home. She is probably one of the oldest residents in the vicinity of Wallkill and is well-known throughout the area.

Pvt. Joseph E. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Davis completed basic training recently at the Medical Replacement Training Center at Camp Pickett, Va. At MRTC, the army's training school for medical enlisted men, he has received eight weeks of basic infantry training and eight weeks of medical training. The infantry training covered subjects given to all new students. Medical subjects included: Anatomy, psysiology, military sanitation, method of evacuation, emergency medical treatment, administration of medicine, ward management, hypodermic injection and operating room technique.

Reformed Church notes: Thursday at 7:30 p. m., the senior choir will hold a regular rehearsal at the church. Sunday school will convene at 10 a. m. with Frederick C. Terwilliger, superintendent. Ladies' Bible class will meet in the church at the same time. At the regular morning worship services, a student from the New Bruynswick Theological Seminary will deliver the address and conduct the service. Music will be under the direction of Mrs. Hubert Hendrie. The choir will render Seek Ye The Lord, by Roberts with Alan Vandemark as soloist; and Father in Heaven by Bach. The Junior Fellowship will meet at 4 p. m. at the church. The Senior Youth Fellowship will meet at the church at 7 p. m.

Skies Dreary Over Most Of U.S., but It Isn't Cold

(By The Associated Press)

Skies were dreary and drippy over wide areas of the country today but there was no severe cold weather.

The southeastern section got the heaviest rainfall. Rain in the northwest slackened with only light falls, mainly in western Washington.

Showers and snow flurries hit areas in the central and northern Rocky mountain regions while light snow fell in the western Great Lakes and upper Mississippi valley.

Fog stretched across much of the middle Mississippi and Missouri valleys. Cloudy skies were reported over wide areas in the eastern part of the country.

The only areas of clear skies extended through most of the Plains states and the southwest.

No sub-zero temperatures were reported throughout the country early today.

White House Says

nations shall not be acted upon the day they are submitted. This required unanimous agreement, and Morse wouldn't agree.

Gives Reasons

Saltonstall said he had decided to postpone the Armed Services Committee hearing on Wilson because (1) the proposed defense secretary had not been formally nominated and (2) Herbert Brownell, Jr., incoming attorney general, had not had time because of the inaugural ceremonies to complete his study of the situation.

Wilson's proposed nomination has been challenged by an increasing number of senators because a federal law bars any U. S. official from dealing with a firm in which he holds even an indirect financial interest and Wilson testified previously he would not give up 2½ million dollars worth of General Motors stock.

Wilson formerly was president of GM, the Defense Department's largest private contractor.

To Offer Solution

He indicated, however, he believes Brownell will be ready by Friday to offer some sort of solution in a situation where many senators said they believed Wilson either will have to sell his stock holdings or face rejection, if his nomination is forthcoming.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) told a reporter it is his understanding Wilson is prepared to tell the committee he would disqualify himself in any matter pertaining to General Motors, a reversal of the stand Wilson previously took in testifying before the group.

"If he does this, I will vote for him and I believe he will be confirmed," said Potter, a new member of the committee.

However, Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) cited a law which prohibits any federal official from dealing with a firm in which he holds even an indirect financial interest. Potter said he thought Wilson had been "badly advised" on some of the testimony he gave before the committee last week.

"If he had said then he would disqualify himself on General Motors contracts, I believe there would have been no trouble," the Michigan senator said.

Wilson, meanwhile, shed no light on the possibility that he might step entirely out of the picture.

Visits Friend in Jail Gets 150 Days Himself

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today revoked a suspended sentence previously imposed on Charles Reichel, 42, of Stone Ridge, and gave him 150 days in jail on a charge dating back to December.

Reichle was originally arrested on complaint of his wife on a third degree assault charge in December and was then given the suspended sentence of 180 days.

Arrested subsequently on a disorderly conduct charge, the judge said, he violated terms of the suspended sentence and was sentenced by a justice of the peace to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Arrested at Court House

Monday he was picked up at the completion of the 30-day sentence and a hearing was slated for today in city court. Detectives Clarence Brophy and Frank Sammons, and County Investigator Arthur Brown arrested Reichel yesterday afternoon on a bench warrant at the court house where he went to visit a friend in the county jail.

Judge Mino today sentenced Reichle to serve 150 days considering the 30 days which he had served on the other charge.

Kingston Vets Arrive From European Duty

Two Kingston veterans were aboard the USNS Gen. Greely arriving today in New York from Bremerhaven, Germany, the Associated Press reported.

They were identified as Pfc. Jackie Blankenschen and Sgt. Martin J. Friedman. No street addresses were listed.

Troops arriving today were returning from European duty.

Jailed for Red Try

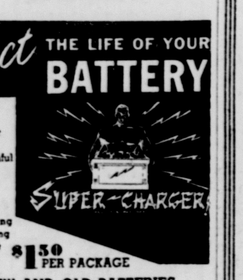

Athens, Greece, Jan. 21 (AP)—George Bolias was convicted and sentenced to 11 years in prison today on charges of having attempted to reorganize the outlawed Greek Communist party. Three co-defendants received sentences of from one to four years and two were acquitted.

Reds Withhold Comment

Moscow, Jan. 21 (AP) — Soviet newspapers reported the inauguration of President Eisenhower briefly and without comment. Pravda reported the presence of Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin among other foreign diplomats at the ceremonies.

Extension Is Seen For Truckers to Obtain '53 Plates

Pending legislation at Albany may revise the present law governing the registration fee of trucks and trailers and there will undoubtedly be an extension of time granted truck owners to secure 1953 licenses while clarification of the existing law is worked out. It has been suggested that truckmen be granted until March 2 to secure the new tags. Meanwhile, the present truck-trailer controversy may be adjusted by the legislature.

Under the present law which classifies each truck under a minimum carrying capacity schedule there has been considerable controversy by truckmen of the state.

Legislation Now Pending

A communication received at the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau office today from Commissioner Macduff, indicated that legislation is now pending and an extension of time for securing commercial plates undoubtedly will be authorized to permit time to work out an equitable solution.

It is suggested that truckmen withhold securing registration plates until the matter is completely determined. However, if a truckman desires to secure plates now they will be issued under the existing schedule.

County clerks who serve as issuing officers under the Motor Vehicle Bureau law, must follow existing regulations until revised instructions are received from the state.

County Clerk Harry Sutton said that if there is a revision of the present truck-trailer law, notice of such change will be announced through the press as soon as he receives authority from the Motor Vehicle Bureau office in Albany.

Farm Forms Ready

Form for registration of farm vehicles under the new lower rate recently authorized, have been received at the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau office and are ready for distribution. This reduces the rate for farm trucks from the regular 50 cents per 100 pounds of capacity to 35 cents. Only three farm trucks are permitted to be registered by any one applicant.

However, since the carrying capacity of farm trucks figures in the amount of license fee charged in the same manner as "over the road" trucks, it would be advisable for owners of farm trucks to await decision on revision of the present fee before securing their 1953 tags, it was pointed out.

Man, With Knife, Is Taken From Ike Rites

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—A 41-year-old Washington man was held for a hearing today, charged with carrying a dangerous weapon at the Eisenhower inaugural parade.

Spectators saw the man dragged from the stands at the Capitol yesterday after Dwight Eisenhower had taken the oath of office. A knife was in the man's hands when police dragged him away.

He was identified as Wallace Powell Pruitt, Jr. He was to be arraigned at Municipal Court today.

Pruitt, a heavy-set man, was pulled from the stands just before the open car occupied by Attorney General Designate Herbert Brownell Jr., and his wife.

As he was being pulled into the background, the man made a threatening gesture at the Brownell car. He was rushed away to headquarters and questioned overnight.

Grand Jury Makes Report Thursday

District Attorney Howard C. St. John announced today that the grand jury in attendance at the January term of Supreme Court would conclude the work at hand and make a report to Justice Kenneth MacAffer Thursday.

Among the matters which the present grand jury had referred to it was the Samuel Schifano case. Schifano was indicted for murder, first degree, for the hatchet-knife death of Mrs. Amelia Nusca, 52, at Highland last June. A grand jury last June returned an indictment charging first degree murder. A motion was made to set aside that indictment and County Judge John M. Cashin granted the application and directed that the matter be re-submitted to a grand jury for further consideration.

Schifano, 62, a former Brooklyn resident, and Mrs. Nusca were found badly injured in her apartment near Highland by state police after receiving a mysterious phone call. Schifano recovered but Mrs. Nusca died in a Poughkeepsie hospital June 23, 1952.

At the North Pole, every direction is south.

The answers to everyday insurance problems*

QUESTION: My insurance policy states I would get full cash value for my car if it was a total loss in a wreck. Who decides what that value is?
ANSWER: Almost always the Company adjuster and the insured can get together on a satisfactory adjustment. If they can't the usual method is for each to select his own appraiser and for the two appraisers to select an impartial "umpire" with the decision of any two of the three to be accepted by all parties.

Makes Good on Check

Police Justice Ernest E. Schirmer of Saugerties Tuesday afternoon imposed a 30-day jail sentence on Walter Keyser, 49, of 25 Broadway, Kingston, and then suspended execution of the sentence when Keyser made good a check which it had been charged was issued fraudulently. Keyser made restitution, County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, said for the amount of the check which was issued to a Glasco gas station, after a plea of guilty had been entered to the charge.

Skies Dreary Over Most Of U.S., but It Isn't Cold

(By The Associated Press)

Skies were dreary and drippy over wide areas of the country today but there was no severe cold weather.

The southeastern section got the heaviest rainfall. Rain in the northwest slackened with only light falls, mainly in western Washington.

Showers and snow flurries hit areas in the central and northern Rocky mountain regions while light snow fell in the western Great Lakes and upper Mississippi valley.

Fog stretched across much of the middle Mississippi and Missouri valleys. Cloudy skies were reported over wide areas in the eastern part of the country.

The only areas of clear skies extended through most of the Plains states and the southwest.

No sub-zero temperatures were reported throughout the country early today.

White House Says

nations shall not be acted upon the day they are submitted. This required unanimous agreement, and Morse wouldn't agree.

Gives Reasons

Saltonstall said he had decided to postpone the Armed Services Committee hearing on Wilson because (1) the proposed defense secretary had not been formally nominated and (2) Herbert Brownell, Jr., incoming attorney general, had not had time because of the inaugural ceremonies to complete his study of the situation.

Wilson's proposed nomination has been challenged by an increasing number of senators because a federal law bars any U. S. official from dealing with a firm in which he holds even an indirect financial interest and Wilson testified previously he would not give up 2½ million dollars worth of General Motors stock.

Wilson formerly was president of GM, the Defense Department's largest private contractor.

To Offer Solution

He indicated, however, he believes Brownell will be ready by Friday to offer some sort of solution in a situation where many senators said they believed Wilson either will have to sell his stock holdings or face rejection, if his nomination is forthcoming.

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) told a reporter it is his understanding Wilson is prepared to tell the committee he would disqualify himself in any matter pertaining to General Motors, a reversal of the stand Wilson previously took in testifying before the group.

"If he does this, I will vote for him and I believe he will be confirmed," said Potter, a new member of the committee.

However, Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) cited a law which prohibits any federal official from dealing with a firm in which he holds even an indirect financial interest. Potter said he thought Wilson had been "badly advised" on some of the testimony he gave before the committee last week.

"If he had said then he would disqualify himself on General Motors contracts, I believe there would have been no trouble," the Michigan senator said.

Wilson, meanwhile, shed no light on the possibility that he might step entirely out of the picture.

Visits Friend in Jail Gets 150 Days Himself

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today revoked a suspended sentence previously imposed on Charles Reichel, 42, of Stone Ridge, and gave him 150 days in jail on a charge dating back to December.

Reichle was originally arrested on complaint of his wife on a third degree assault charge in December and was then given the suspended sentence of 180 days.

Arrested subsequently on a disorderly conduct charge, the judge said, he violated terms of the suspended sentence and was sentenced by a justice of the peace to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Arrested at Court House

Monday he was picked up at the completion of the 30-day sentence and a hearing was slated for today in city court. Detectives Clarence Brophy and Frank Sammons, and County Investigator Arthur Brown arrested Reichel yesterday afternoon on a bench warrant at the court house where he went to visit a friend in the county jail.

Judge Mino today sentenced Reichle to serve 150 days considering the 30 days which he had served on the other charge.

Extension Is Seen For Truckers to Obtain '53 Plates

Pending legislation at Albany may revise the present law governing the registration fee of trucks and trailers and there will undoubtedly be an extension of time granted truck owners to secure 1953 licenses while clarification of the existing law is worked out. It has been suggested that truckmen be granted until March 2 to secure the new tags. Meanwhile, the present truck-trailer controversy may be adjusted by the legislature.

Under the present law which classifies each truck under a minimum carrying capacity schedule there has been considerable controversy by truckmen of the state.

Legislation Now Pending

A communication received at the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau office today from Commissioner Macduff, indicated that legislation is now pending and an extension of time for securing commercial plates undoubtedly will be authorized to permit time to work out an equitable solution.

It is suggested that truckmen withhold securing registration plates until the matter is completely determined. However, if a truckman desires to secure plates now they will be issued under the existing schedule.

County clerks who serve as issuing officers under the Motor Vehicle Bureau law, must follow existing regulations until revised instructions are received from the state.

County Clerk Harry Sutton said that if there is a revision of the present truck-trailer law, notice of such change will be announced through the press as soon as he receives authority from the Motor Vehicle Bureau office in Albany.

Farm Forms Ready

Form for registration of farm vehicles under the new lower rate recently authorized, have been received at the Ulster County Motor Vehicle Bureau office and are ready for distribution. This reduces the rate for farm trucks from the regular 50 cents per 100 pounds of capacity to 35 cents. Only three farm trucks are permitted to be registered by any one applicant.

However, since the carrying capacity of farm trucks figures in the amount of license fee charged in the same manner as "over the road" trucks, it would be advisable for owners of farm trucks to await decision on revision of the present fee before securing their 1953 tags, it was pointed out.

Man, With Knife, Is Taken From Ike Rites

Washington, Jan. 21 (AP)—A 41-year-old Washington man was held for a hearing today, charged with carrying a dangerous weapon at the Eisenhower inaugural parade.

Spectators saw the man dragged from the stands at the Capitol yesterday after Dwight Eisenhower had taken the oath of office. A knife was in the man's hands when police dragged him away.

He was identified as Wallace Powell Pruitt, Jr. He was to be arraigned at Municipal Court today.

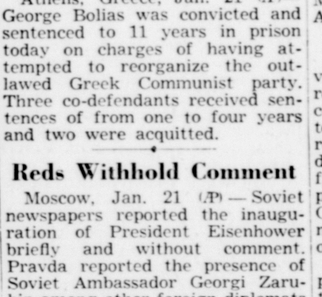

Pruitt, a heavy-set man, was pulled from the stands just before the open car occupied by Attorney General Designate Herbert Brownell Jr., and his wife.

As he was being pulled into the background, the man made a threatening gesture at the Brownell car. He was rushed away to headquarters and questioned overnight.

Grand Jury Makes Report Thursday

District Attorney Howard C. St. John announced today that the grand jury in attendance at the January term of Supreme Court would conclude the work at hand and make a report to Justice Kenneth MacAffer Thursday.

Among the matters which the present grand jury had referred to it was the Samuel Schifano case. Schifano was indicted for murder, first degree, for the hatchet-knife death of Mrs. Amelia Nusca, 52, at Highland last June. A grand jury last June returned an indictment charging first degree murder. A motion was made to set aside that indictment and County Judge John M. Cashin granted the application and directed that the matter be re-submitted to a grand jury for further consideration.

Schifano, 62, a former Brooklyn resident, and Mrs. Nusca were found badly injured in her apartment near Highland by state police after receiving a mysterious phone call. Schifano recovered but Mrs. Nusca died in a Poughkeepsie hospital June 23, 1952.

At the North Pole, every direction is south.

By HERMAN J. EATON

QUESTION: My insurance policy states I would get full cash value for my car if it was a total loss in a wreck. Who decides what that value is?

ANSWER: Almost always the Company adjuster and the insured can get together on a satisfactory adjustment. If they can't the usual method is for each to select his own appraiser and for the two appraisers to select an impartial "umpire" with the decision of any two of the three to be accepted by all parties.

*If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be NO CHARGE OR OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND.

Makes Good on Check

Police Justice Ernest E. Schirmer of Saugerties Tuesday afternoon imposed a 30-day jail sentence on Walter Keyser, 49, of 25 Broadway, Kingston, and then suspended execution of the sentence when Keyser made good a check which it had been charged was issued fraudulently. Keyser made restitution, County Investigator Arthur H. Brown, said for the amount of the check which was issued to a Glasco gas station, after a plea of guilty had been entered to the charge.
